Morehouse Boy Dies in Accident

A Morehouse youth was killed and a passenger injured in a one- car automobile accident Sunday at the Stoddard and Wayne county line, the highway patrol reported.

AT 12:25 a.m. on route T eight miles west of Puxico, a 1959 Ford traveling east driven by William Jasper Hardin, 15, Morehouse, was going at a high rate of speed, went out of control on a curve, and overturned, the patrol said.

The driver was thrown from the car and the Ford rolled over him causing his death.

A passenger, Michael Steven Burns, 17, Morehouse, suffered cuts and bruises to the right kidney and was taken to Lucy Lee hospital in Poplar Bluff for treatment.

William Hardin

The son of Mrs. Alpha Mae Hardin, Hardin was born June 8, 1955 in Dexter. He was a sophomore at Richland high school at Essex.

Survivors include his mother; one brother, Gerald Hardin: and three sisters, Lona Jane, Sheila, and Joella Hardin.

Services will be 2 p.m. Wednesday at the Watkins and Sons Funeral chapel in Morehouse with the Rev. A. C. Sullivant officiating. Burial will be in Triplett cemetery near Dexter.

Budget Deficits Next Nixon Test

WASHINGTON (AP) — The persistent and mounting red ink in the federal budget probably will be President Nixon's major problem in dealing with the new Congress next year.

It is a Congress that Tuesday's election changed only slightly—and not in a way to help him much in his fiscal dilemma.

Facing a deficit estimated by congressional specialists as high as $15 billion to $16 billion, the administration—if it remains true to its announced principles—must make hard choices about cutting spending, increasing taxes or both.

At the same time, it is under heavier pressure to try new ways of boosting an economy that now registers a seven-year high in unemployment—while avoiding feeding persistent inflation.

There is widespread feeling the economy, harped on by Democrats, had more impact on the electorate Tuesday than the law and order arguments of the Republicans.

And with attention now turning to the 1972 presidential contest, more jobs and a slowdown in price jumps become a GOP political must.

Whatever decisions the administration makes must be submitted to a Congress that not only remains firmly under Democratic control, but maintains in key positions most of the same men who confronted the Republican White House during the past two years.

The specter of big deficits plagues administration planners at every turn as they tackle more specific problems of the coming year, including:

—The draft, which expires June 30. Nixon is committed in principle to moving toward an all-volunteer army, which would be costly in pay and other incentives.

—Reform of the welfare system, unless Congress in the upcoming lame duck session succeeds in reconciling sharply differing versions. Main objection to the administration plan has been its cost. Meanwhile welfare rolls continue to soar above predictions.

—Possible extension of Federal aid to college students. Again, cost is the big headache.

—Continuation or revamping of the antipoverty program.

—Mounting sentiment for a national health insurance program, with heavy government financial participation.

On the other hand, Democratic gains in the election could improve the chances, still slim, of one Republican proposal—sharing federal revenues with the states.

Democrats will have more governors—as many as 11 more—and control more state legislatures. The majority Democrats in Congress could be under more pressure from home to help hard-pressed local governments.

But Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee, shortly before the election firmly reiterated his opposition to revenue sharing, especially while the federal budget is in deficit. And Mills will be on the job again next year.

Secretary of the Treasury David M. Kennedy repeatedly has indicated it will seek new or extended taxes, if spending cuts do not reduce deficits to manageable size.

Man Wounded After Argument

Wallace Watson of Sunset Addition was wounded in the stomach early Sunday morning by a .22 caliber bullet.

Police reported Watson apparently was shot by his brother, Henry Watson, following an argument about Henry Watson slapping Wallace Watson's wife.

The wounded man was admitted at the Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

He would not sign a complaint against his brother.

The shooting took place about 3 a.m. Henry Wallace is not in custody.

Grass Fire

Firemen answered a call Saturday at 12:15 p.m. to extinguish a grass fire on Winters Drive. No damage resulted.

Cotton Bales Estimated at 10.4 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department estimated today the 1970 cotton crop at 10,428,900 bales, 4 per cent more than last year but 2 per cent less than forecast in October.

The average yield of cotton lint per acre was estimated at 442 pounds, compared with 450 pounds indicated last month; 456 in September and the yield of 433 pounds per acre in 1969.

The estimated yield per acre and production in bales of 500 pounds gross weight each, respectively, of 1970 cotton by states included Missouri 491 pounds per acre and production of 230,000 bales.

Three Boys Arrested After Gun Thefts

Two Sikeston juvenile boys were arrested Sunday for investigation of stealing three .45 caliber pistols from the Armory.

Sheriff John Dennis also reported they are suspected of breaking into a shed at 108 William, the Bulldog House at the football stadium and the Gilmore and Gilmore law offices.

Dates of the breakins were not reported.

SIKESTON COMPRESS OFFICIALS report 13 bails of cotton were damaged during an early morning fire Sunday. A gin fire pack apparently resulted when a spark from machinery came in contact with the cotton while it was at the gin. The fire smoldered and finally ignited. Firemen were called, but the sprinkler system at the Compress kept the fire from spreading.

AutoTalk Sessions Expand

DETROIT (AP) — Negotiators in the eight-week-old United Auto Workers strike returned to the bargaining table today reportedly for nonstop talks aimed at reaching agreement in the strike against General Motors by Tuesday night.

The Tuesday deadline is needed if GM is to return to full production by Dec. 1, officials said.

Such an agreement could then be submitted to the 350-man GM-UAW Council Wednesday for its approval and the next step would be a ratification vote by GM workers across the country.

The plan for a long day-night session was reported by a highly placed and usually reliable source.

From another source it was learned the union has called its 25-member International Executive Board to meet Tuesday in Detroit.

While negotiations are being conducted under a news blackout, there have been reports of progress from other sources in the last three days.

Negotiators met for 10-plus hours both Saturday and Sunday.

Marathon, night-long sessions have been a certain tipoff of an imminent agreement in the past. But none has yet marked current GM-UAW negotiations, which began July 15.

The strike, called Sept. 15 to support the UAW's wage and fringe benefit demands, has idled 400,000 in GM plants in the United States and Canada and has resulted in thousands of layoffs in supplier plants and related industries.

The union has summoned its GM Council to Detroit Wednesday, an action which usually follows contract settlement.

Bicyclist Injured

Anthony Helmes, son of Mrs. Elsie Helmes, 514 William, received a broken shin bone Sunday when he rode his bicycle into the path of a car at the intersection of North Kingshighway and Front Street, police said.

Police reported the car was driven by Georgia Houchins, 326 East Kathleen. The accident took place at noon.

The youth told officers he did not see the car. He was admitted to Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Stove Plant To Bluff

POPLAR BLUFF (AP) — A $12 million gas and electric stove manufacturing plant, expected to employ about 1,000 persons, will be built in this Southeast Missouri town, city officials said today.

The plant, operated by the Roper Corp., is the third industry in two years to move into the city's industrial park. A furniture factory and bolt making plant already are operating.

The 500,000 square-foot Roper plant should be in full operation in about two years.

Bid to Test Legality of War Denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — A divided Supreme Court refused today to hear a suit by Massachusetts questioning the legality of U.S. military action in Vietnam.

Six justices voted against the state and three justices dissented. Only Justice William O. Douglas, one of the dissenters, set forth his views.

In other actions today, the court:

—Agreed to determine whether state funds can be used to supplement salaries of lay teachers in parochial schools.

—Ruled that mental patients who are new to a state may not be sent back to their old home states by hospital officials.

—Declined to review the conviction of Yippie leader Abbie Hoffman for resisting arrest in Chicago in 1968. He was accused of having a vulgarism written across his forehead.

—Rejected a challenge to a provision of the 1968 Gun Control Act that prohibits unregistered possession of firearms by convicted felons.

Massachusetts had argued that without a declaration of war the President has no authority to send American troops into combat in Southeast Asia.

The Nixon administration counseled the court against granting the state a hearing. Justice Department officials said a judicial inquiry into the legality of the war would hamstring the President, insult Congress and embarrass the nation.

Voting against a hearing were Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justice Harry A. Blackmun, both of whom were put on the court by President Nixon and Justices Hugo L. Black, William J. Brennan Jr., Byron R. White and Thurgood Marshall, holdovers from past administrations.

Dissenting with Douglas were Justices John M. Harlan and Potter Stewart.

Marvin J. Snider, Highway Chief, Dies

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) —Marvin J. Snider, chief engineer of the Missouri Highway Department, died here early today of a heart attack. He had been attending the annual convention of the American Association of State Highway Officials.

Snider, 63, was a veteran of more than 41 years with the highway department.

He had served as district engineer in both Willow Springs and Kansas City and became engineer of construction in Jefferson City in 1960. A year later he was made assistant chief engineer and became chief engineer in 1962 on the retirement of Chief Engineer J. J. Corbett.

Snider attended Central Methodist College in Fayette and the University of Missouri in Columbia. He is survived by his widow, his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Snider of Kansas City, three brothers and three sisters.

U.S. Turns Over Wider Role to Viet Troops

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese troops have taken over offensive operations from the Americans in an area of 100 square miles north of Saigon, authoritative sources disclosed today.

The major shift of allied responsibilities virtually ends the American offensive role along the Saigon River corridor, a long-time North Vietnamese-Viet Cong infiltration and supply route.

Four American artillery and patrol bases have been turned over to the South Vietnamese along a 50-mile stretch of the river, from the Cambodian border south to within 20 miles of Saigon.

South Vietnamese troops also are taking over Cu Chi, a giant base camp 20 miles northwest of Saigon that is the headquarters of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division. The division's headquarters and its 1st and 3rd Brigades are returning to Hawaii by Christmas.

Other American units at Cu Chi and Dau Tieng, an American brigade headquarters farther north, will be pulled out soon.

For the most part, sources said, the realignment leaves American forces in the western half of the 3rd Military Region defending their remaining bases and conducting such defensive operations as local reconnaissance, searching out enemy caches and protecting the current rice harvest.

The realignment is part of President Nixon's withdrawal program to reduce U.S. strength in Vietnam to 284,000 troops by next May 1.

The U.S. Command announced today that American forces in the country dropped another 6,000 men last week to 368,000. It was the lowest level since Dec. 10, 1966, when there were 367,400.

Meanwhile, the Cambodian military command reported that the largest combined South Vietnamese-Cambodian task force of the war pushed in behind tanks on a Communist base camp 20 miles south of Phnom Penh. A spokesman said one South Vietnamese tank was reported destroyed by a mine, but the 7,000-man force had made no significant contact with the enemy.

The spokesman said another Cambodian task force pushed 40 miles up Highway 2 from Takeo to Phnom Penh. The highway had been cut for nearly six months, but there was no report of enemy opposition to the drive.

In still another operation, on the east bank of the Mekong River, the Cambodian command said government troops had recaptured Preak Tameak, 11 miles northeast of Phnom Penh. The spokesman did not say whether the Cambodian troops met any resistance.

Elsewhere in Cambodia, the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong shelled Kompong Cham, the country's third largest city 47 miles northeast of Phnom Penh, and then made a ground attack on the airport just outside the town. A spokesman said sporadic fighting continued at the airport after dawn.

Egypt Eyes Union With Sudan, Libya

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egypt is planning to federate with Sudan and Libya to form "a nucleus for the unity of the Arab world" in northeast Africa. It is Cairo's second such attempt to put together a greater Arab nation.

The late President Gamal Abdel Nasser failed in the first attempt, a federation with Syria and Yemen that was formed in 1958. It existed mostly on paper, and was broken up by Syria in September 1961. Egypt's official name remains the United Arab Republic, a remnant of that try at union.

Nasser's successor, Anwar Sadat, President Jaafar el Numairi of Sudan and Col. Muammar Kadafi, leader of Libya's military regime, announced plans for the new merger early today after a conference in Cairo.

No target date was given for putting the federation into operation.

"The Arab world is facing internal as well as external attempts to liquidate the revolutionary tide," it said, adding that the confederation was necessitated also by the death of Nasser, "whose mere presence in the Arab struggle (with Israel) was a sufficient symbol of unity for the Arab peoples."

Under the plan, called the Tripoli Charter in honor of a conference Nasser, Kadafi and Numairi held there this year, a tripartite command will first consolidate the political systems in the countries and coordinate their policies, the communique said. The command will set up three-sided boards to govern the confederation later, including a "supreme planning committee," a national security council for defense, an implementation committee to maintain national progress and subcommittees to handle political, economic, military and social questions.

Observers noted that the boards will include representatives from all three nations and their decisions presumably will have to be unanimous. Thus there apparently was no loss of sovereignty envisioned by the drafters of the charter, but this also increases the possibility of the disagreements that always wreck attempts at Arab unity.

The confederation will bring together some of the world's most lucrative oil fields in Libya, potentially rich wheat fields in Sudan and the Arab world's most powerful military force, in Egypt.

Rate Increase Hearing Nov. 30

JEFFERSON CITY AP — The Missouri Public Service Commission today set Nov. 30 for a public hearing into the request of Missouri Utilities Co. of Cape Girardeau to boost electric power rates by $975,000 a year. It would work out to a 9.5 per cent increase in revenues.

The utility said the rate boost is needed to meet the impact of inflationary expense increases. It operates electric distribution facilities in 58 southeastern and central Missouri communitieis, located in Butler, Cape Girardeau, Cooper, Dunklin, Miller, Mississippi, Moniteau, Morgan, New Madrid, Pettis, Saline, Scott and Stoddard counties.

Judgment Restored By Supreme Court

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)— The Missouri Supreme Court today reinstated a judgment for $17,501 against Paul Hamilton, John E. Godwin and Cape Central Airways Inc., which had been accepted by John T. and Lavinia M. Skibble for damages to their airplane. They had sued originally for $23,385 and later sought to repudiate the settlement.

The court held that Arthur Cheek was adequately represented by former Circuit Judge James V. Billings when he was convicted in Stoddard County of murder and sentenced to life imprisonment.

WHAT'S NEW?

A certain group of professional rabble- rousers today are commonly referred to as the "new" left. But there is much evidence to indicate that there is nothing very new about their behavior or their ideas. Consider this quotation:

"Among the students of the universities and the higher technical schools were young men and women in slovenly attire, who called in question and ridiculed the generally received convictions and respectable conventionalities of social life, and who talked of reorganizing society on strictly scientific principles. They reversed the traditional order of things even in trivial matters of appearance, the males allowing the hair to grow long and the female adepts cutting it short... Their appearance, manners and conversation were apt to shock ordinary people, but to this they were profoundly indifferent, for they had raised themselves above the level or so- called public opinion, despised Philistine respectability, and rather liked to scandalize people still under the influence of what they considered antiquated prejudices.

"Among the antiquated institutions which had to be abolished as obstructions to real progress, were religion and family life, private property and centralized administration. Religion was to be replaced by the exact sciences, family life by free love, private property by collectivism and centralized administration by a federation of independent communes."

Is the above a definition of the Hippies and Yippies of 1970? According to one of our informants, this is the description of the Nihilists, so named by the Russian novelist Ivan Sergeevich Turgenev in "Fathers and Sons" - written in 1862!

The Nihilists were the early forerunners of those who would later be known as the Marxist- Leninists- or the modern - day Leninoids, as described in Eugene Methvin's "Riot Makers." Methvin refers for the Leninoid as the "whole array of people who use the techniques of Lenin without his ideology... the opportunists.... the compulsive revolutionaries... the philsopher- thugs. . who enjoy disorder and violence because these are signs of the approaching Kingdom Come."

History is very largely an account of the struggle between those who would build and preserve a civilized society, and those who would destroy. Today we seem to have more than the normal share of Nihilists, or Leninoids. But none of it is really new.

WOULD YOU BELIEVE...

When the average American worker bought a new suit in which to apply for a new job, he may have thought there was only a sales tax on it. Actually, says Tax Foundation Inc., there were at least 116 hidden taxes in that suit. The research organization some years ago counted at least 100 taxes on an egg, 151 on a loaf of bread, 150 on a woman's hat.

Have you had enough, fellow taxpayers?

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

Under the title, "Can American Education Survive One More Year Like the One We Have Just Been Through?, " the magazine National Review has presented a stunning indictment of current policies and philosophies prevailing in many leading U.S. institutions of higher learning. The indictment takes the form of letters and messages describing the disillusioning experiences of thousands of students, professors, parents and trustees in their contacts with university life during the school year 1969-70.

The editor of National Review explains the publication of the letters with the comment: "The end of the school year caught many students, professors and parents constipated by the unavailability of appropriate media in which to express themselves. For the most part, student publications were dominated by the activist Left. Local newspapers do not usually encourage substantial accounts of private experiences or analysis. College presidents reply with form letters." Many of those wishing to express their views did so to National Review. In the words of this publication, their opinions "... are a stirring commentary on what it was like to go to school in the United States, in the spring of 1970."

Making due allowance for the tendency of everyone to express extreme opinions in moments of bitterness, the thoughts of those who might be called members of the "silent majority" on the college campuses may, nonetheless, stir a feeling of shock among millions of people who have endeavored to shrug off disturbances on campuses as a transitory phenomenon. One student writes, "Four years and over $8,000 ago I came to Columbia College expecting to be able to get a good liberal arts education and in general spend my college years in the peaceful pursuit of this goal... In four years at Columbia I have witnessed the destruction of a once- honorable institution. I have seen a once- great university become a third- rate political tool for a mob of Vietcong flag- waving animals, who trample the rights of anyone who dares to disagree with them... I am leaving Columbia this week to return to my native land, the United States of America, and I only hope its people will take me back." A graduate student of philosophy writes, "...our institutions (the family, the churches, the schools-- especially the high schools – in my opinion) have failed to instill the proper values. The cause is liberalism, with its paralyzing relativism and valueless academicism... By destroying the institutions which normally embody our values and traditions, the liberals have created a value - vacuum."

A professor at a large university observes, "...if I knew another way to make a living I would take it." And in sending in his resignation, a former trustee of a large university writes, "Once the university begins to take a public position on military, economic or social problems it can no longer claim immunity from violent reactions on the part of those who disagree with its policies. Thus the very foundations of the university are undermined." The trustee resigned in protest against the action of 37 college presidents who signed letters criticizing President Nixon's policies in Viet Nam and Cambodia.

Another professor observes, "As I see it, commitment to institutional neutrality for schools in political questions means commitment to the United States Government, which permits this neutrality... Academic freedom does not occur in a vacuum. Rather it occurs in political regimes permitting. And such regimes are few and far between especially among the most powerful nations. The normal -- one is tempted to say, the natural -- regime in history's most powerful states is not fifth - century Athens or twentieth - century America with their incredible tolerance for dissent."

Sentiments such as these, as the editor of National Review points out, seldom receive more than cursory attention. Yet, they may help to explain what is nothing less than a crisis in higher education.

NO INSTANT HEAVEN

Even Nature takes time — patient time — to nurture anything worth growing. Only weeds grow overnight.

Success in anything worth- while cannot be ordered by law; it has to be earned, by long, hard, intelligent work. Stature cannot be reached by demand; it has to be deserved. Equality can only come from being equal; try to seize it and you seize empty air. Acceptance comes from being acceptable. Respect results from being respectable.

All honorable people want all these things for all decent humans. But when you try to speed up Nature by forcing plants too fast, they die.

WEDNESDAY is a big anniversary in American history, Armistice Day as it was first called and now known as Veterans Day. The younger generation, unless it has studied and absorbed the history of World War I, probably does not know that news of the war being over came three days before it actually ended. A news service, we think it was UPI, learned Germany was about to meet with the allied Leaders to ask for terms. The word was put on the wire (there was no radio then) and newspapers all over the country headlined the end of the war. We were in advanced flying at Post Field, Fort Sill, Okla., and were over in town, Lawton, when the paper hit the street. We rushed out to the field and interupted a big poker game in the officers' quarters with the news the war was over. Instead of shouts and expressions of pleasure, from all over the room we heard, "Oh hell!" The strange disappointment was the "brainwashing" all of us young fliers had gone through, being certain we were so much better than the Germans it would be a cinch to outfly them. All of us were within a week or so of going overseas and too young, too sure, and incidently, too patriotic to realize how lucky we were.

MIRROR, MIRROR ON THE WALL

If you really want to know why the young are so angry with society, try a little experiment, suggests John Holt, teacher and author of education - reform books like "How Children Fail."

Let your hair grow long, or get a reasonably realistic wig. Dress in authentic hippie clothes. Get a little scruffy and dirty. Then just walk about in the streets of whatever city you live in.

What you will see in the faces of a good many people, says Holt, is the thought, deeply felt and very clearly communicated, "If I could, I would kill you."

That's nothing. If you really want to encounter the look that kills, try this experiment: Rent a Gestapo uniform and walk down the streets of almost any city in Europe.

This is certainly not to imply that hippies and Nazis have anything in common. In fact, the one is total anathema to the other. It is only to suggest that in both cases the unfriendly looks of passersby would involve a bit more than an automatic reaction to somebody who is dressed differently.

One need not delve deeply into reasons. The sight of a scruffy and dirty hippie, whatever he may or may not symbolize to the viewer, is simply offensive to the eye and oppressive to the spirit, like an overflowing trash can on the sidewalk. The hippie, at his worst, is as much an insult to himself as to everyone who comes in contact with him.

Are disgust and fear and hate the only emotions people carry about with them on the street, ready to express spontaneously?

Try another experiment:

Get a haircut (not necessarily short) and a shave (or a beard trim), if you are male, or a shampoo and hairset, if you are female. Dress in neat, clean clothes (not necessarily Ivy League or high fashion). Take off the sunglasses so people can see your eyes. Walk erectly and with a purposeful step. Don't stare but look candidly at people, with a smile ready to form on your lips.

What you will see in the faces of a good many people is the thought, deeply felt and very clearly communicated, "A good day to you, and how nice to see you."

Sure, there is no accounting for taste, and taste does change, but there is no pretending that such a thing as taste does not exist, either.

Of course, people should be free to dress as they please and be as scroungy as they please.

But before young people complain about the lack of love in the world, they should first take a long look in the mirror.

EAST BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — Never throw anything away.

That may have been sound advice throughout history, but it ought to be commandment today.

Junk, aged long enough, becomes valuable.

Even the desk where you carved your initials in third grade will probably be worth twice its original value in time, whether you become president or not.

If old light bulbs and used spark plugs retain dollar appeal, almost anything is worth money.

New York City is a salvager's paradise. Old buildings falling to the wrecker's ball to make way for new buildings offer the adventurous prospector a mother lode.

Doorknobs, old apartment mail boxes, ironwork railings, the very bricks of the fallen walls may be valueless on New York City streets.

But transported to suburbia, they are the instant antiquity of some modern decorating prizes.

Surely an international cartel should be organized to transport New York's junk to the points where it acquires value. And vice versa.

Old milk cans are no prized items in southwest Missouri's hills, where people still use them. And used flat irons hold little attraction for the hill housewife who can still buy them new at a discount store—and clearly remembers her mother using one.

But Manhattanites freshly fled to greener suburbs will part with cash for both those items, as well as such oddments as real cowbells, old carpenter tools, even glass-topped "Mason jars" of the sort that boys broke 30 years ago by the dozen with slingshots and b-b guns.

The array of roadside antique stops expands yearly. "Flea markets" stretch from New York's asphalt parking lots west, offering a network for junk to exchange its way around the nation.

And it is true that age alone creates value. No one collects Barbie dolls yet but the man who in 50 years has the last six in the world may claim something of value.

Throughout history it has been true that today's modern is tomorrow's antique.

Perhaps the lesson for parents is: If you would leave your children a real legacy, save their toys so that when they retire they will boast an instant collection of rare (and priceless) antique toys.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON -- Those men in high office who have been caught cheating the public finally heard from the voters last Tuesday. Here's a state- by- state report:

California -- This column reported last March that Senator George Murphy, R, had a secret deal with Technicolor, Inc., which was paying him $20,000 a year, picking up half the rent on his $520 -a -month Washington apartment, and furnishing him with credit cards. We also noted that he had often been tardy paying his taxes on this extra income. In 1968 the Internal Revenue Service was forced to file a $3,218.29 tax lien against him.

These charges became a key issue in his reelection campaign. The California electorate responded overwhelmingly by voting him out of office.

Connecticut -- The late Drew Pearson and I spelled out in a series of columns, beginning in January 1966, how Senator Tom Dodd, D., had violated half -a -dozen federal laws. He filed a $5 million 14-count libel suit against us. Every time we tried to take his deposition under oath on the law violations, however, he would drop some of the charges. Eventually he dismantled his own law suit, piece by piece, until he had withdrawn all 14 counts. The Senate, meanwhile, investigated one of the lesser charges (that he had used campaign contributions to pay his personal bills) and censured him. The Internal Revenue Service spent a year unraveling his tangled finances and recommended criminal prosecution for income tax evasion. The Senate also submitted the other alleged law violations to the Justice Department for action.

Dodd was so discredited that he withdrew as a candidate after the polls showed he would lose the nomination. Yet astonishingly he jumped back in the race despite his low standing in the polls, as an independent candidate, thus dividing the Democratic vote. This played into the hands of the Republicans who, in Washington, had the power to indict him. Significantly, the Justice department dropped the criminal case against Dodd. Later during the campaign, he was caught slipping into the White House to visit President Nixon's political operator, Murray Chotiner.

Apparently Dodd has escaped criminal prosecution, but he received the verdict of his constituents on November 3rd. The people of Connecticut, who gave him 64 per cent of their votes six years ago, gave him only 24 per cent this year. He ran a poor third in the three - way Senate race.

Indiana -- This column reported last December that Senator Vance Hartke, D., had collected large sums from Spiegel, Inc., the Chicago mail - order house, also that he had received free advertising during the 1964 campaign from Indianapolis radio station WIFE. Again on October 30 we quoted from a secret JusticeDepartment statement that was used as the basis for a bribery indictment against ex - Senator Daniel Brewster, D-Md. The secret statement implicated Hartke in the same scandal.

The charges were used against him during his reelection campaign this hear and contributed to the hairline result. In contrast, Hartke won his seat six years ago by a comfortable 54 per cent

Maryland -- Life Magazine published a detailed expose last August charging that Senator Joseph Tydings, D., had used his senatorial prestige to promote his own financial interest. The magazine accused him of attempting improperly to influence government agencies in behalf of a company in which he had a financial interest.

The allegations contributed to his defeat at the same time that his ticket mate, Governor Marvin Mandel, won reelection by a landslide.

Nebraska -- In a series of columns we told how Senator Roman Hruska had become the Senate spokesman for the drug, insurance, automobile, cattle and other special interests. He fought in the Senate and later intervened at the White House to kill a measure opposed by the Kemper Insurance group.

He also tried to help insiders take over a Wisconsin insurance firm whose parent company, Sentry Insurance, also retained his former firm. Belatedly he removed his name from the law firm listing in legal directories just in time for his reelection campaign.

We also reported the Hruska preached against pornography at the same time he profited from it through a movie chain which featured salacious films.

The columns were used as campaign ammunition against Hruska who had been elected by a 61 per cent majority six years ago and was considered a shoo-in this year. However, the New York Times reported the day after the election: "Nebraska's senior senator, Roman Hruska, received the fright of his political life in yesterday's general election" before winning a narrow victory. The Times attributed his close call to "some farm policy unhappiness in the state and Mr. Hruska's alleged association with special interests."

Nevada -- This column charged on October 14 that Lt. Gov. Ed Fike, the Republican law -and -order candidate for governor, had violated the state's conflict of interest laws in a land deal, also that casinos had given space to ticket booths in violation of the Federal Corrupt Practices Act for a Spiro Agnew political rally in behalf of Senatorial candidate William Raggio. governor Paul Laxalt, in behalf of his GOP colleagues, struck back at the column. I flew out to Nevada with the documentary evidence to debate the governor on state - wide television.

The Las Vegas Sun, a Republican newspaper, reported after the debate: "... An informal poll taken among viewers immediately following the debate showed the public favoring Anderson's arguments over Laxalt's by an eight to one margin. The poll was augmented by approximately 60 calls to the Sun switchboard expressing a similar eight to one margin .... Anderson was armed with a heavy sheaf of documents apparently bearing undeniable evidence that Fike had violated the state's conflict - of - interest laws in purchase of more than 1,000 acres of choice land along the lower Colorado in extreme southern Nevada ...."

Fike, who had been an overwhelming favorite, lost to Democratic candidate Mike O'Callaghan. Raggio was also defeated by a large majority.

New Jersey -- We carried a story on October 24 about senatorial candidate H.R. Gross, R., spelling out his financial difficulties. WE reported that the gregarious Gross charged his high living to failing companies that he controlled; that while his firms -were on the brink of bankruptcy, he stuck them for $49.50 tickets to the Moscow Circus at Madison Square Garden, florist bouquets for his wife, and luxurious refurbishing for his home.

Although these allegations never became a major issue, political analysts say they contributed to Gross's poor showing against Senator Harrison Williams

DO MEN DRESS FOR WOMEN?

Have you ever encountered a group of city men on a fishing or hunting trip? For this stag activity, they make no effort to look like anything but a bunch of roustabouts. They don their oldest clothes, let the beards grow and have a great time being slovenly. But as soon as they get back to citilization - the world of women - they start preening again. We have seen a report that male students in co-ed schools spend approximately 35% more on clothing than do students in all-male schools . . . doesn't that answer the question?

"Lucky!" the bookie exclaimed in disbelief. "How did you pick this fourhorse combination?"

"Well," the gambler admitted, "I didn't have a pin, so I used a fork."

"So are we. Come join us."

H.L. Hunt Says

FREEDOM!

The electorate has spoken. What is the meaning of the word "Freedom?" Webster's Collegiate Dictionary defines it as "the quality or state of being free ... the absence of necessity, coercion, or constraint in choice or action ... liberation from slavery or restraint or from the power of another ..."

Before the Declaration of Independence it was necessary for Americans to pay unjust taxes. There was no choice. They had no representation in Parliament. Americans were also forced to quarter English soldiers when the English parliament deemed it necessary to purpose. Our great Republic was formed because our Founding Fathers recognized that these circumstances existed and recognized the need for action.

Today, apathy is the most dangerous enemy of freedom. When a necessity arises, most Americans unquesioningly make the seemingly obvious decision -- the one which the majority supposedly favors. The average United States citizen today is being forced to pay exorbitant taxes, usually for government expenditures of which he knows nothing. Although it is not natural nor comfortable for him, he complacently accepts our government's policies regarding foreign and domestic affairs.

Could the false dilemma of complete necessity or acts of coercion and constraint be creeping back into our society? If so, only an awakened public will be able to combat the evils which accompany them.

It required great pain and sacrifice on the part of the colonists to rid themselves of those tyrannical circumstances under which they had lived. Today we should stay informed and active patriots. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

DAWN'S BITTER LIGHT:
Hard Hats
Desert Nixon

WASHINGTON: -- After the Oval Room's early morning conference cadre fully finishes analyzing the election returns, some of the softer heads in the White House will need the protection of those hard hats left as gifts by allegedly friendly labor delegations.

The White House strategists guessed wrong. The hard hat brigades are not Mr. Nixon's friends nor are they his political allies. Led by their union chiefs, and AFL-CIO president George Meany, they turned on him. They fought him almost every inch of the campaign trail. They poured money, manpower and political imagination into the fight from the sidewalks of New York to the Palisades of the Pacific.

They backed more doves than would fill a huge rooftop coop.

Mr. Meany, as is his fashion, did "bounce" on President Nixon's head, as the labor chief told Dick Nixon he would. President Meany charged him with the responsibility for Vice President Agnew's sledgehammer barnstorming.

The labor chief said that the vice president was "the horsewhip type." And that Mr. Agnew had a "vicious tongue." And that Mr. Nixon had wasted presidential "prestige and dignity." And that in the successful effort to defeat Sen. "Charley" Goodell, the White House had engaged in the "cutting of the political throat of a member of the President's own party."

The results in New York – meaning the election of James Buckley who agrees with the AFL - CIO's foreign policy and hard hat sentiment -- is a "disgrace," said the labor chief.

All this is tough talk, even from George Meany, who saves his blasts for special political hurricane seasons. But few insiders expected anything different in the "crunch." The labor movement is gut - oriented. Its objective is to have a friend in the White House, not a neutral, and to influence a coalition on the Hill which controls the Congress.

That's where the critical labor relations laws are made. That's where the social projects money is appropriated. That's where the presidential nominees for the courts and the quasi - judicial executive agencies (such as the NLRB and SCC), are confirmedl or rejected. That is the source of power. And few forces and fewer men understand the meaning of such power and its use.

Few today can match Mr. Meany's scientific political pragmatism and appraisal of the role such power plays in the survival of the movement and in confrontations with American industrialism.

Thus when the political crunch came, George Meany did exactly what he did in the last days of the 1968 campaign – he went for the political jugular. Telegrams were dispatched to leaders of every national and international union and to heads of all major city and state central labor bodies. The theme: Get out the vote.

For whom? For labor's friends, that's for whom. And it made no difference if they were doves or hawks. It was an owl-ish approach. Rounds of golf with the President, Labor Day banquet and outdoor show, special conferences and briefings, all were to be forgotten. Agreement on foreign policy was to be a postponed luxury.

Mr. Meany wanted that drilled especially into the heads of the hard hat leaders. They, after all, are the infrastructure, the inner mechanism, the bulwark strength of the AFL-CIO -- with perhaps the exception of the steel and ladies garment workers and the machinists.

Thus it was that at the last minute in New York the iron workers leader, Ray Corbett, president of the state AFL-CIO, held a press conference in the Hotel Delmonico to support dove Congressman Richard Ottinger, a Democrat. At the height of the conference, in walked eight or ten iron workers in work clothes, hard hats, tool belts and long wrenches. They were for the dove against the conservatives' Jim Buckley. Then Mr. Corbett, an intimate friend of the original No. 1 hard hat, Peter Brennan, made the rounds of construction sites to emphasize Mr. Meany's point -- elect a pro - labor Democrat and for the moment forget Charley Goodell.

And away across the land dovish, Kennedyian Congressman John Tunney had working for him a 900-member AFL-CIO political committee created expecially to elect this intimate friend of Ted Kennedy.

And who headed it? Jack Henning, leader of California's AFL-CIO State Federation, did. He's a former Assistant Secretary of Labor, former ambassador to New Zealand and only a few weeks ago was discussed by President Nixon and some top AFL - CIO leaders as a possible labor adviser to Secretary of State William Rogers. Mr. Henning springs from the building trades. And vice president of the Labor Committee for Tunney was James S. Lee, president of the AFL-CIO State Building and Construction Trades Council.

Thus it was, mostly across the U.S. Back east, Mr. Meany called the defeat of Senators Gore and Tydings a sharp "disappointment" about which he "felt keenly." No one comes more dovish than Sens. Hartke and Kennedy. Both had overwhelming labor support. Alex Barkan, director of the AFL- CIO Committee on Political Education, spent much time in Indiana fighting, pushing, directing the labor forces for Mr. Hartke. Also backed heavily by labor was dovish Howard Metzenbaum in Ohio and Adlai Stevenson III in Illinois. The list of those who disagree with the AFL-CIO on foreign policy but who received powerful labor support is long.

But first things first. That is what Mr. Nixon and the early morning cadre and its advisers did not quite understand. In the final analysis labor wants allies on the Hill -- not banquets in the White House.

Women's lib

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare says it has imposed temporary financial sanctions in the past three months against 12 colleges and universities accused by a women's liberation group of sex discrimination in hiring.

The withholding of federal contracts for 30-day periods is the first enforcement of a 1968 executive order that forbids federal contractors to discriminate by sex in employment.

A spokesman for the department said Harvard and Michigan were among the institutions involved. He declined to name the rest.

The Women's Equity Action League spurred the federal investigations with charges this summer that about 200 colleges, universities and medical schools discriminate against women in admissions or in staff, hiring, promotion and pay.

DENVER (AP) — George Downer and his wife, Evelyn, twice did their part in fighting crime in a six-month period.

In their automobile they chased and caught a 17-year-old suspect soon after a service station was held up.

Earlier Mrs. Downer, awakened by a noise, saw two men on the roof of a pool hall near her home. She telephoned police while Downer went to investigate. Officers arrived in time to arrest two men.

C. C. A. presents Men of Song

Delta Community Concert Association will present Men of Song in concert at Sikeston junior high school auditorium Sunday at 3:30 p.m.

The Men of Song quartet has been rated by many critics as the finest concert quartet ever assembled. Over the years they have performed over 800 concerts, and the creative partnership of Charles Touchette and Edmond Karlsrud continues to form the guiding force behind this highly successful attraction as it has from its inception. The current program features many new arrangements created especially for the Men of Song by Mr. Touchette.

In addition to enormously popular concert appearances throughout North America, The Men of Song have perofrmed on television, radio, records and in the movies. The key to the success of the quartet is the ability to please every audience with unique programs and special arrangements. Each member of the ensemble brings to each performance the benefit of his own excellent individual musical background and professional experience.

Bob Fitz, tenor, is from the greater New York City area and began his college work at Randolph-Macon College where he was tenor soloist with their Glee Club.

Jack Horton, tenor, counts both Virginia and West Virginia as his home states. He has toured with the Robert Shaw Chorale and the New York Sextet and has appeared in New York's concert halls with the American Opera Society, Music Aeterna and the Camerata Singers.

Guy Waid, baritone, began life as an Oklahoman. Recently he toured as featured performer with the Goldovsky Opera Theatre, the After Dinner Opera Company, and the New York Sextet. Frederick McDonald, bass, is from Middleport, New York. He has toured as bass soloist with the DeCormier Singers and the Whit-Lo Singers and has appeared on TV as a member of the Ed Sullivan Show singing group.

Neil Stannard, accompanist, originally hails from the Los Angeles area where he was a scholarship student at the University of Southern California and from which he was graduated Cum Laude. He has toured and has played in New York's Carnegie Hall and Alice Tully Hall. Recently, Stannard was assistant conductor for the Tricentennial production of "Porgy and Bess" in Charleston, South Carolina.

This is the first of a three concert series for Delta C.C.A.

Father's dentures, dinner rhythm

Dear Ann Landers: First of all, no home town and no initials, please. I've got to get a message across to my father in a roundabout way. I know he reads your column faithfully.

I love my father dearly and I would rather die than hurt his feelings, but he is driving me crazy and he doesn't even know it. Daddy got dentures last year. He refuses to wear denture paste, or whatever that stuff is that holds the plates to the gums. At mealtime the clicking and clacking drives me bananas. When we have guests I want to crawl under the table.

It's been getting worse. Now he clicks and clacks when he talks. Please print this letter and maybe he'll recognize himself. Thanks loads. --No Home Town, No Initials

Dear No: Here's the letter but don't expect him to recognize himself. readers often recognize friends, neighbors and relatives in this column -- but rarely themselves.

Tell your father noisy dentures mean a poor fit. Gums have a tendency to shrink and this is probably what has happened to him. He should go to his dentist for a readjustment -- and while he's there let's hope the dentist gives him a free sample of a good denture paste and suggests that he continue to use it.

Dear Ann Landers: Chris and I have had a good 21 years of marriage. By good I mean better than 90 per cent of the people we know.

Chris tells me over and over how much he loves me and how lucky he is to have me. Yet, rain or shine, sick or well, he must see his mother every solitary day. If he doesn't see her on his way to work, he drops in on his way back. This childish habit has made me feel like a failure. If I mean everything in the world to him, why does he have this ridiculous need for his mother?

I feel like telling him to move in with Mama if she is so important to him. I hinted at this yesterday and he accused me of being mean and petty. I'd like your unbiased opinion. -- Second Place

Dear S.P.: My unbiased opinion is that a daily visit to Mama's IS a bit much but since it's been going on for 21 years you ought to be used to it by now.

Why do you consider yourself a failure? Sonny Boy's compulsion to see his mother every day is his neurosis -- not yours. Any woman who says her marriage is better than 90 per cent of the people she knows should not be complaining to Ann Landers about her husband.

Dear Ann Landers: A good friend of ours is in a difficult position. Her brother's wife died three months ago and he moved into her home to recover from the grief. He left a good job and now says he isn't up to looking for work.

He writes poetry under a fictitious name which is just as well because he uses dirty words in his poems as well as in his conversation. Once when I told him to launder his language he said, "If that word is new to you, it's time you heard it."

This man offends me and I don't want him in our home. His sister insists she can't leave him alone. We hate to exclude her. What do you suggest? -- South Bend

Dear South: Tell your friend to let you know when Ginsberg moves out, so you can start inviting her again.

If you have trouble getting along with your parents ... if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

THE BUCKNER RAGSDALE CO

Mizzou Loses

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Missouri had played two games without a fumble, Saturday, the Tigers made three bobbles in the first half.

As a result, they lost to Oklahoma 28-13 after giving up three touchdowns in the second quarter.

"Isn't it ironic that we got so many in the first half and lost them?" said Missouri Coach Dan Devine.

The defeat was Missouri's third in Big Eight Conference play and eliminated the Tigers from title contention. A year ago, the Bengals shared the championship with Nebraska.

Gregg Pruitt scored two of his three touchdowns for the day in the 21- point second quarter uprising, both on passes from Jack Mildren. One covered 60 yards and the other 34.

Mildren made the other from the one. Pruitt's third touchdown came in the last period on a two- yard run.

Missouri scored once in each the third and fourth quarters. Booker Washington got one on a four- yard romp and quarterback Chuck Roper the other on a two- yard sneak after completing a 22- yard pass to Tyrone Walls.

Missouri had very little punt return game, thanks to Joe Wylie, whose kicking kept the Tigers deep in their own territory.

After Missouri had pulled up to 21-7, Wylie also returned a kickpff 76 yards to the Tigers' two.

Devine said of Wylie:

"He's something."

Devine said Missouri "played awfully well at times. Like when we stopped them four times at the one. But you can't give up that easy touchdown."

Alton Wins JV Title

ALTON — Coach Mitch "the Switch" Haskins Alton junior varsity claimed the championship of its own invitational tournament Saturday night, beating Couch 28-23.

The defensive minded Alton five completed the tournament, holding each opponent to an average 23 points a game.

Danny Heiskell and Bubbles Janic paced the Alton scoring attack with 11 and 10 points respectively while Ed Tombs had 11 for Couch's top effort.

Van Buren defeated Summersville 44-24 for the consolation prize.

FIFTEEN SENIORS completed their high school football careers Friday night as the Sikeston Bulldogs lost to Poplar Bluff 24-13. Title Battles Friday

Only six games are scheduled Friday night in Southeast Missouri's final regular season football evening, but two of those will decide division championships.

Attention centers at Cape Girardeau and Malden where the Northern and Southern division titles will be decided respectively although the host have clinched a share of the honors.

Once beaten Cape Central goes after its third straight Northern division crown when it hosts Perryville while Malden tries to repeat as sole champions of the South when they take on Dexter.

Another battle shapes up at Malden, besides the division title, as Malden's Charlie Barber and Dexter's Terry Gibson will be vieing for the district scoring honors.

Winless Kennett will get its final shot at recording a victory this season when it hosts Caruthersville Friday. The Tribe has dropped 25 straight over a three year period.

In other matches, Poplar Bluff will be at Fox of Arnold, while keeping a ear open for a possible Perryville upset at Cape. Jackson is a Charleston in a North battle that could decide who finished fourth in the division as the Bluejays go into the contest with a 2-2-1 league sltae while Jackson is 2-3.

Friday's clash at Malden will match the top two offenses while pitting the area's second and third rated defensive units. Dexter, with 61 points last week, leads the 18 area teams in offense with 294 points in nine games for a 33 point a game average compared to Malden's 30 point mark. Defensively the Bearcats have yielded but 5.5 points a game while the Green Waves have given up 5.8 a game.

Kennett ended a 12 game search for a touchdown at Dexter last week where it crossed the goal line and lost the distinction of being the only team in the state not to have scored a TD. It has accumulated but 15 points all season while yielding 279.

Chaffee has yielded the most points this season, giving up 292 in eight battles.

South Pemiscot and Delta C-7 finished their campaign's without a victory and sharing third place in the Bootheel division.

Kickers Star

Tom Dempsey had an angel on his shoulder and some magic in his foot.

"We got beaten by a miracle, what else can you say?" was all Detroit Coach Joe Schmidt could say after Dempsey's record 63-yard field goal gave New Orleans a 19-17 National Football League upset Sunday.

The kick on the last play of the game appeared to be heaven-sent for the underdog Saints, who supposedly hadn't a prayer of winning.

The Saints' bull-strong booter had some faith he could make the distance, which bettered the 1956 mark of 56 yards by Baltimore's Bert Rechichar.

"I knew I could kick the ball that far, but whether or not I could kick it straight, kept running through my mind," Dempsey said. "I knew I had to hit the ball awfully hard and would need a little extra time. But the Lions held up perfectly and I got a perfect snap (from Joe Scarpati)."

The field goal had a field day in other NFL games Sunday. Cincinnati's Horst Muhlmann kicked five three-pointers as the Bengals bested Buffalo 43-14; George Blanda's 52-yarder helped Oakland trim Cleveland 23-20; Fred Cox sailed four field goals in Minnesota's 19-10 success over Washington; Mike Mercer's 38-yard boot was the difference in San Diego's 24-21 victory over Denver and Pete Gogolak ripped three as the New York Giants upset Dallas 23-20.

Atlanta and Los Angeles played to a 10-10 tie; Philadelphia won its first game since Nov. 23, 1969 by beating Miami 24-17; San Francisco routed Chicago 37-16; Kansas City slugged Houston 24-9; St. Louis walloped Boston 31-0 and Pittsburgh toppled the New York Jets 21-17 in the other games. Green Bay and Baltimore clash in the Monday night television (ABC) game in Milwaukee's County Stadium.

Dempsey's booming drive cleared the cross-bar by mere inches, and he admitted it took some special ingredients.

"There's so much involved in kicking a 60-yard field goal," he said. "You've got to try and hit the ball as hard as you possibly can and yet, kicking it straight is a hard thing to do.

"It just happened that I hit it right that time and it happened at the right time."

Detroit appeared to have won it when Erroll Mann kicked an 18-yard field goal with 11 seconds to give the Lions a onepoint lead.

But New Orleans' quarterback Billy Kilmer completed a pass to Al Dodd after the Detroit kickoff and Dodd went out of bounds at the Saints' 45 with two seconds left.

Then Dempsey, born toeless on his right kicking foot, did his thing.

Muhlmann drilled field goals of 22, 30,13,36 and 43 yards for Cincinnati, which snapped a six-game slide. Buffalo's O.J. Simpson suffered a severe bruise on his left leg.

Blanda, Oakland's 43-year-old kicking wizard, came through with his game-winner with three seconds left. He earlier relieved Daryle Lamonica at quarterback in the final period and threw a 14-yard touchdown pass and kicked the extra point.

Cox made good on attempts of 44,17, 24 and 42 yards and Dave Osborn spun over from the one as Minnesota stopped Washington.

John Hadl fired three touchdown passes, two to Gary Garrison, and Mercer added the finishing touch for San Diego with his field goal.

Gogolak kicked the New York Giants into contention with his talented toe, then Ron Johnson sparkled in a second-half comeback with two touchdowns. The Giants held off a determined Dallas scoring bid in the closing moments.

Roman Gabriel threw a fouryard scoring strike and David Ray kicked the extra point that pulled Los Angeles into a tie with underdog Atlanta.

Philadelphia had to stave off a fourth-quarter rally by battling Miami. Norm Snead had built a substantial Eagle lead on three TD tosses.

John Brodie completed 21 passes for San Francisco and moved into an elite class of quarterbacks with 2,000 or more lifetime completions. John Unitas, Y.A. Tittle and Sonny Jurgensen are the others.

Linebacker Bobby Bell latched onto a Houston pass and raced 45 yards for a Kansas City touchdown that broke open the rainstorm-slowed game.

MacArthur Lane broke loose on three touchdown runs and they were all the St. Louis Cardinals needed.

Violence At Prep Game

KANSAS CITY (AP) — High school principals were to meet today to seek means of preventing violence at athletic events in Kansas City.

Four persons were wounded by shotgun pellets after a football game between Central and Southeast high schools Saturday night.

Police quoted witnesses as saying six or seven shots were fired before some youths drove away from a parking lot near the football field. Several school officials said the shooting may not have been connected with the game.

Andy Nurski, physical education director, said it may be necessary to schedule all football games for daytime.

Those wounded were Norman Kimbrough, 14, pellets in the left leg; Maurice Dixon, 16, wounds in the face, left arm and shoulder; Don Clemons, 21, wounded in the head, and Cornelius Chambers, 38, face wound.

Kimbrough was hospitalized in satisfacroty condition. Dixon and Clemons were treated at a hospital. Chambers refused treatment.

TRJC Opener Nov. 21

POPLAR BLUFF — Gene Bess, former outstanding high school basketball coach at Oran and Anniston high schools, will be the new head coach of the Three Rivers junior college Raiders this season, succeeding Bob Cradic.

Bess, who assisted Cradic at Trjc last seascn, will have two all Missouri Junior College Athletic Conference stars to build his team around this season in Fred Johnson and Leonard Bishop.

Cradic is the new head coach at Southeast Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau.

"We are not going to have much size," commented Bess, who has lost two of last seasons starters through eligibility and another by graduation.

TRJC has a 22- game schedule along with tournaments at Robert Morris College in Carthage, Ill.; Mineral Area Tournament at Flat River and Region 16 sectional tourney at Florissant Valley in St. Louis.

The biggest player listed on the 13- player Raiders roster is 6- foot- 5 Freshman Linden Hills of Ellington, who is one of eight players listed over 6- foot.

"Size will be our biggest problem this season," Bess noted again, but related "we can make up for this disadvantage with added hustle and desire."

Bess looks forward to the return at mid- season of John Johnson and Roy Fields who shared starting positions last season.

Besides Fred Johnson and Leonard Bishop, Bess also has the services of returning letterman, Paul Hale.

Among the top freshman recruits at TRJC is Larry Lawrence of Sikeston, who Bess noted "could be the key to a successful season." Larry was a last minute addition to the Raiders Roster.

Former Howardville high guard and Missouri All - Stater, Lennies McFerren, is listed on the roster along with Oran standout, Don Evans, Poplar Bluff Star John Del Lawson, former Anniston high all- tater Jim Holdiness along with Neelyville's Larry Wills. Central City, Ky. stars, Steve Reynolds and Joe Stone round out the 15 player roster.

The Raiders open their season at Poplar Bluff high school gymnasium Nov. 21 at 7:30 p.m. against Phillips County of Helena, Ark.

EBB LICENSED HAIR CONSULTANT IN SIKESTON, MO.
TUESDAY, TOMORROW; WILL EXPLAIN HAIR PROBLEMS FREE

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 9. Now is the time to act on this great opportunity. Every hair- worried person (man or woman) should take advantage of this FREE CONSULTATION. Many users have reported not only stopping their hair from thinning... but are really growing more hair.

GUARANTEED

You will be given a written guarantee on a pro - rated basis from the beginning to the end.

Naturally we could not give you such a guarantee if it didn't work.

CAN'T HELP

Male pattern baldness is the cause of a great majority of cases of baldness and excessive hair loss, for which no method is effective. Ebb Hair Specialists cannot help those who are slick bald after years of gradual hair loss.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness seems to "run in the family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of your hair loss.

Many conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are slick Bald and your hair roots are dead you are beyond help. So, if you still have hair on top of your head, and would like to stop hair loss and grow more hair... now is the time to do something about it

FREE CONSULTATION

Just take a few minutes of your time on Tuesday, Nov. 10, and go to the Holiday Inn in Sikeston, Mo. between 1 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. and ask the Desk Clerk for M. J. Hornick, room number.

There is no charge or obligation... all consultations are private, you will not be embarrassed in any way.

Memphis Pros Take Over 2nd

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There were 3½ minutes left in Pittsburgh's American Basketball Association game against Memphis Sunday night when the Condors lost their last hope for catching the Pros.

Memphis won the game 105-96 and if there was any doubt about the result, it evaporated when John Brisker of the Condors got into a fist fight with Memphis' Wendell Ladner and both players were ejected.

Brisker was the Condors' hottest shot and wound up with 25 points- more than one quarter of the teams total.

In other ABA action Sunday, Utah took Indiana 111-103, New York whipped Denver 114-104 and Carolina defeated the Floridians 122-115.

On Saturday, New York whipped Carolina 108-98, Texas topped the Floridians 111-108, Virginia outlasted Denver 138-133 and Kentucky whipped Utah 111-100.

In the NBA Sunday, Seattle defeated Cleveland 111-105, Milwaukee beat Phoenix 125-105, New York defeated Portland 125-113 and Los Angeles topped Baltimore 124-105.

Steve Jones scored 21 points and Gerald Govan pulled down 16 rebounds as the Pros jumped in front of Pittsburgh in the second period and opened the lead to as much as 17 points before halftime and moved into second place in the west division with a 6-5 record, 3½ game behind Utah

Big Red Blank Patriots, 31-0

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals blasted the Boston Patriots 31-0 Sunday in a National Football League game but paused only briefly to savor the success.

Looming more important for the Cardinals, who moved back atop the NFL's National Conference East division standings, is a nationally televised rematch a week from tonight against the Dallas Cowboys in the Cotton Bowl.

As the Cardinals methodically flattened the Pats, the Cowboys lost to the New York Giants 23-20.

The Cardinals are now 6-2 with six games left in the season and the Giants and Cowboys are tied for second at 5-3.

"I always like to have the team we're going to play the next week win," said quarterback Jim Hart somewhat superstitiously.

"The week after we lost to Giants (35-17) we came off ready to unload on people. Now we're having to take on the defending division champion under the same circumstances."

Running back Mac Arthur Lane, who cracked Boston's defenses for three touchdowns, was more optimistic.

"There's no doubt in my mind that if we go out and execute the way we did today and the way we have done we can win," he said.

"It doesn't surprise me at all that we've been winning," Lane added, "because we've been playing our own type of ball. Our defense has been coming along, and that's another feather in our cap."

Lane, who bulled for 71 yards on 14 carries, also pointed at reserve running back Johnny Roland as a source of Cardinal strength.

While regular Cid Edwards nursed a sprained ankle suffered the week before, the 215pound Roland blasted 53 yards on 15 thrusts.

"He's a hell of a blocker," said Lane. "John's a hell of an all-around man."

The Cards bestowed game balls on Roland, who set up the Cardinals' third touchdown with a 36-yard punt return, and cornerback Miller Farr, who intercepted two Boston passes.

Cardinal Coach Charley Winner saluted the Cardinal defense for its second shutout in as many weeks.

"This is the thing a good team is able to do," he exuded, "be consistent."

Inconsistency and lack of blocking were lamented by Boston's John Mazur, whose NFL head coaching debut was marred by a lackluster Patriot performance.

"St. Louis has good backs and good blocking," he said. "We've got good runners, but we don't have anybody who can block."

Coogan's Bluff Revised for TV Showing

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

'Coogan's Bluff," a two-year-old movie that inspired the recent six-part series, "McCloud," on television, will be broadcast on NBC Monday night, Nov. 23. Clint Eastwood plays a deputy sheriff from Arizona in New York to bring back a convicted murderer.

TV viewers who saw the film at theaters may be surprised, even disappointed, when they see the TV edition. The original contained a lot of violence and was pretty explicit about sex.

Herminio Traviesas, who rides shotgun for the network in the area of taste, said that when the studio producing "Coogan's Bluff" offered it to the network, it was rejected as unsuitable.

"They took it back and worked over it," Traviesas said. "They eliminated some objectionable scenes, including one showing some topless performers, and they cut out some of the violence. All, it should be added, without doing anything to slow up the story."

The TV version will be about as long as the original: The studio restored some footage originally dropped to the cutting room floor.

The word now is that Andy Griffith will be the sole survivor of his CBS series when it is reconstituted after midyear. It is expected that he will be presented as the mayor of a small town near Mayberry, N.C.—the "Mayberry, R.F.D." cast will appear in the first episode. He will also acquire a wife, Lee Merriwether; a son; a daughter and a spinster sister.

And Jerry Van Dyke, his costar of "Headmaster," will return to the nightclubs and await discovery by TV—again.

Goals of Special Education Described

W. I. Green, director of special services of the Topeka public schools, had a article on special education for children published in the Topeka State Journal.

Green is the son of Mrs. Leonard Green and the late Leonard Green of Bell City. He has one brother, Bill, living in Bell City, and one sister, Mrs. Albert Painton, a resident of Painton.

The article was one of a series being printed by educators about subjects of interest to parents.

In the article Green speaks of his department and some of its objectives.

Green says:

"Until recently, when teachers, parents and others referred to a need for special education within the public schools it was generally accepted that they were talking about classes or services for retarded youngsters.

"The connotation of the term special education was used simultaneously with the mentally handicapped. Few people outside of the public school system are aware of the scope of programs offered to students needing some specific assistance to maintain an academic record worthy of recognition.

"The department is most hesitant to pin labels on youngsters and the obvious goal is to return them to the regular classroom and provide an educational structure that prepares him for a life within the confines of our adult society. Special classes for retardates emphasize home living skills and all leisure time activities in addition to academic skills.

"Most programs are destined to make the student a future productive citizen. Special classes for the disturbed youngster are semi- clinical in nature with education being presented hand in hand with clinical type treatment so that the youngster is better able to cope with real life problems.

"The homebound youngsters are given an opportunity to continue studies even though they must be absent from the regular classroom. Learning disability teachers function so that additional help is given youngsters at an early age so that he may catch up and hopefully proceed at the regular rate as the peer group."

Pidgin English is spoken by an estimated 50 million people around the world, the National Geographic says. The Bible, technical and medical books all have been translated into it. But though at least three-fourths of the words are derived from English, their pronunciation has so changed that only students of pidgin English can understand it.

Let's hear it for the drunks.

It's not the drink that kills, it's the drunk, the problem drinker, the abusive drinker, the drunk driver. This year he'll be involved in the killing of at least 25,000 people. He'll be involved in at least 800,000 highway crashes. After all the drunk driver has done for us, what can we do for him? If he's sick, let's help him. But first we've got to get him off the road.

Do something. Write the National Safety Council, Dept. A, 425 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Illinois 60611. And your voice will be heard.

Interstate 55 Has New Record

Interstate 55, a Bootheel - based group formerly known as The Collection, has a new single record out on Rolando Records of Memphis. The recording consists of "Can't You Feel The Same," written by Mark Carroll, lead singer for the group, backed with "Twenty Four Years."

This is the third record for the group. As The Collection they relased two singles, "The Good Times Are Over" and "Flying High Wednesday" both of which received mention in Billboard and cashbox magazines.

Recently the group has been appearing at colleges throughout the Mid- South. In August they were featured as "Extra Added Attraction" at the Regional Battle of the Bands in Toledo. They have been frequent guests on Channel 13 "Talent Party" out of Memphis, and are scheduled to make two more appearances on the show this year.

Rolando Records has also released a short film on the group which shows them performing their new single. This film will be aired on television shows such as "Talent Party" in other parts of the country.

Book Review

"...a rich and exhilarating story...
affectionate, wise, earthy, laced with humor and definitely on the side of the human race,"
--Harper's Magazine

A MATTER OF TIME
by Jessamyn West

A MATTER OF TIME is the fifth in a series of six titles by renowned author Jessamyn West to be published by Avon Books. Preceded by EXCEPT FOR ME AND THEE, THE FRIENDLY PERSUASION, LEAFY RIVERS, and CRESS DELAHANTY, it will be followed shortly by THE WITCH DIGGERS.

In A MATTER OF TIME, Miss West portrays two sisters with very different natures--one restrained and dreamy, untouched by passion, and more than once a failure as a wife, and the younger of the two wild and casual about romance in a way her sister could never be. It is only when the older sister is forced by an ironic twist of fate to make a lasting gesture of love that their seemingly irrevocable roles undergo change.

Five Fined

EAST PRAIRIE -- Police Judge J. Marvin Bryan levied $20 fines on Bob Lemons and Jap Matthews and a $25 fine on Earnest Easley each was charged with intoxication.

Doyle Faire and James Cassey, charged with having open beer in the city limits, each paid $25 fines.

28 NEW SPARTANS

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Twenty-eight student-athletes have signed nationai letters of intent for Michigan State football and have enrolled for fall classes.

Coach Duffy Daugherty says 18 of the 28 are Michigan residents. Twenty-seven are freshmen. Quarterback Mike Rasmussen of Fresno, Calif., is a junior college graduate and will have junior class status and play on the varsity this fall.

Red China Throws Off Isolationism

By EDITORIAL RESEARCH REPORTS

NEW YORK — United Nations debate on the admission of Red China is expected to begin about mid-November.

After four years of laying low in international affairs, Red China is bounding back onto the world scene. Not only has Peking agreed to exchange envoys with Canada, but in recent weeks the Maoist regime has taken steps to broaden contacts with Western Europe, Africa, the Middle East and Latin America.

And the Chinese have abandoned the disdainful attitude they have shown to the United Nations during the 20 years of vain attempts by their supporters to get them into the world organization. "China's friends abroad have lately spoken, with obvious encouragement from Peking, about the need for Chinese representation at the U.N.," reports the FAR EASTERN ECONOMIC REVIEW.

Once again, the attempt to gain Red China's admission is likely to fail. But the vote will probably be closer than ever. Algerian Ambassador Mohammed Yazid, a supporter of the move, expects the resolution calling for the expulsion of Nationalsist China and the admission of Peking to be defeated by only three or four votes. Last year, it was voted down 56 to 48, with 21 abstentions.

Writing in FOREIGN AFFAIRS, L. LaDany, a long - time China watcher, sees some sign of greater pragmatism in Peking's dealings with other nations. "The absolute worship of Mao as the head of world communism is no longer a condition ... for friendly relations with China," he states. During most of the cultural revolution, China had only one ambassador abroad -- in Cairo. Now about half the 50 or so ambassadorial posts abroad have been filled and the rest are expected to be operating at full strength shortly.

Within the last few months, Peking has played host to cabinet - level visitors from France, Tanzania, Zambia, Romania, the Sudan and Congo (Brazzaville). An agreement for a Chinese - financed and built 1,000-mile, $400 million railroad through Zambia and Tanzania was signed. Technical level missions from Poland and East Germany signed new trade agreements, the first since the cultural revolution.

While China and the Soviet Union are still wary of each other, and have large forces along their frontiers, the level of acrimony has lowered. Relations with North Korea have been improved and overtures made to end tensions with India resulting from the border clashes of 1962. A gesture was even made to the United States by the release of Bishop James Walsh after he had served 12 years in jail.

Some China watchers, such as O. Edmund Clubb, believe China is following a policy of moderation in hopes of gaining support on the world scene in case of attack by the United States or the Soviet Union. "With China's security imperiled, the Maoist regime would in all probability prove ready to assume China's U.N. seat to gain whatever additional protection its new relationship might offer," Clubb writes.

President Nixon, in his far-ranging State of the World message last February 18, said the Chinese "should not remain isolated from the international community." While he added that Washington would still "maintain its treaty commitment" to Nationalist China, there is increasing talk of a "two-China" policy.

Under both Democratic and Republican presidents, the United States has been the major supporter of the move to declare the admission of Red China to the U.N. as "an important question," requiring a two-thirds majority. This has effectively blocked a vote in Peking's favor. Still unresolved, however, is just how long the United States will be able to prevail as China looks outward.

Some people apparently make a map of where they buried the hatchet.

For some books, even speed-reading is a waste of time.

IN THE MIDDLE with Dan Whittle

Self, I said:

"'Dan' go 'forth' and change channels."

This was after witnessing Jack's jogging techniques to pure exhaustion. He ran more than any politician I have seen.

After seeing him "ruin" my TV enjoyment I wanted to switch worse than fight, but ol' Jack out-jogged me in my trek from channel 12 to channel 6. It seemed he had "runs" and re-"runs" across every television station within sighting distance.

Knowing I had lost the race I decided to read for a bit. I had read everything in the house, so again I addressed myself, but his time in old English:

"Sally ye, Dan, forth and get out your new Webster's unabridged dictionary."

I feel a need to know new words. I flipped dictionary pages until coming to the "s" segment. In that section I came across the word sally, which can be a name, Sally, or a word meaning action, such as sally forth, rush forth, etc.

I was doomed in my attempt to relieve my mind of politics. This brought me right back to Jack, who has a wife (you guessed it) named Sally.

Consider the names mentioned henceFORTH:

Mr. and Mrs. John "Jack" "Sally" "Dan"forth.

Another part of Jack Danforth's campaign comes to mind - a bit painfully, I might add. Jack, I could have cared less about how you met Sally. To put me through this time after time was not considerate. How would you like to hear again and again the circumstances surrounding the time I met my wife? Undoubtedly, Jack, this would drive you "Fran"tic. Yes, John Danforth, my wife's name is Fran.

Speaking of John, I will excuse myself at this time.

A Desert In Missouri

ROCK RIDGES AND SANDBARS RECREATE CONDITIONS AND LIFE OF SOUTHWEST

John Madson in the Missouri Conservationist

The flat sand of the desert stretched away to the south, silent beneath the blazing July sun.

There was no sign of life in this glaring wasteland until, without warning, a tiger leaped from the sand in front of us. It stopped 30 feet away, turned and faced us, and waited for us to make the next move.

We just kept on walking toward it. We're pretty brave when the desert is a Mississippi river sandbar, the tiger is a half - inch tiger beetle, and there's a cold jug of lemonade in the trees yonder. Yet, that sandbar was a sure 'nough desert. And there is no denying that the tiger beetle is as tigery as they come.

There's no beetle faster on its feet, and it can fly faster than it can run. Strong, agile, and forever on the prowl, the tiger beetle is a deadly hunter. Even in its larval form, this beetle lives in a burrow in the sand, its huge head blocking the entrance and powerful jaws extending upward to seize any unwary bug that blunders into the trap.

Some tiger beetles like hot, dusty roadsides, or hard, dry plowed ground, or beaten paths. In other words, it's usually a desert creature — for those places are deserts just as surely as the Mojave or Sahara. It's a just a matter of size.

Missouri has many deserts. Rock ledges, cliffs, and high sandbars are all little deserts, even in this humid climate. If a place doesn't get enough water, or if atmospheric conditions promote rapid water loss, it will become desert.

If this condition lasts long enough, the little scrap of Sahara will begin to support its own special creatures.

In Jefferson County there is a three-mile ledge of naked sandstone. This special desert is inhabited by a special set of "ledge creatures" that have been studied by Dr. Owen Sexton of Washington University since about 1960. One study, just completed, was of the collared lizards there.

Also called the "mountain boomer," this 10-inch lizard is a ferocious little meat-eater that is built like a tiny racing dinosaur. It's a vest-pocket Tyrannosaurus that can run swiftly on its hind legs, will challenge a man when startled, and will usually latch onto you when handled. (Let him dangle a moment, and he'll drop off; shake your hand in pain, and he'll just bite harder.)

The collared lizard likes rocky areas and hot, open slopes. The reptile is rare in heavy Ozark woodlands, but is found in some other Missouri deserts — such as the rock ridges of Washington State Park.

That Jefferson County ledge also has some flatheaded snakes — small, brown, gentle "rear-fanged" snakes that have venom, but aren't big enough to harm man. Other ledge animals are the native Missouri scorpion and tarantula. Most Missourians don't know their state is blessed with such critters, and would probably be just as happy not knowing it. But the creatures are there on that sun-baked ridge, sharing their personal desert with gnarled juniper and prickly pear cactus, and never leaving for the moist, shady forests nearby.

The desert conditions on the ledge are caused by its inclination toward the sun. Facing southwest, and tilted at right angles to the sun, the ridge receives the sun's full intensity. Sunlight strikes such places with several times the force felt by level ground. The more obliquely the sun strikes hillsides, the cooler and moister the soils there, and the less likely that they are desert.

Certain bluffs along the Missouri and Mississippi rivers catch the full brunt of the sun. High, facing west, and unprotected by other land features, they take the full glare of our long July afternoons without shade or mercy, and are seared by hot summer winds. The slopes and edges of these highlands may have a few struggling blackjack oaks and cedars, but they are usually dry prairie with little bluestem, prickly pear, and Spanish bayonet.

There was a time during the Mesozoic era, a hundred million years ago, when Missouri was a vast desert inhabited by huge dinosaurs. Today we have mini - deserts inhabited by mini -monsters. But they're no less interesting for their lack of size — and no less genuine.

Bond Margin Tops For Republican

ST. LOUIS (AP) — When Christopher S. "Kit" Bond beat incumbent Democrat State Auditor Haskell Holman in Tuesday's election his margin of more than 200,000 votes set a record.

Records at the municipal reference library at St. Louis City Hall show no Republican winner of a statewide office in this century had a greater plurality over an opponent, although some have won by a greater percentage of the vote.

Bond got 715,984 votes to Holman's 515,432.

Nixon-Agnew Campaign Efforts Reap Few Gains

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite scattered successes, there is little evidence the strenuous campaign efforts of President Nixon and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew did more than raise money and morale for the GOP in last week's elections.

They even may have caused damage, driving dissident Democrats back into party ranks this year and creating bitterness in the moderate wing of the GOP likely to take the form of cries for Agnew's replacement on the 1972 ticket.

Only 18 of the 52 Senate and governor candidates for whom Nixon and Agnew campaigned in 38 states were elected last Tuesday.

Many of those who won probably would have been elected without any help from Nixon or Agnew. In addition, a dozen Republican governors aided by one or the other were thrown out of office.

Govs. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, Ronald Reagan of California, William G. Milliken of Michigan and Francis W. Sargent of Massachusetts were re-elected generally on their own.

Of these, the only state in which Nixon and Agnew actually campaigned was California. Although Reagan won a second term, by a reduced margin, the major object of the Nixon-Agnew push, Sen. George Murphy, was trounced by Democrat John V. Tunney, and Republicans lost the legislature.

Many Democratic leaders feel the aggressive GOP "law and order" push, and Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's election eve television appearance to answer GOP charges, did more to unify the Democratic party than anything in the past two years.

In two states, Connecticut and Tennessee, where both Nixon and Agnew appeared, the Republicans captured both the governorship and a Senate seat from the Democrats.

However, the disintegration of Connecticut party organization, a divisive Senate primary, Sen. Thomas J. Dodd's disruptive independent candidacy and a weak gubernatorial campaign presaged Democratic defeat before Nixon and Agnew ever campaigned there.

And in Tennessee, increasingly Republican in recent years, a business scandal revolving around the Democratic gubernatorial nominee and the rising opposition to Sen. Albert Gore evidenced by his weak primary showing were significant forerunners of the GOP victory.

In Maryland, Republican J. Glenn Beall Jr.'s victory over Sen. Joseph D. Tydings was mainly due to antagonism to the senator, and, in Ohio, Republican Robert Taft Jr.'s win in the face of a Democratic gubernatorial triumph is credited largely to his famous family name.

Only in New York, where Nixon and Agnew never really campaigned directly, can the Republican leaders claim success.

Their efforts to undercut Republican Sen. Charles E. Goodell because of his anti-Nixon votes on key issues had the intended double effect of making it respectable for Republicans to support Conservative nominee James Buckley while driving some liberals to Goodell from Democrat Richard Ottinger.

Despite the short-range success in New York, Nixon and Agnew probably have bought themselves a peck of long-range trouble. The resentment stirred by Nixon's and Agnew's efforts among liberal Republicans in New York is likely to carry over into 1972 in a state where a sharply divided and leaderless Democratic party went for Hubert H. Humphrey in 1964 over Nixon.

So much for the successes.

In state after state, where the national administration had recruited GOP candidates, campaigned strenuously for them and provided heavy financing, Republicans were unsuccessful in efforts to dislodge Democratic senators. And a number of House seats vacated by GOP Senate candidates were won by Democrats.

In North Dakota, Nevada, Wyoming and Utah, where Nixon and Agnew recruited GOP contenders, Democratic Sens. Quentin Burdick, Howard M. Cannon, Gale McGee and Frank E. Moss equaled or bettered their 1964 winning percentages. The congressional seats held by the GOP Senate candidates in North Dakota, Wyoming and Utah went Democratic.

Agnew appeared at least once in each of the states, and Nixon campaigned in all but Wyoming.

In Texas, where Republican optimism was evident during a two-stop swing by the President six days before the election, Democrats held the governorship and a Senate seat by comfortable margins.

Elsewhere in the South, the Nixon-Agnew effort proved futile.

In Florida, where the two made six appearances between them in an effort to put the GOP back together after a bitter primary, Democrats swept the key races.

In North Carolina, where both campaigned in an effort to aid the GOP's fight to gain congressional and legislative seats, Democrats kept their House majority, added to their strength in the legislature.

In South Carolina, Georgia and Arkansas, Democrats won governors contests despite Agnew campaign appearances.

In New York and Massachusetts, GOP Govs. Rockefeller and Sargent made it clear earlier in the campaign they did not want any help from Agnew.

In Ohio, Taft asked for an appearance by Nixon and got it, while making clear he didn't think Agnew would help. The vice president stayed out.

In Minnesota, where Nixon repaid a political debt to GOP Senate nominee Clark Macgregor with a late-in-the campaign speech, Republicans passed the word they didn't want Agnew, who earlier in the year had helped them raise $1 million.

His fund-raising efforts, and the morale boost from highly partisan speeches before highly partisan audiences, were the one acknowledged Agnew plus in the campaign. He raised some $3 million this fall, a similar amount earlier in the year.

Driver Sought In Hit and Run Death

POPLAR BLUFF — An elderly Poplar Bluffian was killed Friday night in what police believe was a hit- and -run traffic accident involving two vehicles.

The victim was Willie Miller, described in his 60s, who resided at Velma Street and Railroad Avenue and received his mail at 928 Velma St.

City Patrolmen Lee Hathaway and Wayne Pruett reported that Miller apparently was walking south on Railroad Ave., alongside the Joe Wiseman and Sons property when he was struck by a 1963 Chevrolet.

Miller's body was knocked 15 feet over a fence and pile of salvage about five feet high. The Chevrolet then spun out of control and rammed into the fence and junk.

William Dugger, 1911 South 11th St., reported the wrecked car to police at 7:24 p.m. Hathaway and Pruett found Miller's body on arrival at the scene. A two- thirds empty half-pint of whiskey was found on the front seat of the car, according to Sheriff Clyde Hendrix and the State Trooper Robert Trotter, who aided police in the investigation.

A short time after the wreck was found, 18-year- old Debbie Bounds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gid Bounds of Wappapello, went to the police station and reported the 1963 Chevrolet was stolen from the 500 block of Cedar Street. The car was licensed to Jewel Bounds, the girl's mother.

The second vehicle found wrecked at the scene was a 1961 Chevrolet licensed to Dennis R. Trotter of 519 A Poplar St., Poplar Bluff, and 3833 Botanical Ave., St. Louis.

No one was in or around either vehicle when officers arrived.

An investigation was contining today in an effort to determine who was driving the vehicles. Police said physical evidence at the scene indicated the older model car may have been chasing the vehicle that killed Miller.

Miller's body was removed to the Frank- Cotrell Funeral Home. He is believed survived by four children, of Mississippi and Chicago.

Coroner Larry Cotrell said an inquest is planned in the case.

Gas Additive Proves Genetic Hazard to Mice

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Massachusetts researcher says new evidence from experiments with mice suggests that men who breathe a chemical used as an additive in leaded gasoline may be unable to father healthy children.

Dr. Samuel S. Epstein, of the Children's Cancer Research Foundation in Boston, said the chemical -- trimethyl phosphate -- is used in leaded gasoline to stop spark-plug fouling caused by the lead. He said some of the additive is released, while unburned, through a car's exhaust.

Epstein said Thursday the chemical apparently caused a mutation in the male sperm. The result was males treated with the chemical and then mated with untreated females were unable to produce embryos capable of living outside the mother's womb.

Epstein said the chemical had been administered to mice only by injections or orally but added there's a "good likelihood" similar findings will be achieved in experiments where mice inhale the chemical.

Unusual Group

The group of men known as the "Knights of the Golden Horseshoe" consisted of the gentlemen who accompanied Gov. Alexander Spotswood of Virginia on his journey to the Blue Ridge in the summer of 1716. Spotswood's companions were presented with miniature golden horseshoes.

'The Amateur Hour' Bows out As Longest-Running TV Show

NEW YORK (AP) — The years went by but the scenario remained the same. The hoofers, crooners and comedians performed frantically for the audience's approval, then basked in the applause that brought them one step nearer to the elusive world of "show biz."

Ted Mack's Original Amateur Hour, the oldest program on network television, had emerged unscathed in the changeover from radio to television, survived two wars and settled into a comfortable routine while the rest of television sought desperately to understand the taste of its audience.

The show finally died, quietly. CBS said Monday it had been canceled, when it was not renewed by the sponsor, Geritol.

The Amateur Hour had not been seen since late September, but its disappearance was not noticed because of a number of National Football League doubleheaders that preempted its Sunday slot.

For nearly 23 years—36 years counting the time on radio—a parade of performers presented their routines to audiences across America.

Most remained amateurs, even if they won. But over the years some of the entertainment world's most luminous personalities had their first national exposure on the show—and a lot of them went away losers.

There was skinny Frank Sinatra, a member of the "Hoboken Four" quartet. They were on in 1935, and lost. Ann-Margret appeared in 1957 but the audience gave its vote to a South American who played a tune on a laurel leaf.

Some winners who went on to professional success included comedian Jack Carter, 1941; singers Pat Boone, 1953, and Teresa Brewer, 1938. A fat 12-year-old soprano named Maria Kalogeropoulos made the winners circle in 1935. She went on to greater operatic fame as Maria Callas.

Over the years, more than 25,000 acts were presented—barber-shop quartets, dancers, standup comics and specialty acts. They often had unpronounceable names and came from immemorable places.

The ones who made national television were already survivors of a stringent screening process. Three units of talent scouts crisscrossed the country constantly looking for new talent. Mack estimated that only one out of 25 applicants made the TV grade.

At auditions in Nashville, the scouts turned down a young man with an unusual singing style. His hair kept falling in his eyes and he wouldn't stand still. His name was Elvis Presley.

The show was started in 1934 by Major Edward Bowes when he was the publicity-minded director of a Broadway movie house. It became a pioneering program on network radio in 1935 and within a year was the rage.

When Bowes died in 1946, Mack, a saxophone player who had been his talent supervisor, took over.

He presided over the first television broadcast, on Jan. 18, 1948 over the four-station Dumont television network—six months before Ed Sullivan's variety hour made its on-camera debut.

CBS long tolerated the relatively low ratings of the show—10 million viewers—because of its low cost. "We're devoted to the show," a CBS executive said in 1968. "We wouldn't lose it for the world."

But the Amateur Hour is gone and the viewer's nervous empathy for a star in the making can now be replaced by the animal joy of seeing the middle linebacker crash through for a crunching tackle.

Ripping Off

SOME AMERICANS are doing their Christmas shoplifting early. Shoplifting has become a major problem for the nation.s retailers who claim the wave of stealing and employee thefts cost stores across the country nearly $3 billion last year. And the losses get passed on to honest customers who must pay higher prices for the goods they buy.

F.B.I. Director J. Edgar Hoover has called shoplifting "the fastest - growing larceny in the country." Cases of shoplifting have tripled since 1959 -- and retailers claim prices could be cut 15 percent if it were not for thefts. Professional thieves have taken a good part of the loot, but drug addicts, store employees, teenagers and housewives are also helping strip counters.

"This has been the worst year retailers in the Washington area have ever had concerning the problem of thievery," says Edward H. Selonick, retail bureau chairman of the city's Board of Trade. He reports that shoplifting has reached as high as 7.7 per cent of retail sales. "We.re talking about an estimated $85 to $150 million a year," Selonick adds.

SOME OF THE REPORTS show the audacity of shoplifters is almost unlimited. Police in one Chicago suburb arrested a 20- year- old woman for shoplifting in an expensive department store. "She wore a maxicoat and not a stitch underneath," said a detective. "She was going to get a whole new wardrobe from the skin out." Inflation has also hit shoplifting with the F.B.I. reporting the average theft now amounts to $28.

A team of shopper - watchers kept an eye on about 500 persons, selected at random, who entered a midtown Manhattan department store not too long ago. One out of every ten walked out with merchandise that was not paid for. One Washington retailer told Editorial Research Reports that he had to replace most of his staff after one sale because they were "practically giving the stuff away to their friends."

Security men say drug addicts who steal to support a $100 -a -day habit must lift from $800 to $1,000 worth of merchandise to get that from the sale of stolen goods. A new group of shoplifters has appeared in localities catering to the nation's youth -- such as Georgetown in Washington and Greenwich Village. Some New Left types reportedly ' rip off" merchandise not only because they want it and can't pay for it; they claim stealing will also help to destroy the establishment.

TO COMBAT the wave of shoplifting, retailers are abandoning their reluctance to prosecute shoplifters. Some stores have published announcements of the get tough policy. "there was a time when we used to talk softly about shoplifting," declares Howard Haimowitz, an executive of the National Retail Merchants Association. "Now we say more arrests and more convictions."

Greater emphasis is also being placed on security. Selonick has stated that some Washington area stores maintain security forces "as large or larger than some of our smaller suburban communities." Mirrors and television cameras have been put in place to detect shoplifters. Some stores have installed plastic tags on each piece of merchandise which set off electronic alarms if taken outside without being removed by clerks with special tools.

But shoplifting is part of the malaise of our time, according to some observers. Says Washington Police Chief Jerry Wilson: There is "a myth in the middle class community that shoplifting isn't a crime."

The Right To Kill

By DAVID LAWRENCE

IN CIVILIAN LIFE, we call it "murder." In International life, we call it "war." Lloyd George once called war by its most fitting name — "organized savagery."

Most of the nations of the world in 1928 signed the Kellogg-Briand treaties outlawing war as an instrument of national policy. Efforts have been made to control the manufacture and distribution of arms. It has been contended that in international as well as individual disputes the mere possession of a pistol leads to the possibility of its use in a moment of hot temper.

Whe have the same problem today that we have always had. Nations with industrial resources can make all kinds of weapons which can kill multitudes of people. The explosive shell of field artillery has been superseded in destructive power by the bombs of air artillery. Naval guns are more deadly than ever before.

Scientific progress goes along with industrial wealth and mechanical capacity. Gradually over the years weapons have come into use which not only can destroy armies and navies but can inflict destruction on the lives and homes of noncombatants.

Death - making instruments may be more terrible than ever before, but have the reports of what the atomic bomb once did erased our impulse to use it for more war and more destruction? If the right to use the atomic bomb is sanctioned, then the right to invent weapons that will deal a so- called merciful death — Indeed, as quick and instantaneous as the lethal chambers of Buchenwald — is also sanctioned.

We need not advocate complete disarmament, desirable as such a state of human society might theoretically seem to be. We need only to insist that, if wars must come, they be confined to armies and navies and air forces directed at strictly military installations. Has the world or the Security Council an ample force to command respect for the decisions of the United Nations? Whatever that force be, it can be readily sanctioned as necessary to suppress the dictators or the outlaws who manage to get possession of the means whereby whole peoples can be controlled or rendered helpless to overthrow such criminals.

What mankind needs in the world community is more emphasis on how to remove the sources of international friction and domestic unrest — usually economic — and more attention to the means whereby the few among us acquire power to control the livelihood and destinies of the many. War can never be outlawed if the internal machinery whereby war criminals get possession of a nation's armies and navies is of no concern to international society.

We should be putting forth all our energies today toward ways and means of curbing the selfishness and greed and brutishness and cruelty that rises within the body politic everywhere rather than to assume that war is inevitable and cannot be cured.

Mankind has refused to concede that certain diseases were or are incurable. We are still struggling to find the answer to many epidemics, but the span of life has been consistently prolonged by our discoveries.

But we are under obligation to use every minute of our time between now and such date to persuade mankind that the right to kill criminals for disciplinary purposes in a world society can and must be delegated to a world tribunal and that if this principle be whole = heartedly accepted, no nation will need to make atomic bombs for war. Along with this, however, must go the pledge to submit all questions or controversies, including those of a so - called non - legal nature, to the world court and to agree to abide by its decisions.

America must take the lead also in expressing a willingness to be governed by the rule of conscience which, on the one hand, commands us to behave justly toward others and, on the other, commands us to accept the verdict of our fellowmen when we have been adjudged in the wrong.

We must not uphold the right to kill. We must argue instead for the development of the more important power of self - control and self - restraint. This must prevail throughout the world in order that a greater force than any bomb ever can possess shall be created — the force that will influence the minds of men to deal with each other internationally without resort to the threat of physical coercion.

If man will first conquer the impulse to vengeance, to excessive pride, to lust, to envy, to vanity, and to self - glory, he will find a way to compel respect for the collective will of human society.

U.N. Members Urged to Push POW Release

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — The United States appealed Friday to U.N. member countries to bring pressure on North Vietnam to grant immediate repatriation to all American war prisoners so entitled under the 1949 Geneva convention.

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D.-R.I., a member of the U.S. delegation to the General Assembly, made the plea in the 127-nation Social Committee.

About a dozen wives and other relatives of the prisoners listened in the gallery as Pell stressed the bipartisan nature of the issue in the United States.

'It is no secret that many Americans -- I among them -- have questioned the wisdom of the Vietnam war," he said.

"But I must say that in my opinion the mistreatment by the North Vietnamese of our captured United States military men have unified those who support and those who oppo the Vietnam war--hawks ar doves alike -- and encourag only those who would prolo and even enlarge the war.

"I would ask all nations wh may do so to assure Hanoi th those of us who opposed th policies which produced th capture of the prisoners are passionately concerned th their rights be respected as ar others."

He said nearly 1,600 U. citizens are listed as captured missing in Southeast Asia.

New Guidelines Set for Calling Up Reserves

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department, under new guidelines issued for calling up the reserves, says it will call up first the best-trained units from as wide a geographic area as possible.

The guidelines for the reserves and National Guard are intended to avoid problems encountered in previous mobilizations.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird announced lastAugust that guard and reserve forces would be used rather than draftees to expand the active forces in any future emergencies requiring rapid buildups.

Under the new directives, only units needed to meet the country's defense needs will be activated.

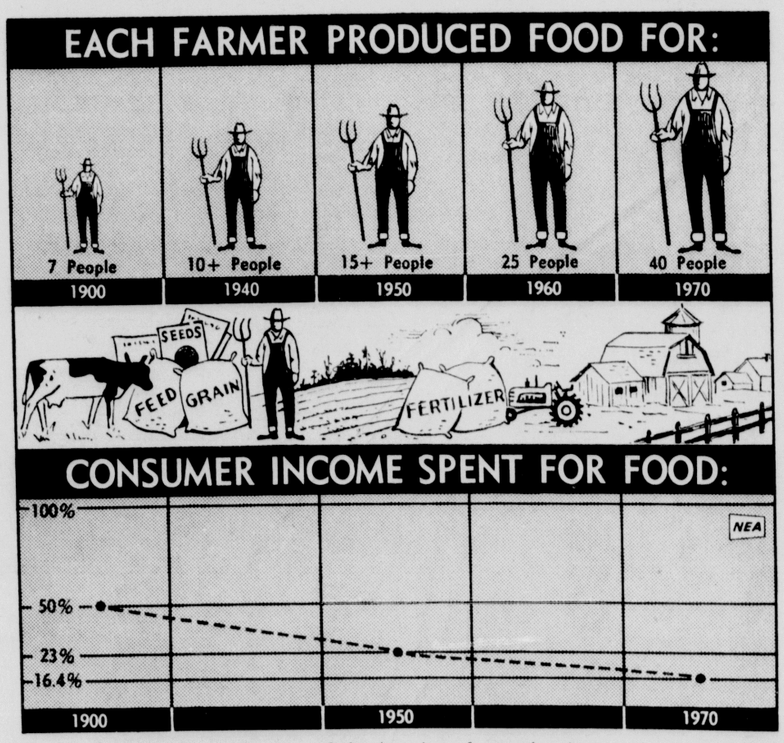
SOMETHING NEW in Christmas decorations. These cookies look good enough to eat, but they're only to look at. Susan Woodward of Philadelphia created a new kind of Christmas ornament—painted cookies, made of special dough which hardens so they'll last for generations.



In the past 70 years, productivity of the American farmer has increased nearly six-fold, according to figures supplied by Massey-Ferguson. In 1900, each farmer was feeding himself and six others. This year the figure has edged over 40. While amount of farm labor required to fill American grocery baskets has gone down, so has percentage of total income Americans have paid for food. At turn of the century, average American family paid 50 per cent of its income for food. Percentage dropped to 23 in 1950s and figure for this year is 16.4 per cent. Farm mechanization is part of the reason, plus better seed, fertilizers and management.

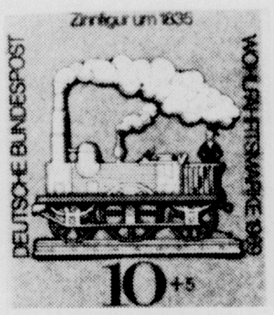
Stamps In The News

AP Newsfeatures

By SYD KRONISH

Miniature tin figures depicting nostalgic scenes of the past appear on a new set of stamps from West Germany. The tin figures themselves are a reminder of a by-gone era highlighting the art of the tinsmith in Germany, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency.



Depicted are a man with caged birds, a steam locomotive, a coach replete with coachmen, maiden feeding a chicken, a grocery woman, at her counter, a postman on horseback blowing his posthorn, a gardener watering a potted plant, a soldier on horseback. Each of the stamps also bears the dates the tin figures were made.

Also issued by West Germany was a 30 pfennig stamp honoring the "1969 Philatelist Congress." The design of the stamp features a 3 kreuzer stamp issued by Bavaria on Jan. 1, 1867 and picturing the Bavarian coat-of-arms.

A new, enlarged edition of the U.S. Liberty Album has just been published by H.E. Harris & Co. The album provides nearly 3,000 illustrations of virtually every postage stamp issued by the U.S. including airmails, special deliveries and postage dues. It sells for $5.95. Harris also has produced a new edition of its Traveler album designed for the beginner. It costs $3.50.

Both albums may be purchased directly from H.E. Harris & Co., Box K, Boston, Mass. 02117.

The Apollo 11 flight to the moon certainly impressed every nation on earth. Even countries behind the Iron Curtain have heaped praise on the U.S. feat and have issued stamps paying tribute to the men and the flight. The latest of these communist nations to philatelically honor Apollo 11 are Mongolia and Poland.

Two non-communist nations have issued their Apollo 11 issues — Paraguay and the Republic of Korea.

Also stirred by the moon trip of the U.S. astronauts is the interest in a forthcoming auction of the famous Ellington Rocket Mail collection by Harmer, Rooke & Co. in New York. The collection compiled by Jesse T. Ellington includes such rarities as the 1958 Point Mugu cover. Philatelic material from 19 countries will be sold, say the auctioneers.

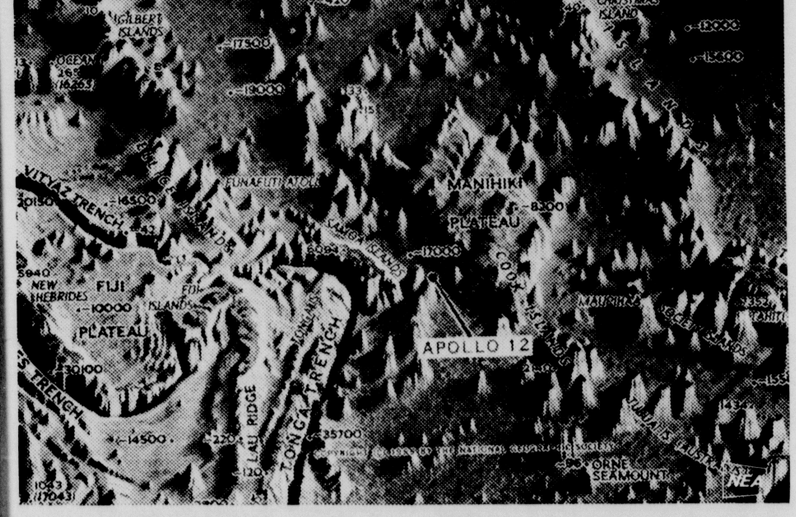
Great Britain, which always had a most efficient postal service has just started its new Post Office Corporation and its computerized system. Four new stamps honoring the occasion have been issued. All the stamps are double the normal size.

At the same time, the British colony of Abu Dhabi — the little oil rich country in the Middle East — issued a stamp honoring the 3rd anniversary of the ascension of Sheikh Zayid Bin Sultan Al Nahayan.

In comparison to the modernized postal set-up in Britain, the post office in Abu Dhabi recently had a staff of two employees.



MOON'S SURFACE? On the contrary, it's a contour map of the ocean floor in the vicinity of the Apollo 11 and 12 splashdowns. Remarkably, the two moon missions have helped scientists of the Naval Oceanographic Office (NAVOCEANO) discover four volcanoes and a volcanic ridge on the sea floor thousands of feet below and a few miles away from the astronauts' landing sites. Largest of the submerged peaks is a 9,600-foot volcano, 25 miles across at its base. Since it is about 18,000 feet below the surface, however, it represents no hazard to navigation.

NOTICE

Beginning on November 16, 1970 Missouri Pacific Railroad Company will conduct the business for the towns of Oran and Morley through a mobile agent who will travel out of Charleston which is his "base station." He will call on each regular customer at his place of business. Those patronizing Missouri Pacific irregularly and desiring the mobile agent to call on them should ask their telephone operator for toll- free Enterprise number 32006 which will connect them with the base station at Charleston. Missouri Pacific will maintain a contract drayman in Oran and Morley. Any patrons desiring any information regarding local drayman, or any other request or problem should call the same toll- free Enterprise number.

We are confident our service under the Mobile Agency plan will be satisfactory, but if there are any complaints, they should be addressed to the Secretary of the Public Service Commission, Jefferson State Office Building, Jefferson City, Missouri (65101).

Sew a Party Secret

By NANCY WILTON

Does your clothes allowance seem to dwindle away right before your eyes? Did you last hint to your mother that you absolutely needed something new for a party bring you talk about the economy and saving, not spending? Then now's the time to discover the magic of sewing for yourself. And you can start with something that's fun and exciting -- a party skirt.

There are so many amazingly simple patterns. They're easy to follow and easy to learn from. And one of the easiest to start on, believe it or not, is a wild and wonderful party skirt.

Decide what you want -- mini, midi, maxi -- it makes no difference. Then go to your local department store or sewing center and look for the simple, easy -to -sew patterns. They usually have a separate part of the pattern book all to themselves. A few seams and a hem is all most of them take. Pick your pattern, and then start on the most exciting part of the search, the fabric hunt.

THERE'S A WORLD TO CHOOSE FROM' AND YOU CAN END UP WITH A REAL ORIGINAL' Velvets, brocades, glittery fabrics, shaggy ones, quilted prints. Take your pick. Or choose a vivid plain color and go wild with trim. The notions department will give you a hundred ideas. Felt, braid, buttons. You could cover a skirt with buttons, right from the button box at home. Or sew on braid in a design of your own creation. The possibilities are as big as your own imagination. You'll find, too, that you can make many variations from just one pattern, simply by doing it in different fabrics, and in different lengths.

Of course, after your first attempt is a smash hit, you'll probably want to go on and on. Find someone who sews and ask for help with more complicated patterns. Or take some lessons at a local sewing center. You may end up being the best-dressed girl in town, and your clothes money will stretch farther than you ever believed possible. What's more, sewing will give you lots of fun, and bring you plenty of compliments. That should be pretty easy to take.

Mrs. J.P. Johnson of Route One Is on the Sick List

50 years ago
November 9, 1920

Route One -- Mrs. J.P. Johnson is on the sick list.

Commerce -- W.U. Post had business in Cape Girardeau Tuesday.

J.F. Cox was confirmed as alderman in Ward 3 at a special meeting of the Sikeston City Council Monday night, to succeed W.E. Hollingsworth, who had resigned as alderman in that ward a week previous to that time. Mr. Cox has served that ward as alderman in the past and was a good one.

Last Saturday afternoon on the local high school field the Sikeston Bulldogs sent the Cairo Egyptians down to easy defeat in a one-sided football game by the score of 40 to 7.

We have the word of Loomis Mayfield that a 101-pound bullfrog was shot yesterday by a local hunting party out after birds. To us the story sounds very reasonable. One hundred pounds of bull and the rest frog.

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week proved to be real moving days for employes of the Scott County Motor Co., for several years housed in a building on Kingshighway. The firm is moving into larger, modern quarters in the Moore building on Malone avenue, formerly occupied by Boyer's Garage. Earl Johnson, manager, stated that moving of stock, fixtures and shop equipment would be completed this week and that the company planned its "grand opening" in new quarters for November 22.

We are sorry to report that John Powell is suffering from an infected arm. He was some better Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Foley and children are moving from Cape Girardeau to Sikeston, where they will make their home. They have purchased one of the A.F. Lindsay bungalows on Dorothy street. Mr. Foley has an interest in the Ford automobile business in Sikeston and Mrs. Foley is a Sikeston girl and Sikestonians are glad to welcome them as permanent residents.

Clyde Poe, Scott County coroner, was elected president of the Sikeston Kiwanis Club in an election held at the meeting last night at the Cottage Drive Inn.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Lee of Morley observed their 55th wedding anniversary on November 4.

Miss Pat Letsinger, a student at Central College, Fayette, was pledged to Delta Phi Omega sorority this week.

Stork Club. Mr. and Mrs. Billy Moore of Dexter are parents of a baby girl born November 6 at the Delta Community Hospital.

A baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. George Foote of Bertrand on November 6.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Call of Dexter are parents of a daughter born Sunday at Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape.

Charles H. Fischer, 75, grandfather of R.L. (Dick) Watkins, jr., of Sikeston, died at his home in St. Louis yesterday, it was learned here today.

Edgar Eugene Thornebury, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Thornebury, Route 3, Matthews, was fatally wounded yesterday in a hunting accident on the Wiley farm about a mile north of Kewanee.

Mrs. Anna Cline of Batavia, N.Y., grandmother of Mrs. T.L. Chidester of Sikeston, died yesterday, according to word received here.

Today, Mr. and Mrs. John Schlosser of Kelso are observing their 53rd anniversary. Due to ill health of Mr. Schlosser, who suffered pneumonia ithe early fall, no celebration is planned.

The Country Club was decorated yesterday afternoon with balloons and a refreshment table carrying out the Thanksgiving theme and centered with a birthday cake for the party of Cheri Lea Pasaka, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Pasaka, who was four years old.

Stork Club. Mr. and Mrs. Victor Miles of Sikeston are parents of a baby boy born November 7 at the Delta Community Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Shaw from Chicago, Ill., have now moved and are making their home in Sikeston. Mrs. Shaw was the former Miss June Allen.

The Bulldogs ... the Sikeston high school football team that has covered the girdirons of Southeast Missouri for the past three years and walked over their competition ... have only two more games to go to complete their third year of competition without a defeat under the leadership of Coach Kenneth Knox.

Bell City Team Wins Road Rally

Sikeston played host Saturday to a safe driving road rally that attracted entries from five counties.

The rally was sponsored by the Exploring committee of the Southeast Missouri Council of the Boy Scouts of America and was co-sponsored by Sonny Presley's Chevrolet and the El Capri.

First place went to a Bell City team consisting of Kenneth Bell and David Swindell. Three Sikeston youths captured second place. They were Carl Schorle, Scott Willis and Scott Mackelprang. Bob Jibben and Lisa Anderson of Dexter were third.

Ten cars entered the event with more than 30 people taking part. Check point judges, finish line officials and starters kept a running tally of the points of each driver. The Bell City team scored the highest point total recorded in the annual event's history.

Officials from the Boy Scout office in Cape Girardeau reported that a national road rally is held each year and if the Bell City team qualifies they might participate in this year's event. Last year it was held in Detroit.

Robert Cawley of Cape Girardeau, served as the finish line judge.

GEORGETOWN, Colo. (AP — After saying 8 a.m. mass in Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church in this mountain town, Father Joseph Bartos often slips into everyday clothes, dashes across the street and sings in the Presbyterian Church choir.

He explained, "They're sometimes shorthanded and I like to sing."

If You Were The Judge

Disrobing Not Free Speech Exercise

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

As part of a college program on sex education, meetings were held in the college lounge where distinguished psychiatrists, clergymen and others lectured on the subject without incident

It was only when a representative of Playboy Magazine was invited to speak that a group of forthright co-eds decided to protest. Consequently, in the middle of his talk, they nonchalantly got up and nonchalantly removed their clothes, one unmentionable hem after another, until they were wrapped up only in themselves.

Then, they got dressed again. And, while you may not be able to pin anything on a naked lady, the girls were nevertheless later arrested on charges of indecent exposure.

"They were a delight, I mean, a sight to see," complained a school official in court. "We had all we could do to look them in the face."

"There's nothing obscene in being nude," retorted the coeds, "and there was nothing lewd in our conduct. Simply, exercising our freedom of speech, it was our way of protesting the magazine's exploitation of pictures of unclad women for commercial gain. The fact is, it's an outrage to all of us decent females. Besides, .:: the girls pointed out, "our disrobing caused absolutely no disturbance."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict the decent coeds of indecent exposure?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that while mere public nudity may not constitute the crime of indecent exposure, when it is intentionally done with the intent to breach public rules of behavior, the crime has been committed. And, concluded the judge in effect, the coed's freedom of body in this case, was not privileged as an exercise of freedom of speech.

One-Vote Election Margin

Hinges on Official Canvass

ST. LOUIS (AP)— The result of the race for state representative in Missouri's 116th District hinges on today's certification of the results in St. Clair County and if the unofficial results stand the incumbent would be elected by one vote.

State Rep. Guss Salley, R-Warsaw, received 1,275 vote in the unofficial count of the county votes to 2,055 for Morran D. Harris, a Democrat from Osceola.

Those results combined with official totals from Benton and Pettis counties, which make up the district, would give Salley 4,819 votes to 4,818 for Harris.

Salley had 2,104 votes in Benton County and 1,440 in Pettis County.

Harris got 1,476 votes in Benton and 1,2 87 in Pettis.

Penn Central Lists Loss of $195.5 Million

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Penn Central Co., parent company of the financially troubled Penn Central Transportation Co., has reported a net loss of $194.5 million for the first nine months of this year.

The parent holding company had shown a profit of $17.6 million for the same period last year. The report also showed a net loss for the third quarter of this year of $70.4 million compared with a net loss of $8.9 million for the third quarter in 1969.

The report was released Wednesday along with third quarter and nine month results for the Penn Central Transportation Co., the nation's largest railroad, and its subsidiary the Pennsylvania Co.

Missourians Vote Pocketbooks

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. -- Amid the squeeze of inflation and mounting unemployment, Missourians apparently voted their pocketbooks in last week's general election.

The voters defeated a constitutional amendment and a referendum proposition which would have increased taxes while passing three amendments designed, to some extent, as economy measures.

A signal of the statewide voting trend on money matters came in the April 7 defeat of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' income tax referendum.

By defeating Amendment No. 3 and passing Amendment No. 4, the electorate served notice it wants to stabilize school financing, but maintain a tight rein on school board spending.

Passage of Amendment No. 4 means schools no longer will risk the prospect of closing their doors when voters turn down higher tax levies and the rate reverts to $1.25. School districts will now keep their previous rate when increases are voted down. Almost no districts can operate all year on a $1.25 levy, so they have been forced to go to the voters again and again in expensive elections.

Amendment No. 3, defeated overwhelmingly, would have authorized school boards to increase levies up to $5.55 by a simple majority approval, rather than a two-thirds majority. The measure would have increased the minimum tax that could be levied without voter approval to $1.85 from the current $1.25.

State law allows a school board to levy up to three times the minimum amount with a simple majority or a limit of $3.75.

Endorsed by school boards and major educational organizations, Amendment No. 3 had been hailed as a solution to what Columbia Board of Education President Edwin D. Birh called "the greatest financial crisis of the last 100 years" for Missouri schools.

Proposition No. 1, a pension - increase plan for state legislators, officials and employes, was defeated by a more than 3 to 1 margin.

The proposition began as a bill approved by the General Assembly in 1969 which would have provided state legislators an 87 per cent increase in retirement benefits. The bill, which was to have gone into effect last year, would have given lesser pension increases to elected state officials and state employes.

Opponents of the measure used a petition drive to force a state-wide vote on the proposal. Citizens were angered by what they considered excessive increases for legislators and other elected officials.

Amendment No. 2, the "home rule" measure which allows charter county residents to decide which services will be supplied by local governments and which by the county, won a surprising 57 per cent of the vote.

The amendment is expected to produce governmental economy by centralizing the administration of common services such as police and fire protection. St. Louis and Jackson counties are the only charter counties in the state.

Also approved by the voters was the long -sought measure to provide annual sessions of the Missouri legislature -- Amendment No. 1. Annual sessions have been proposed periodically for more than a decade.

the legislature will hereafter convene for six - month sessions in odd numbered years beginning on the first Wednesday after the first Monday in January and ending at midnight June 30. Legislation can be enacted through June 15 with the last 15 days reserved for preparation and signing of bills which have been passed.

Sessions in even - numbered years will be shorter. They will convene on the Wednesday following the first Monday in Jaunary and adjourn on May 15. Legislation can be passed through April 30.

Legislators hope now to have time to deal with the more than 1,200 bills introduced each two years by considering them in two sessions rather than one.

Have yet to see one of the "now" generation refuse a square meal when the Establishment is footing the bill.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, Nov. 9, the 313th day of 1970. There are 52 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1918, Germany's Kaiser Wilhelm abdicated at the end of World War I and the country was proclaimed a republic.

On this date:

In 1872, the Great Boston Fire broke out and raged for three days, killing 35 persons and destroying nearly 1,000 buildings.

In 1923, 14 Nazis were killed as federal troops broke up a march of Aolf Hitler's storm troopers in Munich, Germany.

In 1933, President Franklin D. Roosevelt created the Civil Works Administration to provide jobs for more than four million unemployed Americans.

In 1938, bands of Nazis roamed the streets of Germany, burning and destroying Jewish synagogues, homes and stores.

In 1941, a Chicago-to-New York express train was wrecked at Dunkirk, Ohio, killing 20 persons and injuring 40 others.

In 1943, the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration was created.

Ten years ago—Ten Irish soldiers were slain in the Congo in the ambush of a U.N. patrol.

Five years ago—A power failure blacked out parts of eight northeastern states and two provinces of Canada. New York City was without power for 10 hours and thousands were trapped in underground subwa tunnels at the height of the evening rush hour.

One year ago — Additional victims of the 1968 Tet massacre at Hue, South Vietnam, were unearthed and the death list rose to 2,300.

Southerners Retain Top Senate Jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Southern Democrats—most of them conservatives—will continue to head nearly all the major Senate committees when the 92nd Congress convenes in January.

These include Appropriations, Foreign Relations, Finance, Armed Services and Banking and Currency.

Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., will take over as chairman of the Labor and Public Welfare Committee—the only major Senate panel to change leadership as a result of this year's elections.

Williams succeeds another liberal, Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., defeated in the Democratic primary by Lloyd Bentsen, who then won the seat.

The Labor and Public Welfare Committee handles legislation in the fields of education, poverty, health and labor. Former President Lyndon B. Johnson said it originated more than 75 per cent of all his Great Society measures.

Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., outranks Williams in seniority on Labor and Public Welfare and could have taken the chairmanship.

But Randolph said he decided to remain chairman of the Public Works Committee because of its great importance to his home state.

Public works handles the Appalachia program, which has funneled millions of federal dollars into the region, as well as bills dealing with federal highway aid, air and water pollution controls, and river, harbor and flood-control projects.

Southerners will continue to chair nine of the present 16 Senate standing committees.

They include Sens. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., the oldest senator in point of service, who heads Appropriations; James O. Eastland, D-Miss., Judiciary; John C. Stennis, D-Miss., Armed Services; Russell B. Long, D-La., Finance, and J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., Foreign Relations.

Others are Sens. John Sparkman, D-Ala., Banking and Currency; Allen J. Ellender, D-La., Agriculture and Forestry; John L. McClellan, D-Ark., Government Operations, and B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., Rules and Administration.

Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., chairman of the District of Columbia Committee, was defeated Tuesday. He is expected to be succeeded by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo.

Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., is one possibility to be chairman of a newly created Veterans Affairs Committee.

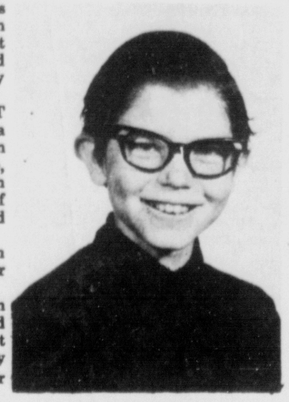
Morehouse Boy Dies in Accident

A Morehouse youth was killed and a passenger injured in a one- car automobile accident Sunday at the Stoddard and Wayne county line, the highway patrol reported.

AT 12:25 a.m. on route T eight miles west of Puxico, a 1959 Ford traveling east driven by William Jasper Hardin, 15, Morehouse, was going at a high rate of speed, went out of control on a curve, and overturned, the patrol said.

The driver was thrown from the car and the Ford rolled over him causing his death.

A passenger, Michael Steven Burns, 17, Morehouse, suffered cuts and bruises to theright kidney and was taken to Lucy Lee hospital in Poplar Bluff for treatment.



William Hardin

The son of Mrs. Alpha Mae Hardin, Hardin was born June 8, 1955 in Dexter. He was a sophomore at Richland high school at Essex.

Survivors include his mother; one brother, Gerald Hardin: and three sisters, Lona Jane, Sheila, and Joella Hardin.

Services will be 2 p.m. Wednesday at the Watkins and Sons Funeral chapel in Morehouse with the Rev. A. C. Sullivant officiating. Burial will be in Triplett cemetery near Dexter.

Friends may call after 6 p.m. today

Budget Deficits Next Nixon Test

WASHINGTON (AP) — The persistent and mounting red ink in the federal budget probably will be President Nixon's major problem in dealing with the new Congress next year.

It is a Congress that Tuesday's election changed only slightly—and not in a way to help him much in his fiscal dilemma.

Facing a deficit estimated by congressional specialists as high as $15 billion to $16 billion, the administration—if it remains true to its announced principles—must make hard choices about cutting spending, increasing taxes or both.

At the same time, it is under heavier pressure to try new ways of boosting an economy that now registers a seven-year high in unemployment—while avoiding feeding persistent inflation.

There is widespread feeling the economy, harped on by Democrats, had more impact on the electorate Tuesday than the law and order arguments of the Republicans.

And with attention now turning to the 1972 presidential contest, more jobs and a slowdown in price jumps become a GOP political must.

Whatever decisions the administration makes must be submitted to a Congress that not only remains firmly under Democratic control, but maintains in key positions most of the same men who confronted the Republican White House during the past two years.

The specter of big deficits plagues administration planners at every turn as they tackle more specific problems of the coming year, including:

—The draft, which expires June 30. Nixon is committed in principle to moving toward an all-volunteer army, which would be costly in pay and other incentives.

—Reform of the welfare system, unless Congress in the upcoming lame duck session succeeds in reconciling sharply differing versions. Main objection to the administration plan has been its cost. Meanwhile welfare rolls continue to soar above predictions.

—Possible extension of Federal aid to college students. Again, cost is the big headache.

—Continuation or revamping of the antipoverty program.

—Mounting sentiment for a national health insurance program, with heavy government financial participation.

On the other hand, Democratic gains in the election could improve the chances, still slim, of one Republican proposal—sharing federal revenues with the states.

Democrats will have more governors—as many as 11 more—and control more state legislatures. The majority Democrats in Congress could be under more pressure from home to help hard-pressed local governments.

But Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee, shortly before the election firmly reiterated his opposition to revenue sharing, especially while the federal budget is in deficit. And Mills will be on the job again next year.

Secretary of the Treasury David M. Kennedy repeatedly has indicated it will seek new or extended taxes, if spending cuts do not reduce deficits to manageable size.

Man Wounded After Argument

Wallace Watson of Sunset Addition was wounded in the stomach early Sunday morning by a .22 caliber bullet.

Police reported Watson apparently was shot by his brother, Henry Watson, following an argument about Henry Watson slapping Wallace Watson's wife.

The wounded man was admitted at the Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

He would not sign a complaint against his brother.

The shooting took place about 3 a.m. Henry Wallace is not in custody.

Grass Fire

Firemen answered a call Saturday at 12:15 p.m. to extinguish a grass fire on Winters Drive. No damage resulted.

AutoTalk Sessions Expand

DETROIT (AP) — Negotiators in the eight-week-old United Auto Workers strike returned to the bargaining table today reportedly for nonstop talks aimed at reaching agreement in the strike against General Motors by Tuesday night.

The Tuesday deadline is needed if GM is to return to full production by Dec. 1, officials said.

Such an agreement could then be submitted to the 350-man GM-UAW Council Wednesday for its approval and the next step would be a ratification vote by GM workers across the country.

The plan for a long day-night session was reported by a highly placed and usually reliable source.

From another source it was learned the union has called its 25-member International Executive Board to meet Tuesday in Detroit.

While negotiations are being conducted under a news blackout, there have been reports of progress from other sources in the last three days.

Negotiators met for 10-plus hours both Saturday and Sunday.

Marathon, night-long sessions have been a certain tipoff of an imminent agreement in the past. But none has yet marked current GM-UAW negotiations, which began July 15.

The strike, called Sept. 15 to support the UAW's wage and fringe benefit demands, has idled 400,000 in GM plants in the United States and Canada and has resulted in thousands of layoffs in supplier plants and related industries.

The union has summoned its GM Council to Detroit Wednesday, an action which usually follows contract settlement.

Cotton Bales Estimated at 10.4 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department estimated today the 1970 cotton crop at 10,428,900 bales, 4 per cent more than last year but 2 per cent less than forecast in October.

The average yield of cotton lint per acre was estimated at 442 pounds, compared with 450 pounds indicated last month; 456 in September and the yield of 433 pounds per acre in 1969.

The estimated yield per acre and production in bales of 500 pounds gross weight each, respectively, of 1970 cotton by states included Missouri 491 pounds per acre and production of 230,000 bales.

Three Boys Arrested After Gun Thefts

Two Sikeston juvenile boys were arrested Sunday for investigation of stealing three .45 caliber pistols from the Armory.

Sheriff John Dennis also reported they are suspected of breaking into a shed at 108 William, the Bulldog House at the football stadium and the Gilmore and Gilmore law offices.

Dates of the breakins were not reported.

Stove Plant To Bluff

POPLAR BLUFF (AP) — A $12 million gas and electric stove manufacturing plant, expected to employ about 1,000 persons, will be built in this Southeast Missouri town, city officials said today.

The plant, operated by the Roper Corp., is the third industry in two years to move into the city's industrial park. A furniture factory and bolt making plant already are operating.

The 500,000 square-foot Roper plant should be in full operation in about two years.

Bid to Test Legality of War Denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — A divided Supreme Court refused today to hear a suit by Massachusetts questioning the legality of U.S. military action in Vietnam.

Six justices voted against the state and three justices dissented. Only Justice William O. Douglas, one of the dissenters, set forth his views.

In other actions today, the court:

—Agreed to determine whether state funds can be used to supplement salaries of lay teachers in parochial schools.

—Ruled that mental patients who are new to a state may not be sent back to their old home states by hospital officials.

—Declined to review the conviction of Yippie leader Abbie Hoffman for resisting arrest in Chicago in 1968. He was accused of having a vulgarism written across his forehead.

—Rejected a challenge to a provision of the 1968 Gun Control Act that prohibits unregistered possession of firearms by convicted felons.

Massachusetts had argued that without a declaration of war the President has no authority to send American troops into combat in Southeast Asia.

The Nixon administration counseled the court against granting the state a hearing. Justice Department officials said a judicial inquiry into the legality of the war would hamstring the President, insult Congress and embarrass the nation.

Voting against a hearing were Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justice Harry A. Blackmun, both of whom were put on the court by President Nixon and Justices Hugo L. Black, William J. Brennan Jr., Byron R. White and Thurgood Marshall, holdovers from past administrations.

Dissenting with Douglas were Justices John M. Harlan and Potter Stewart.

Bicyclist Injured

Anthony Helmes, son of Mrs. Elsie Helmes, 514 William, received a broken shin bone Sunday when he rode his bicycle into the path of a car at the intersection of North Kingshighway and Front Street, police said.

Police reported the car was driven by Georgia Houchins, 326 East Kathleen. The accident took place at noon.

The youth told officers he did not see the car. He was admitted to Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

SIKESTON COMPRESS OFFICIALS report 13 bails of cotton were damaged during an early morning fire Sunday. A gin fire pack apparently resulted when a spark from machinery came in contact with the cotton while it was at the gin. The fire smoldered and finally ignited. Firemen were called, but the sprinkler system at the Compress kept the fire from spreading.

Marvin J. Snider, Highway Chief, Dies

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) —Marvin J. Snider, chief engineer of the Missouri Highway Department, died here early today of a heart attack. He had been attending the annual convention of the American Association of State Highway Officials.

Snider, 63, was a veteran of more than 41 years with the highway department.

He had served as district engineer in both Willow Springs and Kansas City and became engineer of construction in Jefferson City in 1960. A year later he was made assistant chief engineer and became chief engineer in 1962 on the retirement of Chief Engineer J. J. Corbett.

Snider attended Central Methodist College in Fayette and the University of Missouri in Columbia. He is survived by his widow, his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Snider of Kansas City, three brothers and three sisters.

Egypt Eyes Union With Sudan, Libya

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egypt is planning to federate with Sudan and Libya to form "a nucleus for the unity of the Arab world" in northeast Africa. It is Cairo's second such attempt to put together a greater Arab nation.

The late President Gamal Abdel Nasser failed in the first attempt, a federation with Syria and Yemen that was formed in 1958. It existed mostly on paper, and was broken up by Syria in September 1961. Egypt's official name remains the United Arab Republic, a remnant of that try at union.

Nasser's successor, Anwar Sadat, President Jaafar el Numairi of Sudan and Col. Muammar Kadafi, leader of Libya's military regime, announced plans for the new merger early today after a conference in Cairo.

No target date was given for putting the federation into operation.

"The Arab world is facing internal as well as external attempts to liquidate the revolutionary tide," it said, adding that the confederation was necessitated also by the death of Nasser, "whose mere presence in the Arab struggle (with Israel) was a sufficient symbol of unity for the Arab peoples."

Under the plan, called the Tripoli Charter in honor of a conference Nasser, Kadafi and Numairi held there this year, a tripartite command will first consolidate the political systems in the countries and coordinate their policies, the communique said. The command will set up three-sided boards to govern the confederation later, including a "supreme planning committee," a national security council for defense, an implementation committee to maintain national progress and subcommittees to handle political, economic, military and social questions.

Observers noted that the boards will include representatives from all three nations and their decisions presumably will have to be unanimous. Thus there apparently was no loss of sovereignty envisioned by the drafters of the charter, but this also increases the possibility of the disagreements that always wreck attempts at Arab unity.

The confederation will bring together some of the world's most lucrative oil fields in Libya, potentially rich wheat fields in Sudan and the Arab world's most powerful military force, in Egypt.

Five Arrests

Police reported Lim Hill, 220 Bowman, has been charged with carrying a concealed weapon, improper vehicle registration and driving without a license.

Ricky Johnson, 310 Prosperity, has been charged with public intoxication and violating the city's curfew.

J. E. Hall, 327 East Gladys, was charged with careless driving.

Earl Evans, 715 South New Madrid, was charged with public drunkeness.

Charles Massey, Jr., Benton, was charged with public intoxication.

U.S. Turns Over Wider Role to Viet Troops

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese troops have taken over offensive operations from the Americans in an area of 100 square miles north of Saigon, authoritative sources disclosed today.

The major shift of allied responsibilities virtually ends the American offensive role along the Saigon River corridor, a long-time North Vietnamese-Viet Cong infiltration and supply route.

Four American artillery and patrol bases have been turned over to the South Vietnamese along a 50-mile stretch of the river, from the Cambodian border south to within 20 miles of Saigon.

South Vietnamese troops also are taking over Cu Chi, a giant base camp 20 miles northwest of Saigon that is the headquarters of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division. The division's headquarters and its 1st and 3rd Brigades are returning to Hawaii by Christmas.

Other American units at Cu Chi and Dau Tieng, an American brigade headquarters farther north, will be pulled out soon.

For the most part, sources said, the realignment leaves American forces in the western half of the 3rd Military Region defending their remaining bases and conducting such defensive operations as local reconnaissance, searching out enemy caches and protecting the current rice harvest.

The realignment is part of President Nixon's withdrawal program to reduce U.S. strength in Vietnam to 284,000 troops by next May 1.

The U.S. Command announced today that American forces in the country dropped another 6,000 men last week to 368,000. It was the lowest level since Dec. 10, 1966, when there were 367,400.

Meanwhile, the Cambodian military command reported that the largest combined South Vietnamese-Cambodian task force of the war pushed in behind tanks on a Communist base camp 20 miles south of Phnom Penh. A spokesman said one South Vietnamese tank was reported destroyed by a mine, but the 7,000-man force had made no significant contact with the enemy.

The spokesman said another Cambodian task force pushed 40 miles up Highway 2 from Takeo to Phnom Penh. The highway had been cut for nearly six months, but there was no report of enemy opposition to the drive.

In still another operation, on the east bank of the Mekong River, the Cambodian command said government troops had recaptured Preak Tameak, 11 miles northeast of Phnom Penh. The spokesman did not say whether the Cambodian troops met any resistance.

Elsewhere in Cambodia, the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong shelled Kompong Cham, the country's third largest city 47 miles northeast of Phnom Penh, and then made a ground attack on the airport just outside the town. A spokesman said sporadic fighting continued at the airport after dawn.

Rate Increase Hearing Nov. 30

JEFFERSON CITY AP — The Missouri Public Service Commission today set Nov. 30 for a public hearing into the request of Missouri Utilities Co. of Cape Girardeau to boost electric power rates by $975,000 a year. It would work out to a 9.5 per cent increase in revenues.

The utility said the rate boost is needed to meet the impact of inflationary expense increases. It operates electric distribution facilities in 58 southeastern and central Missouri communitieis, located in Butler, Cape Girardeau, Cooper, Dunklin, Miller, Mississippi, Moniteau, Morgan, New Madrid, Pettis, Saline, Scott and Stoddard counties.

Judgment Restored By Supreme Court

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)— The Missouri Supreme Court today reinstated a judgment for $17,501 against Paul Hamilton, John E. Godwin and Cape Central Airways Inc., which had been accepted by John T. and Lavinia M. Skibble for damages to their airplane. They had sued originally for $23,385 and later sought to repudiate the settlement.

The court held that Arthur Cheek was adequately represented by former Circuit Judge James V. Billings when he was convicted in Stoddard County of murder and sentenced to life imprisonment.

WHAT'S NEW?

A certain group of professional rabble- rousers today are commonly referred to as the "new" left. But there is much evidence to indicate that there is nothing very new about their behavior or their ideas. Consider this quotation:

"Among the students of the universities and the higher technical schools were young men and women in slovenly attire, who called in question and ridiculed the generally received convictions and respectable conventionalities of social life, and who talked of reorganizing society on strictly scientific principles. They reversed the traditional order of things even in trivial matters of appearance, the males allowing the hair to grow long and the female adepts cutting it short... Their appearance, manners and conversation were apt to shock ordinary people, but to this they were profoundly indifferent, for they had raised themselves above the level or so- called public opinion, despised Philistine respectability, and rather liked to scandalize people still under the influence of what they considered antiquated prejudices.

"Among the antiquated institutions which had to be abolished as obstructions to real progress, were religion and family life, private property and centralized administration. Religion was to be replaced by the exact sciences, family life by free love, private property by collectivism and centralized administration by a federation of independent communes."

Is the above a definition of the Hippies and Yippies of 1970? According to one of our informants, this is the description of the Nihilists, so named by the Russian novelist Ivan Sergeevich Turgenev in "Fathers and Sons" - written in 1862!

The Nihilists were the early forerunners of those who would later be known as the Marxist- Leninists- or the modern - day Leninoids, as described in Eugene Methvin's "Riot Makers." Methvin refers for the Leninoid as the "whole array of people who use the techniques of Lenin without his ideology... the opportunists.... the compulsive revolutionaries... the philsopher- thugs.. who enjoy disorder and violence because these are signs of the approaching Kingdom Come."

History is very largely an account of the struggle between those who would build and preserve a civilized society, and those who would destroy. Today we seem to have more than the normal share of Nihilists, or Leninoids. But none of it is really new.

WOULD YOU BELIEVE...

When the average American worker bought a new suit in which to apply for a new job, he may have thought there was only a sales tax on it. Actually, says Tax Foundation Inc., there were at least 116 hidden taxes in that suit. The research organization some years ago counted at least 100 taxes on an egg, 151 on a loaf of bread, 150 on a woman's hat.

Have you had enough, fellow taxpayers?

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

Under the title, "Can American Education Survive One More Year Like the One We Have Just Been Through?, " the magazine National Review has presented a stunning indictment of current policies and philosophies prevailing in many leading U.S. institutions of higher learning. The indictment takes the form of letters and messages describing the disillusioning experiences of thousands of students, professors, parents and trustees in their contacts with university life during the school year 1969-70.

The editor of National Review explains the publication of the letters with the comment: "The end of the school year caught many students, professors and parents constipated by the unavailability of appropriate media in which to express themselves. For the most part, student publications were dominated by the activist Left. Local newspapers do not usually encourage substantial accounts of private experiences or analysis. College presidents reply with form letters." Many of those wishing to express their views did so to National Review. In the words of this publication, their opinions "... are a stirring commentary on what it was like to go to school in the United States, in the spring of 1970."

Making due allowance for the tendency of everyone to express extreme opinions in moments of bitterness, the thoughts of those who might be called members of the "silent majority" on the college campuses may, nonetheless, stir a feeling of shock among millions of people who have endeavored to shrug off disturbances on campuses as a transitory phenomenon. One student writes, "Four years and over $8,000 ago I came to Columbia College expecting to be able to get a good liberal arts education and in general spend my college years in the peaceful pursuit of this goal... In four years at Columbia I have witnessed the destruction of a once- honorable institution. I have seen a once- great university become a third- rate political tool for a mob of Vietcong flag- waving animals, who trample the rights of anyone who dares to disagree with them... I am leaving Columbia this week to return to my native land, the United States of America, and I only hope its people will take me back." A graduate student of philosophy writes, "...our institutions (the family, the churches, the schools– especially the high schools – in my opinion) have failed to instill the proper values. The cause is liberalism, with its paralyzing relativism and valueless academicism... By destroying the institutions which normally embody our values and traditions, the liberals have created a value - vacuum."

A professor at a large university observes, "...if I knew another way to make a living I would take it." And in sending in his resignation, a former trustee of a large university writes, "Once the university begins to take a public position on military, economic or social problems it can no longer claim immunity from violent reactions on the part of those who disagree with its policies. Thus the very foundations of the university are undermined." The trustee resigned in protest against the action of 37 college presidents who signed letters criticizing President Nixon's policies in Viet Nam and Cambodia.

Another professor observes, "As I see it, commitment to institutional neutrality for schools in political questions means commitment to the United States Government, which permits this neutrality... Academic freedom does not occur in a vacuum. Rather it occurs in political regimes permitting. And such regimes are few and far between especially among the most powerful nations. The normal -- one is tempted to say, the natural -- regime in history's most powerful states is not fifth - century Athens or twentieth - century America with their incredible tolerance for dissent."

Sentiments such as these, as the editor of National Review points out, seldom receive more than cursory attention. Yet, they may help to explain what is nothing less than a crisis in higher education.

NO INSTANT HEAVEN

Even Nature takes time — patient time — to nurture anything worth growing. Only weeds grow overnight.

Success in anything worth- while cannot be ordered by law; it has to be earned, by long, hard, intelligent work. Stature cannot be reached by demand; it has to be deserved. Equality can only come from being equal; try to seize it and you seize empty air. Acceptance comes from being acceptable. Respect results from being respectable.

All honorable people want all these things for all decent humans. But when you try to speed up Nature by forcing plants too fast, they die.

WEDNESDAY is a big anniversary in American history, Armistice Day as it was first called and now known as Veterans Day. The younger generation, unless it has studied and absorbed the history of World War I, probably does not know that news of the war being over came three days before it actually ended. A news service, we think it was UPI, learned Germany was about to meet with the allied Leaders to ask for terms. The word was put on the wire (there was no radio then) and newspapers all over the country headlined the end of the war. We were in advanced flying at Post Field, Fort Sill, Okla., and were over in town, Lawton, when the paper hit the street. We rushed out to the field and interupted a big poker game in the officers' quarters with the news the war was over. Instead of shouts and expressions of pleasure, from all over the room we heard, "Oh hell!" The strange disappointment was the "brainwashing" all of us young fliers had gone through, being certain we were so much better than the Germans it would be a cinch to outfly them. All of us were within a week or so of going overseas and too young, too sure, and incidently, too patriotic to realize how lucky we were.

MIRROR, MIRROR ON THE WALL

If you really want to know why the young are so angry with society, try a little experiment, suggests John Holt, teacher and author of education - reform books like "How Children Fail."

Let your hair grow long, or get a reasonably realistic wig. Dress in authentic hippie clothes. Get a little scruffy and dirty. Then just walk about in the streets of whatever city you live in.

What you will see in the faces of a good many people, says Holt, is the thought, deeply felt and very clearly communicated, "If I could, I would kill you."

That's nothing. If you really want to encounter the look that kills, try this experiment: Rent a Gestapo uniform and walk down the streets of almost any city in Europe.

This is certainly not to imply that hippies and Nazis have anything in common. In fact, the one is total anathema to the other. It is only to suggest that in both cases the unfriendly looks of passersby would involve a bit more than an automatic reaction to somebody who is dressed differently.

One need not delve deeply into reasons. The sight of a scruffy and dirty hippie, whatever he may or may not symbolize to the viewer, is simply offensive to the eye and oppressive to the spirit, like an overflowing trash can on the sidewalk. The hippie, at his worst, is as much an insult to himself as to everyone who comes in contact with him.

Are disgust and fear and hate the only emotions people carry about with them on the street, ready to express spontaneously?

Try another experiment:

Get a haircut (not necessarily short) and a shave (or a beard trim), if you are male, or a shampoo and hairset, if you are female. Dress in neat, clean clothes (not necessarily Ivy League or high fashion). Take off the sunglasses so people can see your eyes. Walk erectly and with a purposeful step. Don't stare but look candidly at people, with a smile ready to form on your lips.

What you will see in the faces of a good many people is the thought, deeply felt and very clearly communicated, "A good day to you, and how nice to see you."

Sure, there is no accounting for taste, and taste does change, but there is no pretending that such a thing as taste does not exist, either.

Of course, people should be free to dress as they please and be as scroungy as they please.

But before young people complain about the lack of love in the world, they should first take a long look in the mirror.

EAST BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — Never throw anything away.

That may have been sound advice throughout history, but it ought to be commandment today.

Junk, aged long enough, becomes valuable.

Even the desk where you carved your initials in third grade will probably be worth twice its original value in time, whether you become president or not.

If old light bulbs and used spark plugs retain dollar appeal, almost anything is worth money.

New York City is a salvager's paradise. Old buildings falling to the wrecker's ball to make way for new buildings offer the adventurous prospector a mother lode.

Doorknobs, old apartment mail boxes, ironwork railings, the very bricks of the fallen walls may be valueless on New York City streets.

But transported to suburbia, they are the instant antiquity of some modern decorating prizes.

Surely an international cartel should be organized to transport New York's junk to the points where it acquires value. And vice versa.

Old milk cans are no prized items in southwest Missouri's hills, where people still use them. And used flat irons hold little attraction for the hill housewife who can still buy them new at a discount store—and clearly remembers her mother using one.

But Manhattanites freshly fled to greener suburbs will part with cash for both those items, as well as such oddments as real cowbells, old carpenter tools, even glass-topped "Mason jars" of the sort that boys broke 30 years ago by the dozen with slingshots and b-b guns.

The array of roadside antique stops expands yearly. 'Flea markets" stretch from New York's asphalt parking lots west, offering a network for junk to exchange its way around the nation.

And it is true that age alone creates value. No one collects Barbie dolls yet but the man who in 50 years has the last six in the world may claim something of value.

Throughout history it has been true that today's modern is tomorrow's antique.

Perhaps the lesson for parents is: If you would leave your children a real legacy, save their toys so that when they retire they will boast an instant collection of rare (and priceless) antique toys.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON -- Those men in high office who have been caught cheating the public finally heard from the voters last Tuesday. Here's a state- by- state report:

California -- This column reported last March that Senator George Murphy, R, had a secret deal with Technicolor, Inc., which was paying him $20,000 a year, picking up half the rent on his $520 -a -month Washington apartment, and furnishing him with credit cards. We also noted that he had often been tardy paying his taxes on this extra income. In 1968 the Internal Revenue Service was forced to file a $3,218.29 tax lien against him.

These charges became a key issue in his reelection campaign. The California electorate responded overwhelmingly by voting him out of office.

Connecticut -- The late Drew Pearson and I spelled out in a series of columns, beginning in January 1966, how Senator Tom Dodd, D., had violated half -a -dozen federal laws. He filed a $5 million 14-count libel suit against us. Every time we tried to take his deposition under oath on the law violations, however, he would drop some of the charges. Eventually he dismantled his own law suit, piece by piece, until he had withdrawn all 14 counts. The Senate, meanwhile, investigated one of the lesser charges (that he had used campaign contributions to pay his personal bills) and censured him. The Internal Revenue Service spent a year unraveling his tangled finances and recommended criminal prosecution for income tax evasion. The Senate also submitted the other alleged law violations to the Justice Department for action.

Dodd was so discredited that he withdrew as a candidate after the polls showed he would lose the nomination. Yet astonishingly he jumped back in the race despite his low standing in the polls, as an independent candidate, thus dividing the Democratic vote. This played into the hands of the Republicans who, in Washington, had the power to indict him. Significantly, the Justice department dropped the criminal case against Dodd. Later during the campaign, he was caught slipping into the White House to visit President Nixon's political operator, Murray Chotiner.

Apparently Dodd has escaped criminal prosecution, but he received the verdict of his constituents on November 3rd. The people of Connecticut, who gave him 64 per cent of their votes six years ago, gave him only 24 per cent this year. He ran a poor third in the three - way Senate race.

Indiana -- This column reported last December that Senator Vance Hartke, D., had collected large sums from Spiegel, Inc., the Chicago mail - order house, also that he had received free advertising during the 1964 campaign from Indianapolis radio station WIFE. Again on October 30 we quoted from a secret JusticeDepartment statement that was used as the basis for a bribery indictment against ex - Senator Daniel Brewster, D-Md. The secret statement implicated Hartke in the same scandal.

The charges were used against him during his reelection campaign this hear and contributed to the hairline result. In contrast, Hartke won his seat six years ago by a comfortable 54 per cent

Maryland -- Life Magazine published a detailed expose last August charging that Senator Joseph Tydings, D., had used his senatorial prestige to promote his own financial interest. The magazine accused him of attempting improperly to influence government agencies in behalf of a company in which he had a financial interest.

The allegations contributed to his defeat at the same time that his ticket mate, Governor Marvin Mandel, won reelection by a landslide.

Nebraska -- In a series of columns we told how Senator Roman Hruska had become the Senate spokesman for the drug, insurance, automobile, cattle and other special interests. He fought in the Senate and later intervened at the White House to kill a measure opposed by the Kemper Insurance group.

He also tried to help insiders take over a Wisconsin insurance firm whose parent company, Sentry Insurance, also retained his former firm. Belatedly he removed his name from the law firm listing in legal directories just in time for his reelection campaign.

We also reported the Hruska preached against pornography at the same time he profited from it through a movie chain which featured salacious films.

The columns were used as campaign ammunition against Hruska who had been elected by a 61 per cent majority six years ago and was considered a shoo-in this year. However, the New York Times reported the day after the election: "Nebraska's senior senator, Roman Hruska, received the fright of his political life in yesterday's general election" before winning a narrow victory. The Times attributed his close call to "some farm policy unhappiness in the state and Mr. Hruska's alleged association with special interests."

Nevada -- This column charged on October 14 that Lt. Gov. Ed Fike, the Republican law -and -order candidate for governor, had violated the state's conflict of interest laws in a land deal, also that casinos had given space to ticket booths in violation of the Federal Corrupt Practices Act for a Spiro Agnew political rally in behalf of Senatorial candidate William Raggio. governor Paul Laxalt, in behalf of his GOP colleagues, struck back at the column. I flew out to Nevada with the documentary evidence to debate the governor on state - wide television.

The Las Vegas Sun, a Republican newspaper, reported after the debate: "... An informal poll taken among viewers immediately following the debate showed the public favoring Anderson's arguments over Laxalt's by an eight to one margin. The poll was augmented by approximately 60 calls to the Sun switchboard expressing a similar eight to one margin .... Anderson was armed with a heavy sheaf of documents apparently bearing undeniable evidence that Fike had violated the state's conflict - of - interest laws in purchase of more than 1,000 acres of choice land along the lower Colorado in extreme southern Nevada ...."

Fike, who had been an overwhelming favorite, lost to Democratic candidate Mike O'Callaghan. Raggio was also defeated by a large majority.

New Jersey -- We carried a story on October 24 about senatorial candidate H.R. Gross, R., spelling out his financial difficulties. WE reported that the gregarious Gross charged his high living to failing companies that he controlled; that while his firms were on the brink of bankruptcy, he stuck them for $49.50 tickets to the Moscow Circus at Madison Square Garden, florist bouquets for his wife, and luxurious refurbishing for his home.

Although these allegations never became a major issue, political analysts say they contributed to Gross's poor showing against Senator Harrison Williams

DO MEN DRESS FOR WOMEN?

Have you ever encountered a group of city men on a fishing or hunting trip? For this stag activity, they make no effort to look like anything but a bunch of roustabouts. They don their oldest clothes, let the beards grow and have a great time being slovenly. But as soon as they get back to citilization - the world of women - they start preening again. We have seen a report that male students in co-ed schools spend approximately 35% more on clothing than do students in all-male schools . . . doesn't that answer the question?

FREEDOM!

The electorate has spoken. What is the meaning of the word "Freedom?" Webster's Collegiate Dictionary defines it as "the quality or state of being free ... the absence of necessity, coercion, or constraint in choice or action ... liberation from slavery or restraint or from the power of another ..."

Before the Declaration of Independence it was necessary for Americans to pay unjust taxes. There was no choice. They had no representation in Parliament. Americans were also forced to quarter English soldiers when the English parliament deemed it necessary to purpose. Our great Republic was formed because our Founding Fathers recognized that these circumstances existed and recognized the need for action.

Today, apathy is the most dangerous enemy of freedom. When a necessity arises, most Americans unquesioningly make the seemingly obvious decision -- the one which the majority supposedly favors. The average United States citizen today is being forced to pay exorbitant taxes, usually for government expenditures of which he knows nothing. Although it is not natural nor comfortable for him, he complacently accepts our government's policies regarding foreign and domestic affairs.

Could the false dilemma of complete necessity or acts of coercion and constraint be creeping back into our society? If so, only an awakened public will be able to combat the evils which accompany them.

It required great pain and sacrifice on the part of the colonists to rid themselves of those tyrannical circumstances under which they had lived. Today we should stay informed and active patriots. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

DAWN'S BITTER LIGHT:
Hard Hats
Desert Nixon

WASHINGTON: -- After the Oval Room's early morning conference cadre fully finishes analyzing the election returns, some of the softer heads in the White House will need the protection of those hard hats left as gifts by allegedly friendly labor delegations.

The White House strategists guessed wrong. The hard hat brigades are not Mr. Nixon's friends nor are they his political allies. Led by their union chiefs, and AFL-CIO president George Meany, they turned on him. They fought him almost every inch of the campaign trail. They poured money, manpower and political imagination into the fight from the sidewalks of New York to the Palisades of the Pacific.

They backed more doves than would fill a huge rooftop coop.

Mr. Meany, as is his fashion, did "bounce" on President Nixon's head, as the labor chief told Dick Nixon he would. President Meany charged him with the responsibility for Vice President Agnew's sledgehammer barnstorming.

The labor chief said that the vice president was "the horsewhip type." And that Mr. Agnew had a "vicious tongue." And that Mr. Nixon had wasted presidential "prestige and dignity." And that in the successful effort to defeat Sen. "Charley" Goodell, the White House had engaged in the "cutting of the political throat of a member of the President's own party."

The results in New York – meaning the election of James Buckley who agrees with the AFL - CIO's foreign policy and hard hat sentiment -- is a "disgrace," said the labor chief.

All this is tough talk, even from George Meany, who saves his blasts for special political hurricane seasons. But few insiders expected anything different in the "crunch." The labor movement is gut - oriented. Its objective is to have a friend in the White House, not a neutral, and to influence a coalition on the Hill which controls the Congress.

That's where the critical labor relations laws are made. That's where the social projects money is appropriated. That's where the presidential nominees for the courts and the quasi - judicial executive agencies (such as the NLRB and SCC), are confirmedl or rejected. That is the source of power. And few forces and fewer men understand the meaning of such power and its use.

Few today can match Mr. Meany's scientific political pragmatism and appraisal of the role such power plays in the survival of the movement and in confrontations with American industrialism.

Thus when the political crunch came, George Meany did exactly what he did in the last days of the 1968 campaign – he went for the political jugular. Telegrams were dispatched to leaders of every national and international union and to heads of all major city and state central labor bodies. The theme: Get out the vote.

For whom? For labor's friends, that's for whom. And it made no difference if they were doves or hawks. It was an owl-ish approach. Rounds of golf with the President, Labor Day banquet and outdoor show, special conferences and briefings, all were to be forgotten. Agreement on foreign policy was to be a postponed luxury.

Mr. Meany wanted that drilled especially into the heads of the hard hat leaders. They, after all, are the infrastructure, the inner mechanism, the bulwark strength of the AFL-CIO -- with perhaps the exception of the steel and ladies garment workers and the machinists.

Thus it was that at the last minute in New York the iron workers leader, Ray Corbett, president of the state AFL-CIO, held a press conference in the Hotel Delmonico to support dove Congressman Richard Ottinger, a Democrat. At the height of the conference, in walked eight or ten ironworkers in work clothes, hard hats, tool belts and long wrenches. They were for the dove against the conservatives' Jim Buckley. Then Mr. Corbett, an intimate friend of the original No. 1 hard hat, Peter Brennan, made the rounds of construction sites to emphasize Mr. Meany's point -- elect a pro - labor Democrat and for the moment forget Charley Goodell.

And away across the land dovish, Kennedyian Congressman John Tunney had working for him a 900-member AFL-CIO political committee created expecially to elect this intimate friend of Ted Kennedy.

And who headed it? Jack Henning, leader of California's AFL-CIO State Federation, did. He's a former Assistant Secretary of Labor, former ambassador to New Zealand and only a few weeks ago was discussed by President Nixon and some top AFL - CIO leaders as a possible labor adviser to Secretary of State William Rogers. Mr. Henning springs from the building trades. And vice president of the Labor Committee for Tunney was James S. Lee, president of the AFL-CIO State Building and Construction Trades Council.

Thus it was, mostly across the U.S. Back east, Mr. Meany called the defeat of Senators Gore and Tydings a sharp "disappointment" about which he "felt keenly." No one comes more dovish than Sens. Hartke and Kennedy. Both had overwhelming labor support. Alex Barkan, director of the AFL- CIO Committee on Political Education, spent much time in Indiana fighting, pushing, directing the labor forces for Mr. Hartke. Also backed heavily by labor was dovish Howard Metzenbaum in Ohio and Adlai Stevenson III in Illinois. The list of those who disagree with the AFL-CIO on foreign policy but who received powerful labor support is long.

But first things first. That is what Mr. Nixon and the early morning cadre and its advisers did not quite understand. In the final analysis labor wants allies on the Hill -- not banquets in the White House.

Women's lib

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare says it has imposed temporary financial sanctions in the past three months against 12 colleges and universities accused by a women's liberation group of sex discrimination in hiring.

The withholding of federal contracts for 30-day periods is the first enforcement of a 1968 executive order that forbids federal contractors to discriminate by sex in employment.

A spokesman for the department said Harvard and Michigan were among the institutions involved. He declined to name the rest.

The Women's Equity Action League spurred the federal investigations with charges this summer that about 200 colleges, universities and medical schools discriminate against women in admissions or in staff, hiring, promotion and pay.

DENVER (AP) — George Downer and his wife, Evelyn, twice did their part in fighting crime in a six-month period.

In their automobile they chased and caught a 17-year-old suspect soon after a service station was held up.

Earlier Mrs. Downer, awakened by a noise, saw two men on the roof of a pool hall near her home. She telephoned police while Downer went to investigate. Officers arrived in time to arrest two men.

C. C. A. presents Men of Song

Delta Community Concert Association will present Men of Song in concert at Sikeston junior high school auditorium Sunday at 3:30 p.m.

The Men of Song quartet has been rated by many critics as the finest concert quartet ever assembled. Over the years they have performed over 800 concerts, and the creative partnership of Charles Touchette and Edmond Karlsrud continues to form the guiding force behind this highly successful attraction as it has from its inception. The current program features many new arrangements created especially for the Men of Song by Mr. Touchette.

In addition to enormously popular concert appearances throughout North America, The Men of Song have perofrmed on television, radio, records and in the movies. The key to the success of the quartet is the ability to please every audience with unique programs and special arrangements. Each member of the ensemble brings to each performance the benefit of his own excellent individual musical background and professional experience.

Bob Fitz, tenor, is from the greater New York City area and began his college work at Randolph-Macon College where he was tenor soloist with their Glee Club.

Jack Horton, tenor, counts both Virginia and West Virginia as his home states. He has toured with the Robert Shaw Chorale and the New York Sextet and has appeared in New York's concert halls with the American Opera Society, Music Aeterna and the Camerata Singers.

Guy Waid, baritone, began life as an Oklahoman. Recently he toured as featured performer with the Goldovsky Opera Theatre, the After Dinner Opera Company, and the New York Sextet. Frederick McDonald, bass, is from Middleport, New York. He has toured as bass soloist with the DeCormier Singers and has appeared on TV as a member of the Ed Sullivan Show singing group.

Neil Stannard, accompanist, originally hails from the Los Angeles area where he was a scholarship student at the University of Southern California and from which he was graduated Cum Laude. He has toured and has played in New York's Carnegie Hall and Alice Tully Hall. Recently, Stannard was assistant conductor for the Tricentennial production of "Porgy and Bess" in Charleston, South Carolina.

This is the first of a three concert series for Delta C.C.A.

Ann Landers

Father's dentures, dinner rhythm

Dear Ann Landers: First of all, no home town and no initials, please. I've got to get a message across to my father in a roundabout way. I know he reads your column faithfully.

I love my father dearly and I would rather die than hurt his feelings, but he is driving me crazy and he doesn't even know it. Daddy got dentures last year. He refuses to wear denture paste, or whatever that stuff is that holds the plates to the gums. At mealtime the clicking and clacking drives me bananas. When we have guests I want to crawl under the table.

It's been getting worse. Now he clicks and clacks when he talks. Please print this letter and maybe he'll recognize himself. Thanks loads. --No Home Town, No Initials

Dear No: Here's the letter but don't expect him to recognize himself. readers often recognize friends, neighbors and relatives in this column -- but rarely themselves.

Tell your father noisy dentures mean a poor fit. Gums have a tendency to shrink and this is probably what has happened to him. He should go to his dentist for a readjustment -- and while he's there let's hope the dentist gives him a free sample of a good denture paste and suggests that he continue to use it.

Dear Ann Landers: Chris and I have had a good 21 years of marriage. By good I mean better than 90 per cent of the people we know.

Chris tells me over and over how much he loves me and how lucky he is to have me. Yet, rain or shine, sick or well, he must see his mother every solitary day. If he doesn't see her on his way to work, he drops in on his way back. This childish habit has made me feel like a failure. If I mean everything in the world to him, why does he have this ridiculous need for his mother?

I feel like telling him to move in with Mama if she is so important to him. I hinted at this yesterday and he accused me of being mean and petty. I'd like your unbiased opinion. -- Second Place

Dear S.P.: My unbiased opinion is that a daily visit to Mama's IS a bit much but since it's been going on for 21 years you ought to be used to it by now.

Why do you consider yourself a failure? Sonny Boy's compulsion to see his mother every day is his neurosis -- not yours. Any woman who says her marriage is better than 90 per cent of the people she knows should not be complaining to Ann Landers about her husband.

Dear Ann Landers: A good friend of ours is in a difficult position. Her brother's wife died three months ago and he moved into her home to recover from the grief. He left a good job and now says he isn't up to looking for work.

He writes poetry under a fictitious name which is just as well because he uses dirty words in his poems as well as in his conversation. Once when I told him to launder his language he said, "If that word is new to you, it's time you heard it."

This man offends me and I don't want him in our home. His sister insists she can't leave him alone. We hate to exclude her. What do you suggest? -- South Bend

Dear South: Tell your friend to let you know when Ginsberg moves out, so you can start inviting her again.

If you have trouble getting along with your parents ... if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Charter of Sikeston 4-H Club

Sikeston 4-H Club receives charter

Sikeston 4-H club was presented its charter during the meeting last Monday evening. Joe Ahmann, Scott county youth specialist, handed the charter to club president Joe Myers. Mrs. Peter Myers and Mrs. Gerald Jackson are community leaders for this club which includes all of the Sikeston community.

Officers were installed in a candlelight service after the presentation of the charter.

LeRoy Elfrank, vice-president of Kingsway Plaza Mall Retail Merchants Association informed the club of plans to have a live nativity scene on the mall during the Christmas season. Members of the club will participate in making and presenting this scene.

An acitivity committee has been appointed and is chaired by Jamie Christensen.

A Christmas party will be held at the Dec. 7 meeting. Dec. 7 is the last day to register for 4-H Club membership for the 1970-71 year.

Girl Scout dinner Thursday in Kennett

Mrs. Floyd Warr of Independence will be guest speaker for the Annual Girl Scout Dinner Thursday. The dinner will be at the American Legion in Kennett at 6:30 p.m.

A highlight of the program will be the Kennett Girl Scout Chorus and a show of uniform fashions. Mrs. Thurston Hill, President of the Cotton Boll Council, will conduct over the meeting.

Mrs. Warr is a graduate of Stephens College and is Regional - Vice - Chairman and member of the National Board of Directors of Girl Scouts of the U.S.A.

She is president of the Jackson County United Fund and Council and is serving on the Exuecitive Committee of Heart of America United Campaign.

Mizzou Loses

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Missouri had played two games without a fumble. Saturday, the Tigers made three bobbles in the first half.

As a result, they lost to Oklahoma 28-13 after giving up three touchdowns in the second quarter.

"Isn't it ironic that we got so many in the first half and lost them?" said Missouri Coach Dan Devine.

The defeat was Missouri's third in Big Eight Conference play and eliminated the Tigers from title contention. A year ago, the Bengals shared the championship with Nebraska.

Gregg Pruitt scored two of his three touchdowns for the day in the 21- point second quarter uprising, both on passes from Jack Mildren. One covered 60 yards and the other 34.

Mildren made the other from the one. Pruitt's third touchdown came in the last period on a two- yard run.

Missouri scored once in each the third and fourth quarters. Booker Washington got one on a four- yard romp and quarterback Chuck Roper the other on a two- yard sneak after completing a 22- yard pass to Tyrone Walls.

Missouri had very little punt return game, thanks to Joe Wylie, whose kicking kept the Tigers deep in their own territory.

After Missouri had pulled up to 21-7, Wylie also returned a kickpff 76 yards to the Tigers' two.

Devine said of Wylie:

"He's something."

Devine said Missouri "played awfully well at times. Like when we stopped them four times at the one. But you can't give up that easy touchdown."

Alton Wins JV Title

ALTON — Coach Mitch "the Switch" Haskins Alton junior varsity claimed the championship of its own invitational tournament Saturday night, beating Couch 28-23.

The defensive minded Alton five completed the tournament, holding each opponent to an average 23 points a game.

Danny Heiskell and Bubbles Janic paced the Alton scoring attack with 11 and 10 points respectively while Ed Tombs had 11 for Couch's top effort.

Van Buren defeated Summersville 44-24 for the consolation prize.

FIFTEEN SENIORS completed their high school football careers Friday night as the Sikeston Bulldogs lost to Poplar Bluff 24-13. Title Battles Friday

Only six games are scheduled Friday night in Southeast Missouri's final regular season football evening, but two of those will decide division championships.

Attention centers at Cape Girardeau and Malden where the Northern and Southern division titles will be decided respectively although the host have clinched a share of the honors.

Once beaten Cape Central goes after its third straight Northern division crown when it hosts Perryville while Malden tries to repeat as sole champions of the South when they take on Dexter.

Another battle shapes up at Malden, besides the division title, as Malden's Charlie Barber and Dexter's Terry Gibson will be vieing for the district scoring honors.

Winless Kennett will get its final shot at recording a victory this season when it hosts Caruthersville Friday. The Tribe has dropped 25 straight over a three year period.

In other matches, Poplar Bluff will be at Fox of Arnold, while keeping a ear open for a possible Perryville upset at Cape. Jackson is a Charleston in a North battle that could decide who finished fourth in the division as the Bluejays go into the contest with a 2-2-1 league sltae while Jackson is 2-3.

Friday's clash at Malden will match the top two offenses while pitting the area's second and third rated defensive units. Dexter, with 61 points last week, leads the 18 area teams in offense with 294 points in nine games for a 33 point a game average compared to Malden's 30 point mark. Defensively the Bearcats have yielded but 5.5 points a game while the Green Waves have given up 5.8 a game.

Kennett ended a 12 game search for a touchdown at Dexter last week where it crossed the goal line and lost the distinction of being the only team in the state not to have scored a TD. It has accumulated but 15 points all season while yielding 279.

Chaffee has yielded the most points this season, giving up 292 in eight battles.

South Pemiscot and Delta C-7 finished their campaign's without a victory and sharing third place in the Bootheel division.

Kickers Star

Tom Dempsey had an angel on his shoulder and some magic in his foot.

"We got beaten by a miracle, what else can you say?" was all Detroit Coach Joe Schmidt could say after Dempsey's record 63-yard field goal gave New Orleans a 19-17 National Football League upset Sunday.

The kick on the last play of the game appeared to be heaven-sent for the underdog Saints, who supposedly hadn't a prayer ot winning.

The Saints' bull-strong booter had some faith he could make the distance, which bettered the 1956 mark of 56 yards by Baltimore's Bert Rechichar.

"I knew I could kick the ball that far, but whether or not I could kick it straight, kept running through my mind," Dempsey said. "I knew I had to hit the ball awfully hard and would need a little extra time. But the Lions held up perfectly and I got a perfect snap (from Joe Scarpati)."

The field goal had a field day in other NFL games Sunday. Cincinnati's Horst Muhlmann kicked five three-pointers as the Bengals bested Buffalo 43-14; George Blanda's 52-yarder helped Oakland trim Cleveland 23-20; Fred Cox sailed four field goals in Minnesota's 19-10 success over Washington; Mike Mercer's 38-yard boot was the difference in San Diego's 24-21 victory over Denver and Pete Gogolak ripped three as the New York Giants upset Dallas 23-20.

Atlanta and Los Angeles played to a 10-10 tie; Philadelphia won its first game since Nov. 23, 1969 by beating Miami 24-17; San Francisco routed Chicago 37-16; Kansas City slugged Houston 24-9; St. Louis walloped Boston 31-0 and Pittsburgh toppled the New York Jets 21-17 in the other games. Green Bay and Baltimore clash in the Monday night television (ABC) game in Milwaukee's County Stadium.

Dempsey's booming drive cleared the cross-bar by mere inches, and he admitted it took some special ingredients.

"There's so much involved in kicking a 60-yard field goal," he said. "You've got to try and hit the ball as hard as you possibly can and yet, kicking it straight is a hard thing to do.

"It just happened that I hit it right that time and it happened at the right time."

Detroit appeared to have won it when Erroll Mann kicked an 18-yard field goal with 11 seconds to give the Lions a onepoint lead.

But New Orleans' quarterback Billy Kilmer completed a pass to Al Dodd after the Detroit kickoff and Dodd went out of bounds at the Saints' 45 with two seconds left.

Blanda, Oakland's 43-year-old kicking wizard, came through with his game-winner with three seconds left. He earlier relieved Daryle Lamonica at quarterback in the final period and threw a 14-yard touchdown pass and kicked the extra point.

Cox made good on attempts of 44,17, 24 and 42 yards and Dave Osborn spun over from the one as Minnesota stopped Washington.

John Hadl fired three touchdown passes, two to Gary Garrison, and Mercer added the finishing touch for San Diego with his field goal.

Gogolak kicked the New York Giants into contention with his talented toe, then Ron Johnson sparkled in a second-half comeback with two touchdowns. The Giants held off a determined Dallas scoring bid in the closing moments.

Roman Gabriel threw a fouryard scoring strike and David Ray kicked the extra point that pulled Los Angeles into a tie with underdog Atlanta.

Philadelphia had to stave off a fourth-quarter rally by battling Miami. Norm Snead had built a substantial Eagle lead on three TD tosses.

John Brodie completed 21 passes for San Francisco and moved into an elite class of quarterbacks with 2,000 or more lifetime completions. John Unitas, Y.A. Tittle and Sonny Jurgensen are the others.

Linebacker Bobby Bell latched onto a Houston pass and raced 45 yards for a Kansas City touchdown that broke open the rainstorm-slowed game.

MacArthur Lane broke loose on three touchdown runs and they were all the St. Louis Cardinals needed.

Violence At Prep Game

KANSAS CITY (AP) — High school principals were to meet today to seek means of preventing violence at athletic events in Kansas City.

Four persons were wounded by shotgun pellets after a football game between Central and Southeast high schools Saturday night.

Police quoted witnesses as saying six or seven shots were fired before some youths drove away from a parking lot near the football field. Several school officials said the shooting may not have been connected with the game.

Andy Nurski, physical education director, said it may be necessary to schedule all football games for daytime.

Kimbrough was hospitalized in satisfacroty condition. Dixon and Clemons were treated at a hospital. Chambers refused treatment.

HE REGREW HAIR

T. A. Melton Shows He- ReGrew Hair. He Did Not Have Male Pattern Baldness.

EBB LICENSED HAIR CONSULTANT IN SIKESTON, MO.

TUESDAY, TOMORROW; WILL EXPLAIN HAIR PROBLEMS FREE

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 9. Now is the time to act on this great opportunity. Every hair- worried person (man or woman) should take advantage of this FREE CONSULTATION. Many users have reported not only stopping their hair from thinning... but are really growing more hair.

GUARANTEED

You will be given a written guarantee on a pro - rated basis from the beginning to the end.

CAN'T HELP

Male pattern baldness is the cause of a great majority of cases of baldness and excessive hair loss, for which no method is effective. Ebb Hair Specialists cannot help those who are slick bald after years of gradual hair loss.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness seems to "run in the family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of your hair loss.

Many conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are slick Bald and your hair roots are dead you are beyond help. So, if you still have hair on top of your head, and would like to stop hair loss and grow more hair... now is the time to do something about it

Just take a few minutes of your time on Tuesday, Nov. 10, and go to the Holiday Inn in Sikeston, Mo. between 1 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. and ask the Desk Clerk for M. J. Hornick, room number.

There is no charge or obligation... all consultations are private, you will not be embarrassed in any way.

TRJC Opener Nov. 21

POPLAR BLUFF — Gene Bess, former outstanding high school basketball coach at Oran and Anniston high schools, will be the new head coach of the Three Rivers iunior college Raiders this season, succeeding Bob Cradic.

Bess, who assisted Cradic at Trjc last seascn, will have two all Missouri Junior College Athletic Conference stars to build his team around this season in Fred Johnson and Leonard Bishop.

Cradic is the new head coach at Southeast Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau.

"We are not going to have much size," commented Bess, who has lost two of last seasons starters through eligibility and another by graduation.

TRJC has a 22- game schedule along with tournaments at Robert Morris College in Carthage, Ill.; Mineral Area Tournament at Flat River and Region 16 sectional tourney at Florissant Valley in St. Louis.

The biggest player listed on the 13- player Raiders roster is 6- foot- 5 Freshman Linden Hills of Ellington, who is one of eight players listed over 6- foot.

"Size will be our biggest problem this season," Bess noted again, but related "we can make up for this disadvantage with added hustle and desire."

Bess looks forward to the return at mid- season of John Johnson and Roy Fields who shared starting positions last season.

Besides Fred Johnson and Leonard Bishop, Bess also has the services of returning letterman, Paul Hale.

Among the top freshman recruits at TRJC is Larry Lawrence of Sikeston, who Bess noted "could be the key to a successful season." Larry was a last minute addition to the Raiders Roster.

Former Howardville high guard and Missouri All - Stater, Lennies McFerren, is listed on the roster along with Oran standout, Don Evans, Poplar Bluff Star John Del Lawson, former Anniston high all- tater Jim Holdiness along with Neelyville's Larry Wills, Central City, Ky. stars, Steve Reynolds and Joe Stone round out the 15 player roster.

The Raiders open their season at Poplar Bluff high school gymnasium Nov. 21 at 7:30 p.m. against Phillips County of Helena, Ark.

Memphis Pros Take Over 2nd

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There were 3½ minutes left in Pittsburgh's American Basketball Association game against Memphis Sunday night when the Condors lost their last hope for catching the Pros.

Memphis won the game 105-96 and if there was any doubt about the result, it evaporated when John Brisker of the Condors got into a fist fight with Memphis' Wendell Ladner and both players were ejected.

Brisker was the Condors' hottest shot and wound up with 25 points- more than one quarter of the teams total.

In other ABA action Sunday, Utah took Indiana 111-103, New York whipped Denver 114-104 and Carolina defeated the Floridians 122-115.

On Saturday, New York whipped Carolina 108-98, Texas topped the Floridians 111-108, Virginia outlasted Denver 138-133 and Kentucky whipped Utah 111-100.

In the NBA Sunday, Seattle defeated Cleveland 111-105, Milwaukee beat Phoenix 125-105, New York defeated Portland 125-113 and Los Angeles topped Baltimore 124-105.

Steve Jones scored 21 points and Gerald Govan pulled down 16 rebounds as the Pros jumped in front of Pittsburgh in the second period and opened the lead to as much as 17 points before halftime and moved into second place in the west division with a 6-5 record, 3½ game behind Utah

Big Red Blank Patriots, 31-0

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals blasted the Boston Patriots 31-0 Sunday in a National Football League game but paused only briefly to savor the success.

Looming more important for the Cardinals, who moved back atop the NFL's National Conference East division standings, is a nationally televised rematch a week from tonight against the Dallas Cowboys in the Cotton Bowl.

As the Cardinals methodically flattened the Pats, the Cowboys lost to the New York Giants 23-20.

The Cardinals are now 6-2 with six games left in the season and the Giants and Cowboys are tied for second at 5-3.

"I always like to have the team we're going to play the next week win," said quarterback Jim Hart somewhat superstitiously.

"The week after we lost to Giants (35-17) we came off ready to unload on people. Now we're having to take on the defending division champion under the same circumstances."

Running back Mac Arthur Lane, who cracked Boston's defenses for three touchdowns, was more optimistic.

"There's no doubt in my mind that if we go out and execute the way we did today and the way we have done we can win," he said.

"It doesn't surprise me at all that we've been winning," Lane added, "because we've been playing our own type of ball. Our defense has been coming along, and that's another feather in our cap."

Lane, who bulled for 71 yards on 14 carries, also pointed at reserve running back Johnny Roland as a source of Cardinal strength.

While regular Cid Edwards nursed a sprained ankle suffered the week before, the 215pound Roland blasted 53 yards on 15 thrusts.

"He's a hell of a blocker," said Lane. "John's a hell of an all-around man."

The Cards bestowed game balls on Roland, who set up the Cardinals' third touchdown with a 36-yard punt return, and cornerback Miller Farr, who intercepted two Boston passes.

Cardinal Coach Charley Winner saluted the Cardinal defense for its second shutout in as many weeks.

"This is the thing a good team is able to do," he exuded, "be consistent."

Inconsistency and lack of blocking were lamented by Boston's John Mazur, whose NFL head coaching debut was marred by a lackluster Patriot performance.

"St. Louis has good backs and good blocking," he said. "We've got good runners, but we don't have anybody who can block."

Coogan's Bluff Revised for TV Showing

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

'Coogan's Bluff,'' a two-year-old movie that inspired the recent six-part series, "McCloud," on television, will be broadcast on NBC Monday night, Nov. 23. Clint Eastwood plays a deputy sheriff from Arizona in New York to bring back a convicted murderer.

TV viewers who saw the film at theaters may be surprised, even disappointed, when they see the TV edition. The original contained a lot of violence and was pretty explicit about sex.

Herminio Traviesas, who rides shotgun for the network in the area of taste, said that when the studio producing "Coogan's Bluff" offered it to the network, it was rejected as unsuitable.

"They took it back and worked over it," Traviesas said. ''They eliminated some objectionable scenes, including one showing some topless performers, and they cut out some of the violence. All, it should be added, without doing anything to slow up the story.''

The TV version will be about as long as the original: The studio restored some footage originally dropped to the cutting room floor.

The word now is that Andy Griffith will be the sole survivor of his CBS series when it is reconstituted after midyear. It is expected that he will be presented as the mayor of a small town near Mayberry, N.C.—the "Mayberry, R.F.D." cast will appear in the first episode. He will also acquire a wife, Lee Merriwether; a son; a daughter and a spinster sister.

And Jerry Van Dyke, his costar of "Headmaster," will return to the nightclubs and await discovery by TV—again.

Goals of Special Education Described

W. I. Green, director of special services of the Topeka public schools, had a article on special education for children published in the Topeka State Journal.

Green is the son of Mrs. Leonard Green and the late Leonard Green of Bell City. He has one brother, Bill, living in Bell City, and one sister, Mrs. Albert Painton, a resident of Painton.

The article was one of a series being printed by educators about subjects of interest to parents.

In the article Green speaks of his department and some of its objectives.

Green says:

"Until recently, when teachers, parents and others referred to a need for special education within the public schools it was generally accepted that they were talking about classes or services for retarded youngsters.

"The connotation of the term special education was used simultaneously with the mentally handicapped. Few people outside of the public school system are aware of the scope of programs offered to students needing some specific assistance to maintain an academic record worthy of recognition.

"The department is most hesitant to pin labels on youngsters and the obvious goal is to return them to the regular classroom and provide an educational structure that prepares him for a life within the confines of our adult society. Special classes for retardates emphasize home living skills and all leisure time activities in addition to academic skills.

"Most programs are destined to make the student a future productive citizen. Special classes for the disturbed youngster are semi- clinical in nature with education being presented hand in hand with clinical type treatment so that the youngster is better able to cope with real life problems.

"The homebound youngsters are given an opportunity to continue studies even though they must be absent from the regular classroom. Learning disability teachers function so that additional help is given youngsters at an early age so that he may catch up and hopefully proceed at the regular rate as the peer group."

Pidgin English is spoken by an estimated 50 million people around the world, the National Geographic says. The Bible, technical and medical books all have been translated into it. But though at least three-fourths of the words are derived from English, their pronunciation has so changed that only students of pidgin English can understand it.

Let's hear it for the drunks.

It's not the drink that kills, it's the drunk, the problem drinker, the abusive drinker, the drunk driver. This year he'll be involved in the killing of at least 25,000 people. He'll be involved in at least 800,000 highway crashes. After all the drunk driver has done for us, what can we do for him? If he's sick, let's help him. But first we've got to get him off the road.

Do something. Write the National Safety Council, Dept. A, 425 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Illinois 60611. And your voice will be heard.

Interstate 55 Has New Record

Interstate 55, a Bootheel - based group formerly known as The Collection, has a new single record out on Rolando Records of Memphis. The recording consists of "Can't You Feel The Same," written by Mark Carroll, lead singer for the group, backed with "Twenty Four Years."

This is the third record for the group. As The Collection they relased two singles, "The Good Times Are Over" and "Flying High Wednesday" both of which received mention in Billboard and cashbox magazines.

Recently the group has been appearing at colleges throughout the Mid- South. In August they were featured as "Extra Added Attraction" at the Regional Battle of the Bands in Toledo. They have been frequent guests on Channel 13 "Talent Party" out of Memphis, and are scheduled to make two more appearances on the show this year.

Rolando Records has also released a short film on the group which shows them performing their new single. This film will be aired on television shows such as "Talent Party" in other parts of the country.

Book Review

"...a rich and exhilarating story...
affectionate, wise, earthy, laced with humor and definitely on the side of the human race,"
--Harper's Magazine

A MATTER OF TIME
by Jessamyn West

A MATTER OF TIME is the fifth in a series of six titles by renowned author Jessamyn West to be published by Avon Books. Preceded by EXCEPT FOR ME AND THEE, THE FRIENDLY PERSUASION, LEAFY RIVERS, and CRESS DELAHANTY, it will be followed shortly by THE WITCH DIGGERS.

In A MATTER OF TIME, Miss West portrays two sisters with very different natures--one restrained and dreamy, untouched by passion, and more than once a failure as a wife, and the younger of the two wild and casual about romance in a way her sister could never be. It is only when the older sister is forced by an ironic twist of fate to make a lasting gesture of love that their seemingly irrevocable roles undergo change.

Five Fined

EAST PRAIRIE -- Police Judge J. Marvin Bryan levied $20 fines on Bob Lemons and Jap Matthews and a $25 fine on Earnest Easley each was charged with intoxication.

Doyle Faire and James Cassey, charged with having open beer in the city limits, each paid $25 fines.

28 NEW SPARTANS

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Twenty-eight student-athletes have signed national letters of intent for Michigan State football and have enrolled for fall classes.

Coach Duffy Daugherty says 18 of the 28 are Michigan residents. Twenty-seven are freshmen. Quarterback Mike Rasmussen of Fresno, Calif., is a junior college graduate and will have junior class status and play on the varsity this fall.

Red China Throws Off Isolationism

By EDITORIAL
RESEARCH REPORTS

NEW YORK — United Nations debate on the admission of Red China is expected to begin about mid-November.

After four years of laying low in international affairs, Red China is bounding back onto the world scene. Not only has Peking agreed to exchange envoys with Canada, but in recent weeks the Maoist regime has taken steps to broaden contacts with Western Europe, Africa, the Middle East and Latin America.

And the Chinese have abandoned the disdainful attitude they have shown to the United Nations during the 20 years of vain attempts by their supporters to get them into the world organization. "China's friends abroad have lately spoken, with obvious encouragement from Peking, about the need for Chinese representation at the U.N.," reports the FAR EASTERN ECONOMIC REVIEW.

Once again, the attempt to gain Red China's admission is likely to fail. But the vote will probably be closer than ever. Algerian Ambassador Mohammed Yazid, a supporter of the move, expects the resolution calling for the expulsion of Nationalsist China and the admission of Peking to be defeated by only three or four votes. Last year, it was voted down 56 to 48, with 21 abstentions.

Writing in FOREIGN AFFAIRS, L. LaDany, a long - time China watcher, sees some sign of greater pragmatism in Peking's dealings with other nations. "The absolute worship of Mao as the 'head of world communism is no longer a condition ... ' for friendly relations with China," he states. During most of the cultural revolution, China had only one ambassador abroad -- in Cairo. Now about half the 50 or so ambassadorial posts abroad have been filled and the rest are expected to be operating at full strength shortly.

Within the last few months, Peking has played host to cabinet - level visitors from France, Tanzania, Zambia, Romania, the Sudan and Congo (Brazzaville). An agreement for a Chinese - financed and built 1,000-mile, $400 million railroad through Zambia and Tanzania was signed. Technical level missions from Poland and East Germany signed new trade agreements, the first since the cultural revolution.

While China and the Soviet Union are still wary of each other, and have large forces along their frontiers, the level of acrimony has lowered. Relations with North Korea have been improved and overtures made to end tensions with India resulting from the border clashes of 1962. A gesture was even made to the United States by the release of Bishop James Walsh after he had served 12 years in jail.

Some China watchers, such as O. Edmund Clubb, believe China is following a policy of moderation in hopes of gaining support on the world scene in case of attack by the United States or the Soviet Union. "With China's security imperiled, the Maoist regime would in all probability prove ready to assume China's U.N. seat to gain whatever additional protection its new relationship might offer," Clubb writes.

President Nixon, in his far-ranging State of the World message last February 18, said the Chinese "should not remain isolated from the international community." While he added that Washington would still "maintain its treaty commitment" to Nationalist China, there is increasing talk of a "two-China" policy.

Under both Democratic and Republican presidents, the United States has been the major supporter of the move to declare the admission of Red China to the U.N. as "an important question," requiring a two-thirds majority. This has effectively blocked a vote in Peking's favor. Still unresolved, however, is just how long the United States will be able to prevail as China looks outward.

For some books, even speed-reading is a waste of time.

IN THE MIDDLE with Dan Whittle

Self, I said:

"'Dan' go 'forth' and change channels."

This was after witnessing Jack's jogging techniques to pure exhaustion. He ran more than any politician I have seen.

After seeing him "ruin" my TV enjoyment I wanted to switch worse than fight, but ol' Jack out-jogged me in my trek from channel 12 to channel 6. It seemed he had "runs" and re-"runs" across every television station within sighting distance.

Knowing I had lost the race I decided to read for a bit. I had read everything in the house, so again I addressed myself, but his time in old English:

"Sally ye, Dan, forth and get out your new Webster's unabridged dictionary."

I feel a need to know new words. I flipped dictionary pages until coming to the "s" segment. In that section I came across the word sally, which can be a name, Sally, or a word meaning action, such as sally forth, rush forth, etc.

I was doomed in my attempt to relieve my mind of politics. This brought me right back to Jack, who has a wife (you guessed it) named Sally.

Consider the names mentioned henceFORTH:

Mr. and Mrs. John "Jack" "Sally" "Dan"forth.

Another part of Jack Danforth's campaign comes to mind - a bit painfully, I might add. Jack, I could have cared less about how you met Sally. To put me through this time after time was not considerate. How would you like to hear again and again the circumstances surrounding the time I met my wife? Undoubtedly, Jack, this would drive you "Fran"tic. Yes, John Danforth, my wife's name is Fran.

Speaking of John, I will excuse myself at this time.

ROCK RIDGES AND SANDBARS RECREATE CONDITIONS AND LIFE OF SOUTHWEST

John Madson in the Missouri Conservationist

The flat sand of the desert stretched away to the south, silent beneath the blazing July sun.

There was no sign of life in this glaring wasteland until, without warning, a tiger leaped from the sand in front of us. It stopped 30 feet away, turned and faced us, and waited for us to make the next move.

We just kept on walking toward it. We're pretty brave when the desert is a Mississippi river sandbar, the tiger is a half-inch tiger beetle, and there's a cold jug of lemonade in the trees yonder. Yet, that sandbar was a sure 'nough desert. And there is no denying that the tiger beetle is as tigery as they come.

There's no beetle faster on its feet, and it can fly faster than it can run. Strong, agile, and forever on the prowl, the tiger beetle is a deadly hunter. Even in its larval form, this beetle lives in a burrow in the sand, its huge head blocking the entrance and powerful jaws extending upward to seize any unwary bug that blunders into the trap.

Some tiger beetles like hot, dusty roadsides, or hard, dry plowed ground, or beaten paths. In other words, it's usually a desert creature — for those places are deserts just as surely as the Mojave or Sahara. It's a just a matter of size.

Missouri has many deserts. Rock ledges, cliffs, and high sandbars are all little deserts, even in this humid climate. If a place doesn't get enough water, or if atmospheric conditions promote rapid water loss, it will become desert.

If this condition lasts long enough, the little scrap of Sahara will begin to support its own special creatures.

In Jefferson County there is a three-mile ledge of naked sandstone. This special desert is inhabited by a special set of "ledge creatures" that have been studied by Dr. Owen Sexton of Washington University since about 1960. One study, just completed, was of the collared lizards there.

Also called the "mountain boomer," this 10-inch lizard is a ferocious little meat-eater that is built like a tiny racing dinosaur. It's a vest-pocket Tyrannosaurus that can run swiftly on its hind legs, will challenge a man when startled, and will usually latch onto you when handled. (Let him dangle a moment, and he'll drop off; shake your hand in pain, and he'll just bite harder.)

The collared lizard likes rocky areas and hot, open slopes. The reptile is rare in heavy Ozark woodlands, but is found in some other Missouri deserts — such as the rock ridges of Washington State Park.

That Jefferson County ledge also has some flatheaded snakes — small, brown, gentle "rear-fanged" snakes that have venom, but aren't big enough to harm man. Other ledge animals are the native Missouri scorpion and tarantula. Most Missourians don't know their state is blessed with such critters, and would probably be just as happy not knowing it. But the creatures are there on that sun-baked ridge, sharing their personal desert with gnarled juniper and prickly pear cactus, and never leaving for the moist, shady forests nearby.

The desert conditions on the ledge are caused by its inclination toward the sun. Facing southwest, and tilted at right angles to the sun, the ridge receives the sun's full intensity. Sunlight strikes such places with several times the force felt by level ground. The more obliquely the sun strikes hillsides, the cooler and moister the soils there, and the less likely that they are desert.

Certain bluffs along the Missouri and Mississippi rivers catch the full brunt of the sun. High, facing west, and unprotected by other land features, they take the full glare of our long July afternoons without shade or mercy, and are seared by hot summer winds. The slopes and edges of these highlands may have a few struggling blackjack oaks and cedars, but they are usually dry prairie with little bluestem, prickly pear, and Spanish bayonet.

There was a time during the Mesozoic era, a hundred million years ago, when Missouri was a vast desert inhabited by huge dinosaurs. Today we have mini-deserts inhabited by mini-monsters. But they're no less interesting for their lack of size — and no less genuine.

Bond Margin Tops For Republican

ST. LOUIS (AP) — When Christopher S. "Kit" Bond beat incumbent Democrat State Auditor Haskell Holman in Tuesday's election his margin of more than 200,000 votes set a record.

Records at the municipal reference library at St. Louis City Hall show no Republican winner of a statewide office in this century had a greater plurality over an opponent, although some have won by a greater percentage of the vote.

Bond got 715,984 votes to Holman's 515,432.

Nixon-Agnew Campaign Efforts Reap Few Gains

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite scattered successes, there is little evidence the strenuous campaign efforts of President Nixon and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew did more than raise money and morale for the GOP in last week's elections.

They even may have caused damage, driving dissident Democrats back into party ranks this year and creating bitterness in the moderate wing of the GOP likely to take the form of cries for Agnew's replacement on the 1972 ticket.

Only 18 of the 52 Senate and governor candidates for whom Nixon and Agnew campaigned in 38 states were elected last Tuesday.

Many of those who won probably would have been elected without any help from Nixon or Agnew. In addition, a dozen Republican governors aided by one or the other were thrown out of office.

Govs. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, Ronald Reagan of California, William G. Milliken of Michigan and Francis W. Sargent of Massachusetts were re-elected generally on their own.

Of these, the only state in which Nixon and Agnew actually campaigned was California. Although Reagan won a second term, by a reduced margin, the major object of the Nixon-Agnew push, Sen. George Murphy, was trounced by Democrat John V. Tunney, and Republicans lost the legislature.

Many Democratic leaders feel the aggressive GOP "law and order" push, and Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's election eve television appearance to answer GOP charges, did more to unify the Democratic party than anything in the past two years.

In two states, Connecticut and Tennessee, where both Nixon and Agnew appeared, the Republicans captured both the governorship and a Senate seat from the Democrats.

However, the disintegration of Connecticut party organization, a divisive Senate primary, Sen. Thomas J. Dodd's disruptive independent candidacy and a weak gubernatorial campaign presaged Democratic defeat before Nixon and Agnew ever campaigned there.

And in Tennessee, increasingly Republican in recent years, a business scandal revolving around the Democratic gubernatorial nominee and the rising opposition to Sen. Albert Gore evidenced by his weak primary showing were significant forerunners of the GOP victory.

In Maryland, Republican J. Glenn Beall Jr.'s victory over Sen. Joseph D. Tydings was mainly due to antagonism to the senator, and, in Ohio, Republican Robert Taft Jr.'s win in the face of a Democratic gubernatorial triumph is credited largely to his famous family name.

Only in New York, where Nixon and Agnew never really campaigned directly, can the Republican leaders claim success.

Their efforts to undercut Republican Sen. Charles E. Goodell because of his anti-Nixon votes on key issues had the intended double effect of making it respectable for Republicans to support Conservative nominee James Buckley while driving some liberals to Goodell from Democrat Richard Ottinger.

Despite the short-range success in New York, Nixon and Agnew probably have bought themselves a peck of long-range trouble. The resentment stirred by Nixon's and Agnew's efforts among liberal Republicans in New York is likely to carry over into 1972 in a state where a sharply divided and leaderless Democratic party went for Hubert H. Humphrey in 1964 over Nixon.

So much for the successes.

In state after state, where the national administration had recruited GOP candidates, campaigned strenuously for them and provided heavy financing, Republicans were unsuccessful in efforts to dislodge Democratic senators. And a number of House seats vacated by GOP Senate candidates were won by Democrats.

In North Dakota, Nevada, Wyoming and Utah, where Nixon and Agnew recruited GOP contenders, Democratic Sens. Quentin Burdick, Howard M. Cannon, Gale McGee and Frank E. Moss equaled or bettered their 1964 winning percentages. The congressional seats held by the GOP Senate candidates in North Dakota, Wyoming and Utah went Democratic.

Agnew appeared at least once in each of the states, and Nixon campaigned in all but Wyoming.

In Texas, where Republican optimism was evident during a two-stop swing by the President six days before the election, Democrats held the governorship and a Senate seat by comfortable margins.

Elsewhere in the South, the Nixon-Agnew effort proved futile.

In Florida, where the two made six appearances between them in an effort to put the GOP back together after a bitter primary, Democrats swept the key races.

In North Carolina, where both campaigned in an effort to aid the GOP's fight to gain congressional and legislative seats, Democrats kept their House majority, added to their strength in the legislature.

In South Carolina, Georgia and Arkansas, Democrats won governors contests despite Agnew campaign appearances.

In New York and Massachusetts, GOP Govs. Rockefeller and Sargent made it clear earlier in the campaign they did not want any help from Agnew.

In Ohio, Taft asked for an appearance by Nixon and got it, while making clear he didn't think Agnew would help. The vice president stayed out.

In Minnesota, where Nixon repaid a political debt to GOP Senate nominee Clark Macgregor with a late-in-the campaign speech, Republicans passed the word they didn't want Agnew, who earlier in the year had helped them raise $1 million.

His fund-raising efforts, and the morale boost from highly partisan speeches before highly partisan audiences, were the one acknowledged Agnew plus in the campaign. He raised some $3 million this fall, a similar amount earlier in the year.

Driver Sought In Hit and Run Death

POPLAR BLUFF — An elderly Poplar Bluffian was killed Friday night in what police believe was a hit- and -run traffic accident involving two vehicles.

The victim was Willie Miller, described in his 60s, who resided at Velma Street and Railroad Avenue and received his mail at 928 Velma St.

City Patrolmen Lee Hathaway and Wayne Pruett reported that Miller apparently was walking south on Railroad Ave., alongside the Joe Wiseman and Sons property when he was struck by a 1963 Chevrolet.

Miller's body was knocked 15 feet over a fence and pile of salvage about five feet high. The Chevrolet then spun out of control and rammed into the fence and junk.

William Dugger, 1911 South 11th St., reported the wrecked car to police at 7:24 p.m. Hathaway and Pruett found Miller's body on arrival at the scene. A two- thirds empty half-pint of whiskey was found on the front seat of the car, according to Sheriff Clyde Hendrix and the State Trooper Robert Trotter, who aided police in the investigation.

A short time after the wreck was found, 18-year- old Debbie Bounds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gid Bounds of Wappapello, went to the police station and reported the 1963 Chevrolet was stolen from the 500 block of Cedar Street. The car was licensed to Jewel Bounds, the girl's mother.

The second vehicle found wrecked at the scene was a 1961 Chevrolet licensed to Dennis R. Trotter of 519 A Poplar St., Poplar Bluff, and 3833 Botanical Ave., St. Louis.

No one was in or around either vehicle when officers arrived.

An investigation was contining today in an effort to determine who was driving the vehicles. Police said physical evidence at the scene indicated the older model car may have been chasing the vehicle that killed Miller.

Miller's body was removed to the Frank- Cotrell Funeral Home. He is believed survived by four children, of Mississippi and Chicago.

Gas Additive Proves Genetic Hazard to Mice

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Massachusetts researcher says new evidence from experiments with mice suggests that men who breathe a chemical used as an additive in leaded gasoline may be unable to father healthy children.

Dr. Samuel S. Epstein, of the Children's Cancer Research Foundation in Boston, said the chemical -- trimethyl phosphate -- is used in leaded gasoline to stop spark-plug fouling caused by the lead. He said some of the additive is released, while unburned, through a car's exhaust.

Epstein said Thursday the chemical apparently caused a mutation in the male sperm. The result was males treated with the chemical and then mated with untreated females were unable to produce embryos capable of living outside the mother's womb.

Epstein said the chemical had been administered to mice only by injections or orally but added there's a "good likelihood" similar findings will be achieved in experiments where mice inhale the chemical.

Unusual Group

The group of men known as the "Knights of the Golden Horseshoe" consisted of the gentlemen who accompanied Gov. Alexander Spotswood of Virginia on his journey to the Blue Ridge in the summer of 1716. Spotswood's companions were presented with miniature golden horseshoes.

'The Amateur Hour' Bows out As Longest-Running TV Show

NEW YORK (AP) — The years went by but the scenario remained the same. The hoofers, crooners and comedians performed frantically for the audience's approval, then basked in the applause that brought them one step nearer to the elusive world of "show biz."

Ted Mack's Original Amateur Hour, the oldest program on network television, had emerged unscathed in the changeover from radio to television, survived two wars and settled into a comfortable routine while the rest of television sought desperately to understand the taste of its audience.

The show finally died, quietly. CBS said Monday it had been canceled, when it was not renewed by the sponsor, Geritol.

The Amateur Hour had not been seen since late September, but its disappearance was not noticed because of a number of National Football League doubleheaders that preempted its Sunday slot.

For nearly 23 years—36 years counting the time on radio—a parade of performers presented their routines to audiences across America.

Most remained amateurs, even if they won. But over the years some of the entertainment world's most luminous personalities had their first national exposure on the show—and a lot of them went away losers.

There was skinny Frank Sinatra, a member of the "Hoboken Four" quartet. They were on in 1935, and lost. Ann-Margret appeared in 1957 but the audience gave its vote to a South American who played a tune on a laurel leaf.

Some winners who went on to professional success included comedian Jack Carter, 1941; singers Pat Boone, 1953, and Teresa Brewer, 1938. A fat 12-year-old soprano named Maria Kalogeropoulos made the winners circle in 1935. She went on to greater operatic fame as Maria Callas.

Over the years, more than 25,000 acts were presented—barber-shop quartets, dancers, standup comics and specialty acts. They often had unpronounceable names and came from immemorable places.

The ones who made national television were already survivors of a stringent screening process. Three units of talent scouts crisscrossed the country constantly looking for new talent. Mack estimated that only one out of 25 applicants made the TV grade.

At auditions in Nashville, the scouts turned down a young man with an unusual singing style. His hair kept falling in his eyes and he wouldn't stand still. His name was Elvis Presley.

The show was started in 1934 by Major Edward Bowes when he was the publicity-minded director of a Broadway movie house. It became a pioneering program on network radio in 1935 and within a year was the rage.

When Bowes died in 1946, Mack, a saxophone player who had been his talent supervisor, took over.

He presided over the first television broadcast, on Jan. 18, 1948 over the four-station Dumont television network—six months before Ed Sullivan's variety hour made its on-camera debut.

CBS long tolerated the relatively low ratings of the show—10 million viewers—because of its low cost. "We're devoted to the show," a CBS executive said in 1968. "We wouldn't lose it for the world."

But the Amateur Hour is gone and the viewer's nervous empathy for a star in the making can now be replaced by the animal joy of seeing the middle linebacker crash through for a crunching tackle.

Ripping Off

SOME AMERICANS are doing their Christmas shoplifting early. Shoplifting has become a major problem for the nation,s retailers who claim the wave of stealing and employee thefts cost stores across the country nearly $3 billion last year. And the losses get passed on to honest customers who must pay higher prices for the goods they buy.

F.B.I. Director J. Edgar Hoover has called shoplifting "the fastest - growing larceny in the country." Cases of shoplifting have tripled since 1959 -- and retailers claim prices could be cut 15 percent if it were not for thefts. Professional thieves have taken a good part of the loot, but drug addicts, store employees, teenagers and housewives are also helping strip counters.

"This has been the worst year retailers in the Washington area have ever had concerning the problem of thievery," says Edward H. Selonick, retail bureau chairman of the city's Board of Trade. He reports that shoplifting has reached as high as 7.7 per cent of retail sales. "We.re talking about an estimated $85 to $150 million a year," Selonick adds.

SOME OF THE REPORTS show the audacity of shoplifters is almost unlimited. Police in one Chicago suburb arrested a 20- year- old woman for shoplifting in an expensive department store. "She wore a maxicoat and not a stitch underneath," said a detective. "She was going to get a whole new wardrobe from the skin out." Inflation has also hit shoplifting with the F.B.I. reporting the average theft now amounts to $28.

A team of shopper - watchers kept an eye on about 500 persons, selected at random, who entered a midtown Manhattan department store not too long ago. One out of every ten walked out with merchandise that was not paid for. One Washington retailer told Editorial Research Reports that he had to replace most of his staff after one sale because they were "practically giving the stuff away to their friends."

Security men say drug addicts who steal to support a $100 -a -day habit must lift from $800 to $1,000 worth of merchandise to get that from the sale of stolen goods. A new group of shoplifters has appeared in localities catering to the nation's youth -- such as Georgetown in Washington and Greenwich Village. Some New Left types reportedly ' rip off" merchandise not only because they want it and can't pay for it; they claim stealing will also help to destroy the establishment.

TO COMBAT the wave of shoplifting, retailers are abandoning their reluctance to prosecute shoplifters. Some stores have published announcements of the get tough policy. "there was a time when we used to talk softly about shoplifting," declares Howard Haimowitz, an executive of the National Retail Merchants Association. "Now we say more arrests and more convictions."

Greater emphasis is also being placed on security. Selonick has stated that some Washington area stores maintain security forces "as large or larger than some of our smaller suburban communities." Mirrors and television cameras have been put in place to detect shoplifters. Some stores have installed plastic tags on each piece of merchandise which set off electronic alarms if taken outside without being removed by clerks with special tools.

But shoplifting is part of the malaise of our time, according to some observers. Says Washington Police Chief Jerry Wilson: There is "a myth in the middle class community that shoplifting isn't a crime."

The Right To Kill

By DAVID LAWRENCE

IN CIVILIAN LIFE, we call it "murder." In International life, we call it "war." Lloyd George once called war by its most fitting name — "organized savagery."

Most of the nations of the world in 1928 signed the Kellogg-Briand treaties outlawing war as an instrument of national policy. Efforts have been made to control the manufacture and distribution of arms. It has been contended that in international as well as individual disputes the mere possession of a pistol leads to the possibility of its use in a moment of hot temper.

Whe have the same problem today that we have always had. Nations with industrial resources can make all kinds of weapons which can kill multitudes of people. The explosive shell of field artillery has been superseded in destructive power by the bombs of air artillery. Naval guns are more deadly than ever before.

Scientific progress goes along with industrial wealth and mechanical capacity. Gradually over the years weapons have come into use which not only can destroy armies and navies but can inflict destruction on the lives and homes of noncombatants.

Death - making instruments may be more terrible than ever before, but have the reports of what the atomic bomb once did erased our impulse to use it for more war and more destruction? If the right to use the atomic bomb is sanctioned, then the right to invent weapons that will deal a so- called merciful death — Indeed, as quick and instantaneous as the lethal chambers of Buchenwald — is also sanctioned.

We need not advocate complete disarmament, desirable as such a state of human society might theoretically seem to be. We need only to insist that, if wars must come, they be confined to armies and navies and air forces directed at strictly military installations. Has the world or the Security Council an ample force to command respect for the decisions of the United Nations? Whatever that force be, it can be readily sanctioned as necessary to suppress the dictators or the outlaws who manage to get possession of the means whereby whole peoples can be controlled or rendered helpless to overthrow such criminals.

What mankind needs in the world community is more emphasis on how to remove the sources of international friction and domestic unrest — usually economic — and more attention to the means whereby the few among us acquire power to control the livelihood and destinies of the many. War can never be outlawed if the internal machinery whereby war criminals get possession of a nation's armies and navies is of no concern to international society.

We should be putting forth all our energies today toward ways and means of curbing the selfishness and greed and brutishness and cruelty that rises within the body politic everywhere rather than to assume that war is inevitable and cannot be cured.

Mankind has refused to concede that certain diseases were or are incurable. We are still struggling to find the answer to many epidemics, but the span of life has been consistently prolonged by our discoveries.

But we are under obligation to use every minute of our time between now and such date to persuade mankind that the right to kill criminals for disciplinary purposes in a world society can and must be delegated to a world tribunal and that if this principle be whole = heartedly accepted, no nation will need to make atomic bombs for war. Along with this, however, must go the pledge to submit all questions or controversies, including those of a so - called non - legal nature, to the world court and to agree to abide by its decisions.

America must take the lead also in expressing a willingness to be governed by the rule of conscience which, on the one hand, commands us to behave justly toward others and, on the other, commands us to accept the verdict of our fellowmen when we have been adjudged in the wrong.

We must not uphold the right to kill. We must argue instead for the development of the more important power of self - control and self - restraint. This must prevail throughout the world in order that a greater force than any bomb ever can possess shall be created — the force that will influence the minds of men to deal with each other internationally without resort to the threat of physical coercion.

If man will first conquer the impulse to vengeance, to excessive pride, to lust, to envy, to vanity, and to self - glory, he will find a way to compel respect for the collective will of human society.

U.N. Members Urged to Push POW Release

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — The United States appealed Friday to U.N. member countries to bring pressure on North Vietnam to grant immediate repatriation to all American war prisoners so entitled under the 1949 Geneva convention.

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D.-R.I., a member of the U.S. delegation to the General Assembly, made the plea in the 127-nation Social Committee.

About a dozen wives and other relatives of the prisoners listened in the gallery as Pell stressed the bipartisan nature of the issue in the United States.

'It is no secret that many Americans -- I among them -- have questioned the wisdom of the Vietnam war," he said.

"But I must say that in my opinion the mistreatment by the North Vietnamese of our captured United States military men have unified those who support and those who oppo the Vietnam war--hawks ar doves alike -- and encourag only those who would prolo and even enlarge the war.

"I would ask all nations wh may do so to assure Hanoi th those of us who opposed t policies which produced t capture of the prisoners are passionately concerned th their rights be respected as ar others."

He said nearly 1,600 U. citizens are listed as captured missing in Southeast Asia.

New Guidelines Set for Calling Up Reserves

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department, under new guidelines issued for calling up the reserves, says it will call up first the best-trained units from as wide a geographic area as possible.

The guidelines for the reserves and National Guard are intended to avoid problems encountered in previous mobilizations.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird announced lastAugust that guard and reserve forces would be used rather than draftees to expand the active forces in any future emergencies requiring rapid buildups.

Under the new directives, only units needed to meet the country's defense needs will be activated.

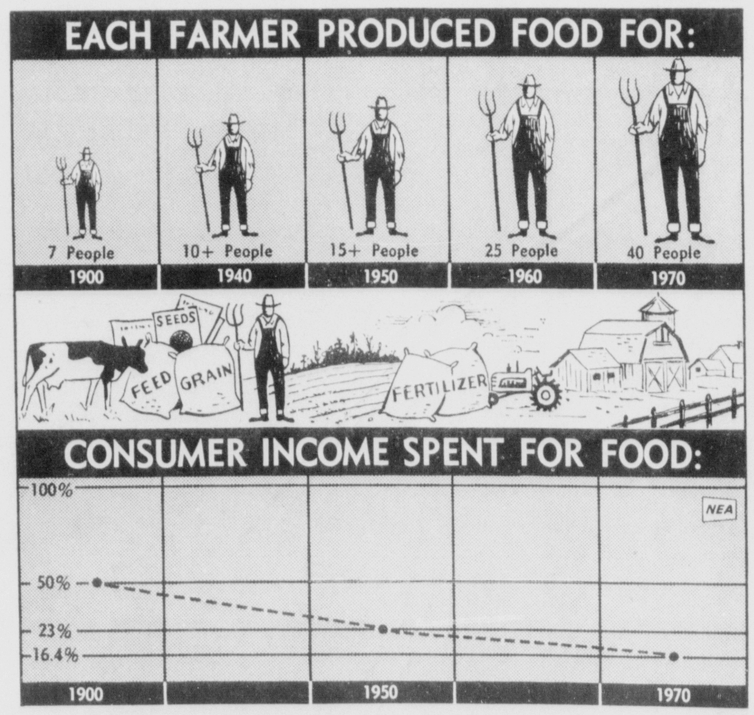
SOMETHING NEW in Christmas decorations. These cookies look good enough to eat, but they're only to look at. Susan Woodward of Philadelphia created a new kind of Christmas ornament—painted cookies, made of special dough which hardens so they'll last for generations.



In the past 70 years, productivity of the American farmer has increased nearly six-fold, according to figures supplied by Massey-Ferguson. In 1900, each farmer was feeding himself and six others. This year the figure has edged over 40. While amount of farm labor required to fill American grocery baskets has gone down, so has percentage of total income Americans have paid for food. At turn of the century, average American family paid 50 per cent of its income for food. Percentage dropped to 23 in 1950s and figure for this year is 16.4 per cent. Farm mechanization is part of the reason, plus better seed, fertilizers and management.

Stamps In The News

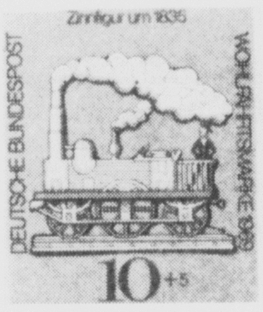
By SYD KRONISH

Miniature tin figures depicting nostalgic scenes of the past appear on a new set of stamps from West Germany. The tin figures themselves are a reminder of a by-gone era highlighting the art of the tinsmith in Germany, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency.



Depicted are a man with caged birds, a steam locomotive, a coach replete with coachmen, maiden feeding a chicken, a grocery woman, at her counter, a postman on horseback blowing his posthorn, a gardener watering a potted plant, a soldier on horseback. Each of the stamps also bears the dates the tin figures were made.

Also issued by West Germany was a 30 pfennig stamp honoring the "1969 Philatelist Congress." The design of the stamp features a 3 kreuzer stamp issued by Bavaria on Jan. 1, 1867 and picturing the Bavarian coat-of-arms.

A new, enlarged edition of the U.S. Liberty Album has just been published by H.E. Harris & Co. The album provides nearly 3,000 illustrations of virtually every postage stamp issued by the U.S. including airmails, special deliveries and postage dues. It sells for $5.95. Harris also has produced a new edition of its Traveler album designed for the beginner. It costs $3.50.

Both albums may be purchased directly from H.E. Harris & Co., Box K, Boston, Mass. 02117.

The Apollo 11 flight to the moon certainly impressed every nation on earth. Even countries behind the Iron Curtain have heaped praise on the U.S. feat and have issued stamps paying tribute to the men and the flight. The latest of these communist nations to philatelically honor Apollo 11 are Mongolia and Poland.

Two non-communist nations have issued their Apollo 11 issues — Paraguay and the Republic of Korea.

Also stirred by the moon trip of the U.S. astronauts is the interest in a forthcoming auction of the famous Ellington Rocket Mail collection by Harmer, Rooke & Co. in New York. The collection compiled by Jesse T. Ellington includes such rarities as the 1958 Point Mugu cover. Philatelic material from 19 countries will be sold, say the auctioneers.

Great Britain, which always had a most efficient postal service has just started its new Post Office Corporation and its computerized system. Four new stamps honoring the occasion have been issued. All the stamps are double the normal size.

At the same time, the British colony of Abu Dhabi — the little oil rich country in the Middle East — issued a stamp honoring the 3rd anniversary of the ascension of Sheikh Zayid Bin Sultan Al Nahayan.

In comparison to the modernized postal set-up in Britain, the post office in Abu Dhabi recently had a staff of two employees.

MOON'S SURFACE? On the contrary, it's a contour map of the ocean floor in the vicinity of the Apollo 11 and 12 splashdowns. Remarkably, the two moon missions have helped scientists of the Naval Oceanographic Office (NAVOCEANO) discover four volcanoes and a volcanic ridge on the sea floor thousands of feet below and a few miles away from the astronauts' landing sites. Largest of the submerged peaks is a 9,600-foot volcano, 25 miles across at its base. Since it is about 18,000 feet below the surface, however, it represents no hazard to navigation.

NOTICE

Beginning on November 16, 1970 Missouri Pacific Railroad Company will conduct the business for the towns of Oran and Morley through a mobile agent who will travel out of Charleston which is his "base station." He will call on each regular customer at his place of business. Those patronizing Missouri Pacific irregularly and desiring the mobile agent to call on them should ask their telephone operator for toll- free Enterprise number 32006 which will connect them with the base station at Charleston. Missouri Pacific will maintain a contract drayman in Oran and Morley. Any patrons desiring any information regarding local drayman, or any other request or problem should call the same toll- free Enterprise number.

We are confident our service under the Mobile Agency plan will be satisfactory, but if there are any complaints, they should be addressed to the Secretary of the Public Service Commission, Jefferson State Office Building, Jefferson City, Missouri (65101).

Route One -- Mrs. J.P. Johnson is on the sick list.

Commerce -- W.U. Post had business in Cape Girardeau Tuesday.

J.F. Cox was confirmed as alderman in Ward 3 at a special meeting of the Sikeston City Council Monday night, to succeed W.E. Hollingsworth, who had resigned as alderman in that ward a week previous to that time. Mr. Cox has served that ward as alderman in the past and was a good one.

Last Saturday afternoon on the local high school field the Sikeston Bulldogs sent the Cairo Egyptians down to easy defeat in a one-sided football game by the score of 40 to 7.

We have the word of Loomis Mayfield that a 101-pound bullfrog was shot yesterday by a local hunting party out after birds. To us the story sounds very reasonable. One hundred pounds of bull and the rest frog.

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week proved to be real moving days for employes of the Scott County Motor Co., for several years housed in a building on Kingshighway. The firm is moving into larger, modern quarters in the Moore building on Malone avenue, formerly occupied by Boyer's Garage. Earl Johnson, manager, stated that moving of stock, fixtures and shop equipment would be completed this week and that the company planned its "grand opening" in new quarters for November 22.

We are sorry to report that John Powell is suffering from an infected arm. He was some better Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Foley and children are moving from Cape Girardeau to Sikeston, where they will make their home. They have purchased one of the A.F. Lindsay bungalows on Dorothy street. Mr. Foley has an interest in the Ford automobile business in Sikeston and Mrs. Foley is a Sikeston girl and Sikestonians are glad to welcome them as permanent residents.

It's a baby girl for Mr. and Mrs. L.D. Cooksey of Sikeston born on the seventh.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Shaw from Chicago, Ill., have now moved and are making their home in Sikeston. Mrs. Shaw was the former Miss June Allen.

The Bulldogs ... the Sikeston high school football team that has covered the girdirons of Southeast Missouri for the past three years and walked over their competition ... have only two more games to go to complete their third year of competition without a defeat under the leadership of Coach Kenneth Knox.

CAPT. JERRY W. TWADDELL, an F-105 Thundercheif pilot with the 354th tactical fighter squadron, is presented the air medal by Col. C. E. Anderson, commander, 355th tactical fighter wing. Captain Twaddell was cited for his outstanding airmanship and courage. Captain Twaddell's wife, Jane, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lumsden, of Essex.

Missourians Vote Pocketbooks

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. -- Amid the squeeze of inflation and mounting unemployment, Missourians apparently voted their pocketbooks in last week's general election.

The voters defeated a constitutional amendment and a referendum proposition which would have increased taxes while passing three amendments designed, to some extent, as economy measures.

A signal of the statewide voting trend on money matters came in the April 7 defeat of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' income tax referendum.

By defeating Amendment No. 3 and passing Amendment No. 4, the electorate served notice it wants to stabilize school financing, but maintain a tight rein on school board spending.

Passage of Amendment No. 4 means schools no longer will risk the prospect of closing their doors when voters turn down higher tax levies and the rate reverts to $1.25, School districts will now keep their previous rate when increases are voted down. Almost no districts can operate all year on a $1.25 levy, so they have been forced to go to the voters again and again in expensive elections.

Amendment No. 3, defeated overwhelmingly, would have authorized school boards to increase levies up to $5.55 by a simple majority approval, rather than a two-thirds majority. The measure would have increased the minimum tax that could be levied without voter approval to $1.85 from the current $1.25.

State law allows a school board to levy up to three times the minimum amount with a simple majority or a limit of $3.75.

Endorsed by school boards and major educational organizations, Amendment No. 3 had been hailed as a solution to what Columbia Board of Education President Edwin D. Birh called "the greatest financial crisis of the last 100 years" for Missouri schools.

Proposition No. 1, a pension - increase plan for state legislators, officials and employes, was defeated by a more than 3 to 1 margin.

The proposition began as a bill approved by the General Assembly in 1969 which would have provided state legislators an 87 per cent increase in retirement benefits. The bill, which was to have gone into effect last year, would have given lesser pension increases to elected state officials and state employes.

Opponents of the measure used a petition drive to force a state-wide vote on the proposal. Citizens were angered by what they considered excessive increases for legislators and other elected officials.

Amendment No. 2, the "home rule" measure which allows charter county residents to decide which services will be supplied by local governments and which by the county, won a surprising 57 per cent of the vote.

The amendment is expected to produce governmental economy by centralizing the administration of common services such as police and fire protection. St. Louis and Jackson counties are the only charter counties in the state.

Also approved by the voters was the long -sought measure to provide annual sessions of the Missouri legislature -- Amendment No. 1. Annual sessions have been proposed periodically for more than a decade.

the legislature will hereafter convene for six - month sessions in odd numbered years beginning on the first Wednesday after the first Monday in January and ending at midnight June 30. Legislation can be enacted through June 15 with the last 15 days reserved for preparation and signing of bills which have been passed.

Sessions in even - numbered years will be shorter. They will convene on the Wednesday following the first Monday in Jaunary and adjourn on May 15. Legislation can be passed through April 30.

Legislators hope now to have time to deal with the more than 1,200 bills introduced each two years by considering them in two sessions rather than one.

Have yet to see one of the "now" generation refuse a

Disrobing Not Free Speech Exercise

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

As part of a college program on sex education, meetings were held in the college lounge where distinguished psychiatrists, clergymen and others lectured on the subject without incident

It was only when a representative of Playboy Magazine was invited to speak that a group of forthright co-eds decided to protest. Consequently, in the middle of his talk, they nonchalantly got up and nonchalantly removed their clothes, one unmentionable hem after another, until they were wrapped up only in themselves.

Then, they got dressed again. And, while you may not be able to pin anything on a naked lady, the girls were nevertheless later arrested on charges of indecent exposure.

"They were a delight, I mean, a sight to see," complained a school official in court. "We had all we could do to look them in the face."

"There's nothing obscene in being nude," retorted the coeds, "and there was nothing lewd in our conduct. Simply, exercising our freedom of speech, it was our way of protesting the magazine's exploitation of pictures of unclad women for commercial gain. The fact is, it's an outrage to all of us decent females. Besides, .:: the girls pointed out, "our disrobing caused absolutely no disturbance."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict the decent coeds of indecent exposure?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that while mere public nudity may not constitute the crime of indecent exposure, when it is intentionally done with the intent to breach public rules of behavior, the crime has been committed. And, concluded the judge in effect, the coed's freedom of body in this case, was not privileged as an exercise of freedom of speech.

Sew a Party Secret

By NANCY WILTON

Does your clothes allowance seem to dwindle away right before your eyes? Did you last hint to your mother that you absolutely needed something new for a party bring you talk about the economy and saving, not spending? Then now's the time to discover the magic of sewing for yourself. And you can start with something that's fun and exciting -- a party skirt.

There are so many amazingly simple patterns. They're easy to follow and easy to learn from. And one of the easiest to start on, believe it or not, is a wild and wonderful party skirt.

Decide what you want -- mini, midi, maxi -- it makes no difference. Then go to your local department store or sewing center and look for the simple, easy -to -sew patterns. They usually have a separate part of the pattern book all to themselves. A few seams and a hem is all most of them take. Pick your pattern, and then start on the most exciting part of the search, the fabric hunt.

THERE'S A WORLD TO CHOOSE FROM' AND YOU CAN END UP WITH A REAL ORIGINAL' Velvets, brocades, glittery fabrics, shaggy ones, quilted prints. Take your pick. Or choose a vivid plain color and go wild with trim. The notions department will give you a hundred ideas. Felt, braid, buttons. You could cover a skirt with buttons, right from the button box at home. Or sew on braid in a design of your own creation. The possibilities are as big as your own imagination. You'll find, too, that you can make many variations from just one pattern, simply by doing it in different fabrics, and in different lengths.

Of course, after your first attempt is a smash hit, you'll probably want to go on and on. Find someone who sews and ask for help with more complicated patterns. Or take some lessons at a local sewing center. You may end up being the best-dressed girl in town, and your clothes money will stretch farther than you ever believed possible. What's more, sewing will give you lots of fun, and bring you plenty of compliments. That should be pretty easy to take.

Bell City Team Wins Road Rally

Sikeston played host Saturday to a safe driving road rally that attracted entries from five counties.

The rally was sponsored by the Exploring committee of the Southeast Missouri Council of the Boy Scouts of America and was co-sponsored by Sonny Presley's Chevrolet and the El Capri.

First place went to a Bell City team consisting of Kenneth Bell and David Swindell. Three Sikeston youths captured second place. They were Carl Schorle, Scott Willis and Scott Mackelprang. Bob Jibben and Lisa Anderson of Dexter were third.

Ten cars entered the event with more than 30 people taking part. Check point judges, finish line officials and starters kept a running tally of the points of each driver. The Bell City team scored the highest point total recorded in the annual event's history.

Officials from the Boy Scout office in Cape Girardeau reported that a national road rally is held each year and if the Bell City team qualifies they might participate in this year's event. Last year it was held in Detroit.

Robert Cawley of Cape Girardeau, served as the finish line judge.

GEORGETOWN, Colo. (AP — After saying 8 a.m. mass in Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church in this mountain town, Father Joseph Bartos often slips into everyday clothes, dashes across the street and sings in the Presbyterian Church choir.

He explained, "They're sometimes shorthanded and I like to sing."

The Prayer from The Upper Room

Open your hearts to one another as Christ has opened his heart to you, and God will be glorified. (Romans 15:7, Phillips translation)

PRAYER: Our loving heavenly Father, help us to be drawn closer to Thee, so that we may reflect through our lives Thine understanding hearts to serve Thee th o g love to our neighbor, near or far. In Jesus' name. Amen.

Penn Central Lists Loss of $195.5 Million

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Penn Central Co., parent company of the financially troubled Penn Central Transportation Co., has reported a net loss of $194.5 million for the first nine months of this year.

The parent holding company had shown a profit of $17.6 million for the same period last year. The report also showed a net loss for the third quarter of this year of $70.4 million compared with a net loss of $8.9 million for the third quarter in 1969.

The report was released Wednesday along with third quarter and nine month results for the Penn Central Transportation Co., the nation's largest railroad, and its subsidiary the Pennsylvania Co.

One-Vote Election Margin Hinges on Official Canvass

ST. LOUIS (AP)— The result of the race for state representative in Missouri's 116th District hinges on today's certification of the results in St. Clair County and if the unofficial results stand the incumbent would be elected by one vote.

State Rep. Guss Salley, R-Warsaw, received 1,275 vote in the unofficial count of the county votes to 2,055 for Morran D. Harris, a Democrat from Osceola.

Those results combined with official totals from Benton and Pettis counties, which make up the district, would give Salley 4,819 votes to 4,818 for Harris.

Salley had 2,104 votes in Benton County and 1,440 in Pettis County.

Harris got 1,476 votes in Benton and 1,287 in Pettis.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, Nov. 9, the 313th day of 1970. There are 52 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1918, Germany's Kaiser Wilhelm abdicated at the end of World War I and the country was proclaimed a republic.

On this date:

In 1872, the Great Boston Fire broke out and raged for three days, killing 35 persons and destroying nearly 1,000 buildings.

In 1923, 14 Nazis were killed as federal troops broke up a march of Aolf Hitler's storm troopers in Munich, Germany.

In 1933, President Franklin D. Roosevelt created the Civil Works Administration to provide jobs for more than four million unemployed Americans.

In 1938, bands of Nazis roamed the streets of Germany, burning and destroying Jewish synagogues, homes and stores.

In 1941, a Chicago-to-New York express train was wrecked at Dunkirk, Ohio, killing 20 persons and injuring 40 others.

In 1943, the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration was created.

Ten years ago—Ten Irish soldiers were slain in the Congo in the ambush of a U.N. patrol.

Five years ago—A power failure blacked out parts of eight northeastern states and two provinces of Canada. New York City was without power for 10 hours and thousands were trapped in underground subwa tunnels at the height of the evening rush hour.

One year ago — Additional victims of the 1968 Tet massacre at Hue, South Vietnam, were unearthed and the death list rose to 2,300.

Southerners Retain Top Senate Jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Southern Democrats—most of them conservatives—will continue to head nearly all the major Senate committees when the 92nd Congress convenes in January.

These include Appropriations, Foreign Relations, Finance, Armed Services and Banking and Currency.

Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., will take over as chairman of the Labor and Public Welfare Committee—the only major Senate panel to change leadership as a result of this year's elections.

Williams succeeds another liberal, Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., defeated in the Democratic primary by Lloyd Bentsen, who then won the seat.

The Labor and Public Welfare Committee handles legislation in the fields of education, poverty, health and labor. Former President Lyndon B. Johnson said it originated more than 75 per cent of all his Great Society measures.

Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., outranks Williams in seniority on Labor and Public Welfare and could have taken the chairmanship.

But Randolph said he decided to remain chairman of the Public Works Committee because of its great importance to his home state.

Public works handles the Appalachia program, which has funneled millions of federal dollars into the region, as well as bills dealing with federal highway aid, air and water pollution controls, and river, harbor and flood-control projects.

Southerners will continue to chair nine of the present 16 Senate standing committees.

They include Sens. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., the oldest senator in point of service, who heads Appropriations; James O. Eastland, D-Miss., Judiciary; John C. Stennis, D-Miss., Armed Services; Russell B. Long, D-La., Finance, and J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., Foreign Relations.

Others are Sens. John Sparkman, D-Ala., Banking and Currency; Allen J. Ellender, D-La., Agriculture and Forestry; John L. McClellan, D-Ark., Government Operations, and B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., Rules and Administration.

Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., chairman of the District of Columbia Committee, was defeated Tuesday. He is expected to be succeeded by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo.

Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., is one possibility to be chairman of a newly created Veterans Affairs Committee.
